Cabinet Gives Green Light to College Vote

School board chairman Carron Jameson said board members are "delighted" at the announcement as the board has been pressing for it since 1966.

"Our hope is that this will be held within a month or so," he said. A simple majority is needed for the plebiscite to pass.

The college, if it becomes a reality, will be a separate entity located at the Institute of Adult Studies.

Jameson said that the board hoped to have students in the college by September, 1971.

Allan McCallum, acting principal of the Institute of Adult Studies, today said the possibility of a regional college for Greater Victoria has been under consideration since spring 1969.

At that time, he said, the school board prepared a submission to the provincial education department.

Since then, he said, the board has been awaiting an announcement from the department.

If approved, the new college would be the ninth in the province.

It would serve southern Vancouver Island.

The final decision on the site would come from the board of education, McCallum said, and a regional college here would likely include vocational courses. But he could not speculate whether such a college would absorb the facilities of the recently-opened Greater Victoria Vocational School.

It will probably only involve taxpayers who live within the boundaries of the Greater Victoria district.

The outlying districts — Sooke and Saanich Peninsula — will watch the college operation and decide later whether they wish to hold separate plebiscites to join the Victoria college.

The college set-up, under provincial legislation, will mean a better financial deal for the district taxpayers than does the present Adult Institute which is financed through public school systems.

Under legislation, the provincial government pays 60 per cent of the operating costs of regional colleges, students themselves pay some 18 per cent and the ratepayers the remaining 22 per cent.

Social Workers To Appeal Job Transfers

By BRUCE YEMEN

Job transfers described as "sudden" are being appealed by a number of social worker employees of the provincial department of rehabilitation and social improvement.

But Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi said today the transfers — unofficially reported affecting 16 social workers — are "only just a start" in that direction.

He denied that there is any "shakeup" under way in the department which he took over last fall.

Gaglardi indicated the transfers are "promotions" which will improve the qualifications of those involved for future advancement.

But Glen Hamilton, executive secretary of the B.C. Association of Social Workers, said today in Vancouver:

'COMPLETE LOSS'

"We are at a complete loss to understand the rationale for the move."

At the same time Cy Toren, association president, was today sending out letters to a number of newspapers criticizing Gaglardi on other policy matters since he took over the welfare job.

Gaglardi said in February that a reorganization of the department complete with "retraining" of staff if necessary could be expected.

Hamilton, in Vancouver, said the association has just learned of some of the transfers and would like to hear from Gaglardi some evidence of the need for the move.

CLOSE TOUCH

"I think there are arguments for keeping staff in close touch with their communities," he said. "I don't think the experience would be much different in one community than in another.

One report said as many as 14 of the 16 department staff affected are appealing the orders. The appeal procedure is a departmental matter.

Gaglardi, asked about the appeals as a possible sign of discontent in his department, replied, "so what?"

He said transfers are a condition of employment.

Gaglardi denied that he was now carrying out previously veiled threats to shake up the department if it failed to adapt to his new approach to welfare services.

"I'm not interested in breaking up anything," he said.

MEMBERS UPSET

Hamilton said the association's members are "naturally upset with the idea of being shifted around."

Toren said he hasn't sufficient details of the moves to evaluate them but if Gaglardi's moves are "arbitrary" then it could be "destructive" and create more problems for the department.

In a letter to newspaper editors being mailed today, Toren states that Gaglardi has operated in a manner designed to reduce welfare services and department morale in recent months.

He questioned the wisdom of Gaglardi's claim Wednesday — and repeated today in Victoria — that there are 10,000 jobs available in B.C.

"There is no evidence that there are 10,000 jobs avail-

Oil Now Within 12 Miles Of P.E.I.'s White Beaches

By BILL MOFFATT
Canadian Press Correspondent

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. — A massive oil slick, fed from the tanks of a sunken oil barge, continued to grow today and had stretched to within 12 miles of the white sand beaches at the northwestern tip of Prince Edward Island by midday.

The slick had been about 20 miles from shore early Wednesday.

Today's winds were southerly at about 10 miles an hour and were expected to change little the rest of the day. Southerly winds would carry the oil away from shore, but with such light winds the slick was not expected to move "any great distance," a transport department spokesman said.

Further offshore, at the site of the sinking, winds were light southwesterly and expected to increase to southwest 15 tonight. Northerly winds would bring the oil toward P.E.I. while westerly winds would carry it toward New Brunswick.

Meanwhile, consideration was being given by officials to dispersing the thick bunker C oil with chemicals which have been stockpiled at the Canadian Forces base here.

Dr. William Ford of Bedford Institute of Oceanography said in an interview the chemicals would reduce the oil to about one part per million, and he said he felt the risk to marine life is "low."

A tiny fisheries research submarine was in position over the wreck of the Irving Whale, a 2,300-ton barge which sank 35 miles north of North Cape, P.E.I. Monday with 875,000 gallons of bunker C in its compartments.

The sub Pisces was expected to make its first dive later today to assess the Whale's condition.

PLAN BOOM LOCK

Officials were awaiting the arrival of a 2,000-foot sea boom from British Columbia which will be placed downwind from the wreck to contain oil leaking from the Whale. The boom allows water to pass through but holds oil. It can function effectively in waves up to six feet.

Transport department officials surveyed the slick early today and reported it had become irregular in shape and was about 28 miles long at its longest point.

A fisheries department spokesman said it appeared that large schools of mackerel in the area were safe.

Briefs Acceptable After Mine Hearing

By DON VIPOND

B.C.'s director of pollution control will accept briefs on a north island mine dumping proposal after a public hearing next week.

Assistant director Robert Ferguson restated this policy today after opponents to the plans of Utah Construction and Mining Co. Ltd. on Rupert Inlet learned only four objectors will be heard at the public hearing.

The mining company wants a permit to dump 9.3 million gallons of effluent daily into the narrow inlet south of Port Hardy.

The effluent, from a copper and molybdenum concentration would be 50 per cent suspended solids by weight, containing residual traces of cyanide and zinc.

Utah applied for the permit 11 months ago and the Pollution Control Branch received over 140 protests by mail, said Ferguson.

Each letter was answered, with the branch enclosing a summary of a general study of the question and inviting the writters to substantiate their position as objecters.

Only three people and one organization did this and they are the only ones invited to make a presentation at the public hearing.

ANYONE CAN LISTEN

The hearing will be held next Wednesday at the Kinsmen recreation hall near Port Hardy airport. Anyone can attend to listen.

Ferguson said pollution control director William Venables has already established a policy of accepting written briefs after a hearing and these will be considered before he decides to grant or refuse the permit.

He made the announcement following talks in his offic with officials of the Operating Engineers and Laborers unions and of the Construction Labor Relations Association.

Amman Torn By Fighting In Streets

Heavy Casualties Feared

Times News Services

The Jordanian capital of Amman is reported in flames and heavy casualties were feared as Palestinian guerrillas and the Jordanian army battled throughout the night despite appeals for a ceasefire from both sides.

Guerrillas in the capital said the fighting centred on the Amman airport, the Jebel Hussein Citadel, the royal palaces and other sections of the city. They said houses were being destroyed.

The guerrillas said soldiers in 10 scout cars attacked the headquarters of the Popular Democratic Front, a radical guerrilla organization, but that they were repelled and four of the cars were destroyed.

Exploding rockets and bursts of machine-gun fire were clearly heard early today in Jebel Amman, where most government departments and diplomatic missions are situated.

LASTS 10 MINUTES

The firing began at 6 a.m. and lasted about 10 minutes. It restarted at 8:35 a.m. with troops and guerrillas entrenched in their positions on Jebel Amman and Jebel Webda exchanging fire.

Guerrillas May Release Sick Hostages

AMMAN (Reuters) — The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, whose commandos this week hijacked three airliners to Jordan, have offered to release all women and children and people in need of medical care among the passengers if certain conditions are met.

Palestinian Red Crescent sources, revealing this to Reuters, declined to state what these conditions were but said the offer was made on humaniterian grounds during a meeting here today between the Front and International Red Cross representatives.

They added that representatives of the Palestinian Red Crescent, through whom the negotiations were being held, attended the meeting.

The Front is insisting on the release of seven guerrillas held in Switzerland, West Germany and Britain as well as two Algerians and an unlimited number of commandos detained in Israel in return for the release of the hijacked aircraft, their passengers and crew.

The sources claimed about 11,000 Arabs are detained in Israeli prisons, of whom 1,050 have been tried. The others are being held without trial.

They added that among the

CAMBODIAN AMPHIBIOUS FORCE

Three-Month Siege Lifted

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Meeting only light resistance, a Cambodian amphibious force of some 1,500 men reached Kompong Thom Wednesday night and lifted a three-month seige of the provincial capital 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, the Cambodian command announced.

A spokesman said that one Cambodian soldier was killed in the lightly contested drive up the Stung Sen River by a column of boats more than 1½ miles long. The column, which included gunboats with cannon, reached the provincial capital after a two-day operation that began on the shores of Cambodia's huge lake, Tonle Sap, the spokesman said.

Western military experts were puzzled by the ease with which the seige was reported broken, considering that most of the North Vietnamese 20th Division is reported still in the immediate area.

One source suggested that the North Vietnamese might be laying an elaborate trap. Another theory was that the Cambodian relief force would withdraw, and the North Vietnamese could again encircle Kompong Thom without serious casualties.

'POLICE CAN'T COPE WITH THEFTS BY HIPPIES'

Crime on Increase at Long Beach

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Theft by members of the large hippie beach colony, sometimes numbering as high as 1,000 during the peak tourist season, increased at an alarming rate this summer according to merchants and police.

Money, cameras, food, packsacks — anything that can be converted into cash — has been stolen from campers in the new national park.

Shoplifting is rampant at Tofino and Ucluelet, the two Long Beach communities, merchants say.

Police seem no longer able to cope with the problem, residents claim.

Robert Cummins, 638 Vanalman, whose wife's purse was stolen from his truck at a government campsite this summer, said police haven't got the staff to carry out the investigations.

Cummins said he wasn't blaming police.

"There are thousands of visitors at Long Beach in July and August," he said. "They can't cope with the complaints. They are also responsible for traffic and maintaining the law at Tofino and Ucluelet.

The total RCMP staff in the area is five. This is increased to eight during summer months.

A total of 40,718 people camped in the park this summer, according to the B.C. Parks Branch.

Arab detainees some are blind or have amputated limbs and should be released on humitarian grounds.

The sources also said 140 Arab girls are in Israeli prisons, "some sentenced to life while others have not been tried."

The Popular Front today extended by 72 hours its deadline for the release of the seven Arab guerrillas held in Europe.

The decision to extend the Sunday (7 p.m. PDT Saturday) was made at a meeting of the Front's high command Wednesday night, and a Red Cross mission negotiating the release of three hijacked planes and about 280 passengers was informed.

* * *

The original 72-hour ultimatum set after the guerrillas hijacked two airliners to a desert airstrip in Jordan Sunday was scheduled to expire at 2 a.m. GMT today (7 p.m. PDT Wednesday.)

A Front spokesman said the Arab passengers aboard the VC-10—the first British airliner to be hijacked — were released today.

The guerrillas released 21 Arabs and also freed a British girl engaged to one of the Arab passengers. Jordanian army buses took those freed to the Intercontinental Hotel in Amman.

A Front spokesman said that in extending the ultimatum period at the request of the International Red Cross, the Front holds Britain, the United States and other countries concerned responsible for determining the fate of the three detained planes and their passengers.

The Front in giving the extension wished to provide more chance for the concerned parties to act responsibly, he said.

* * *

Britain and the United States should understand that their pressure and activities will not serve the interests of the passengers and the three planes, he added.

The spokesman said the Front leaders and the Red Cross mission were expected to meet today, but added there will be no further extensions of the ultimatum.

The passengers went through an agonizingly tense and cramped night in the three hijacked airliners in the Jordanian desert, apparently unaware their captors had granted them a stay of execution.

For 197 captives aboard a Swissair DC-8 and a Trans World Airlines Boeing 707, it was an ordeal they already have gone through for three previous nights.

Aboard the VC-10 were 103 passengers and 10 crew members — about half of them Britons.

With two of the countries ready to meet the guerrilla demands — Switzerland in principle and West Germany without any pre-conditions — only Britain's continued detention of Arab girl guerrilla Leila Khaled apparently stands in the way of a negotiated settlement for the release of the Europeans and Americans on board the planes.

It was to force Britain to comply that the Popular Front seized the VC-10 and forced it down in the Jordanian desert, after a stop to refuel at Beirut.

Following the latest hijacking no one among the 300 heavily armed guerrillas guarding the planes believes the British government will stand firm in the face of the guerrilla warnings about the "serious consequences" for the hostages should a barter not be arranged.

The guerrillas have not said what they will do with their hostages if the ultimatum is ignored, although after hijacking the first two western aircraft Sunday they threatened to blow them up if any attempt was made to recapture the planes.

* * *

But even if Andre Rochat, chief Middle East representative of the International Red Cross, can arrange a package deal over the European and American passengers, the guerrillas will still hold a large number of Israelis and passengers withdual Israeli-American citizenship.

The guerrillas said the ultimatum does not apply to this group of hostages who will be released only when a still unspecified number of guerrilla prisoners and two Algerian detainees are freed from prison in Isarel.

While statesmen in world capitals pondered the captives' fate and the morality of bowing to ransom demands for a trade in human lives, the passengers were more concerned with a marked improvement in their living conditions aboard the planes.

A Red Cross doctor and male nurse gave medical care, emergency lighting was rigged in the cabins which had previously been pitch black at night, and mobile air conditioning units were attached to the planes.

In a sudden display of hospitality, the guerrillas broke out four cases of whisky and the passengers and crew of the VC-10 were able to toast their safe landing almost 12 hours after takeoff from Bahrain on a flight to London.

* * *

The United States placed six C-130 military transport planes on standby in Turkey to help fly medical supplies to the captives and evacuate them if they are released, but U.S. government spokesmen refused to discuss any other contingency plans the Nixon administration might be considering.

The White House said the six aircraft, each able to carry about 100 passengers, were flown to Turkey from various U.S. bases in Europe.

In interviews today at the desert airstrip in Jordan, one guerrilla made clear that the chief bar to release of the planes is Britain's refusal to free Miss Khaled.

army and security forces and the heavily defended offices of all guerrilla organizations are located in Jebel Waibda.

Travellers who tried to reach the Jordanian capital but were turned back by Bedouin soldiers said at the Syrian border town of Dera'a that Amman looked "as if it was burning."

The new fighting kept Amman in a state of tension and gave it an air of a besieged city as the bitter army-guerrilla crisis dragged the country into chaos.

The city was almost completely paralyzed with no stores open and no taxis on the streets.

In parts of the capital where the guerrillas predominate — and they seemed to be everywhere — rocks, rubbish and barbed wire blocked streets.

Telephones in the city were still working but telephone links between some Jordanian towns and between Amman and the outside world were cut.

HIT BY FIRE

The Intercontinental Hotel was hit by small-arms fire, and guerrillas and soldiers battled for an adjacent building. No one in the hotel was hurt, but one round knocked out the building's water system, flooding the lobby and downstairs offices.

The guests, including 127 women and children freed from two airliners hijacked Sunday, spent the night on mattresses in the downstairs night club and in hallways.

Scores of bullets hit the building, leaving holes in the glass-paned entrance door of the hotel and in the windows of several bedrooms.

Exploding shells also shattered the glass windows of a building only 10 yards from the British embassy near the hotel.

Amman radio broadcast orders to stop firing from guerrilla chief Yasir Arafat and army Chief of Staff Mashdour Haditha, entrusted with full powers by King Hussein after an emergency cabinet meeting.

For four hours Wednesday afternoon civilians huddled in their cellars or hugged the floor behind shuttered windows as army artillery bombarded suspected guerrilla positions in the many districts of the capital.

No one has even begun to count the dead and wounded — or to add their number to the 400 or more earlier casualties of this month's fighting touched off by an unsuccessful attempt to kill Hussein.

CRITICAL

He reiterated his condemnation of aerial hijacking and indirectly criticized Israel for holding two Algerians arrested last month on a plane that landed at an Israeli airport.

The reason for Thant's optimism on the Middle East included two points:

Overwhelming opinion that the UN has special responsibility for peace in the area, and the fact that the Big Four had achieved a wide area of agreement on a Middle East solution. He said the areas of agreement are wider than the areas of disagreement.

Council members also were consulting in private on other measures the world body might take if the guerrillas go through with their threat of blowing up the jetliners if their demands for release of Arab commandos are not met, the sources said.

Quebec Specialists Set Deadline

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists has given the Quebec government 15 days to negotiate a settlement over implementation of a provincial health insurance plan.

"We will not continue negotiations with the government beyond the next 15 days," Dr. Raymond Robillard, president of the federation said Wednesday at a news conference.

"If no settlement is reached within that time, there will be contestation."

Asked whether "contestation" meant strike action by the 4,000 medical specialists represented by the federation, Dr. Robillard said:

"A complete strike is not foreseen. If there is a cut-off of services by medical specialists, emergency services will be preserved."

On Aug. 27, the medical specialists supported strike action if negotiations failed to provide the concessions they seek.

EXPLAINS REASON

"Publication last Thursday of the Castonguay-Nepveu report on the reorganization of Quebec health services gives us a better understanding why the government has adopted such a rigid attitude towards physicians and why it has adopted a law on medicare that is so different from that accepted by the other provinces of Canada," Dr. Robillard said.

"There is no place in this system for real participation of the medical profession. Physicians become civil servants controlled in their professional activity by layman administrators.

"We can say today that the medical specialists oppose strongly any scheme that sets aside their professional liberty and jeopardizes the quality of care they may give to patients."

Dr. Robillard said that within 15 days, "we probably will have explored all the possibilities of reaching an agreement with the government at the negotiating table."

After that, the doctors will prepare a "white paper" outlining their opposition to the Health Insurance Act passed by the Quebec National Assembly this summer. The white paper would also present the doctors' demands and the government's offers.

The medical specialists have been opposed to the lack of an opting-out clause in the health act and are asking that the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons have the last word on professional matters.

Halibut Fishing To Close

SEATTLE (CP) — All halibut fishing off the coast of Alaska, British Columbia, Washington and Oregon will be closed at the end of this month.

The International Pacific Area 2 south of Cape Spencer, near Juneau, will be closed at 6 a.m. Sept. 21, and Area 3B, between the Shumagin Islands and 175 degrees west longitude will be closed Sept. 30.

The commission announced last week that Area 3A, between the Shunagin Islands in the Aleutian chain and Cape Spencer, will also be closed Sept. 21.

Only halibut fishing after Sept. 30 will be in the Bering Sea.

CHANGES IN TAX PAPER COMING

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson said Wednesday night he has been pleased generally with submissions from the public concerning the federal government's white paper on taxation.

Mr. Benson told a news conference that because of this exchange of ideas between the government and public, the final tax legislation will contain substantial differences from the white paper.

He said he hoped the House of Commons would report on tax legislation in October.

"It's going to look like a better tax system, but it's not going to look like the white paper per se," he said.

Police report about 160 complaints of theft were received from tourists. But they estimate about 30 per cent of the campers in the park don't report their losses.

FEW COMPLAINTS

While the business community at Tofino and Uchelet says that shoplifting is rampant, RCMP report they receive few registered complaints from residents.

Cpl. R. M. S. Kraus of Uchelet, says he hears a lot about the activities of hippies.

"But I get it through the grapevine," he said. "Few residents lay complaints. For example, I got to hear about a hippie who stripped himself in a laundromat and washed himself in a tub. But it only came to my ears two weeks after the incident — through the grapevine as usual."

FEAR REPERCUSSIONS

This would indicate that residents don't want to get involved or fear repercussions.

The hippie colony during the summer months may have numbered 1,000 but the daily average is between 600 and 800, police say. Now the number has dropped to about 400. Half are U.S. citizens and many of them transients.

Federal park officials say they plan to move out the hippie colony because their camp site does not conform to park regulations, but there is no guarantee that they won't settle around the perimeter of the park.

SOME PACIFISTS

RCMP said it is a misnomer to label all members of the colony as hippies.

They estimate about 10 per cent are true hippies — young people with a philosophy.

"They are pacifists and cause us no trouble," they said.

The remainder were described as young people who can't cope with the problems and stresses of city life. Their way of life is an escape from reality.

Many appear to steal to keep from starving.

What many residents fear is an outbreak of violence, not originating from the hippies but from new residents to Tofino and Uchelet.

"If they ever cause me any trouble," said an employee of a motel, "I will kill them with a steel pipe I keep near me. I'll tell police they hit me first. Who is to say they didn't."

This is what long-time residents of the area fear most — an incident which would create an explosive situation.

"What we need, said a businessman," is not only more police, but welfare and social workers to look into the situation."

able," Toren said, nor is there evidence that Gaglardi's job-finding agency in the department had found a "significant" number of jobs for people on welfare.

The letter states that "public men" commenting on welfare matters are not so much "unkind" as they are "uninformed" on the welfare services of the province.

It went on to say that unless Gaglardi examines his role in "greater depth" one of the best welfare programs in operation will become "unworkable."

One unofficial source suggested some of the employees transferred in the rehabilitation department might be regarded as troublemakers by Gaglardi, but there was no indication of a concerted effort to overhaul the staff structure at this time.

Thom and the population, without serious casualties.

The town has been surrounded cut off from all land and water communications for three months. The defenders at one point were so hungry they raided the city's zoo and ate some of the animals.

MAKES LESS PROGRESS

Meanwhile, a second force pushing northward to relieve Kompong Thom was reported moving slowly up Route 6 from Skoun and still 40 miles away, having covered 10 miles in three days.

The spokesman said the advance was slow because the infantrymen were waiting for the engineers to repair blown bridges and other breaks in the highway.

The operation to relieve Kompong Thom is the biggest government offensive of the 5½-month-old war in Cambodia, involving an estimated 10,000 men including support troops. It is the first time the government has taken the initiative, and the purpose is to regain a sizable area of population and food production.

In South Vietnam, neither the U.S. nor South Vietnamese command reported any major ground fighting. However, U.S. headquarters said three helicopters were shot down in the northern part of the country, four Americans were missing and three others were injured in the crashes.

The U.S. command's weekly summary of casualties said 87 Americans were killed in combat last week, but 22 of them actually died the week before in a helicopter crash. They had not been included in the summary that week because the bodies had not been identified.

South Vietnamese casualties increased sharply. The government said 469 of its troops were killed, compared with 264 the previous week.

$30 MILLION DAMAGE SUIT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Trial of a $30 million damage suit against the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority, resulting from the Peace River power project will open Monday in B.C. Supreme Court.

Court officials said the case could easily set a new record for longevity in the annals of the Vancouver courthouse.

The damages claimed by a consortium of five construction firms — Northern Powerplant Builders—are among the highest ever sought in this province.

The trial could run anywhere from 10 months to a year, possibly surpassing the 144-day court battle between B.C. Power Corp. and provincially-owned Hydro in 1962-63.

In that case, B.C. Power could not reverse its expropriation by the B.C. government, but in the end settled for some $87 million in additional compensation for its shareholders.

Lawyer Douglas McK. Brown, QC, said Wednesday the Peace River case will involve introduction of 100,000 documents into the court record.

Mr. Brown, counsel for the five plaintiffs, estimated the trial will run for 10 months and said he will be assisted by four lawyers.

John L. Farris, counsel for Hydro, said he will be assisted by five lawyers and estimated the trial length at six months to a year.

The case will be heard by Mr. Justice J. A. Macdonald.

The companies launched the suit in July, 1967.

They are Northern Construction Co., J. W. Stewart Ltd., Morrison-Knudsen Co., of Canada Ltd., Perini Pacific Ltd., and J. A. Jones Construction Co. (Canada) Ltd.

Much of the dispute centres on interpretation of the consortium's Peace River contract, specifically sections dealing with compensations to be paid for changes ordered by Hydro.

Accused My Lai Murderer Says Westmoreland Responsible

ATLANTA (WP) — Citing a 1946 Supreme Court decision that led to the execution of a Japanese army commander, a sergeant accused of murder at My Lai Wednesday filed charges that Gen. William C. Westmoreland, now army chief of staff, should be held responsible for the March 16, 1968, massacre at My Lai.

Sgt. Esequiel Torres alleged that as commanding general of American military forces in Vietnam, Westmoreland "was derelict in the performance of his duties in failing to control troops within his command so as to prevent such troops . . . from inflicting needless injuries upon Vietnamese civilians at My Lai . . ."

In an accompanying statement, Torres cited the Supreme Court's ruling in the case of Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita after World War II.

The Yamashita ruling is a sort of obverse to the Nuremberg principle. The Nuremberg trials in post-war Germany established a precedent that a military man is not relieved of war crime guilt simply because he was following orders. The Yamashita decision, on the other hand, let stand a military commission's conclusion that a commander is responsible for war crimes committed by his men, even if they acted outside of their orders and without his acknowledge.

Yamashita was not accused of participating in the atrocities some of his men committed in the Philippines. Nor was he accused of condoning them or having knowledge of them. But he was convicted of responsibility and executed.

In a vigorous dissent to the decision, Mr. Justice Murphy wrote:

". . . In the sober afterglow will come the realization of the boundless and dangerous implications of the procedure sanctioned today . . . No one in a position of command in an army, from sergeant to general, can escape those implications. Indeed the fate of some future president of the United States and his chief of staff and military advisers may well have been sealed by this decision."

Charles L. Weltner, Torres' civilian attorney, said that "Torres chose this course to require the army to inquire into the true responsibility for My Lai."

Weltner said he would ask the court-martial hearing Torres' case to defer trial "until the army completes investigation of all those involved in the My Lai incident and decides where it is going to rest repsonsibility."

SMALLWOOD

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Joseph Smallwood said today he felt drug-pushers should be given life sentences—"and I mean for life."

Speaking in a radio interview here, the premier said: "I think I would forgive a man for committing murder sooner than I would forgive a man for selling drugs."

He said drug sellers should be "put away for life. I don't mean parole after three or four years. . . . You should be kept in jail for as long as you live."

'FALSE' COMPOUNDS USED IN EXPERIMENTS

Non-Addictive Tobacco Seen

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Experiments with opium poppy and ordinary tobacco show both may be made to grow as non-addictives, a scientist said today.

The discovery opens the possibility of a non-addictive morphine derived from opium and a cigarette that will stimulate but not "hook" or harm the smoker, reports Dr. Henry Rapoport, chemistry professor at the University of California at Berkeley.

"We fool the plants into doing the hard work," Rapoport said, describing how he plants "false" compounds that are similar to compounds the plants naturally produce themselves.

For example, the scientists synthesized nicotine with a deviant molecular structure, where a compound of one carbon and three hydrogen atoms replaced one hydrogen atom in one section of the molecule. Radioactive carbon-14 was hooked into the deviant structure, so the final product could be identified.

The "false" compounds are fed into the plant by putting them into water, then placing the plants into the water so that the compounds are absorbed through the plants' root systems, he said in an interview.

INCREASE COMPOUND

Once this is done, the amount of the "false" compound can be increased and the natural compound can be decreased, he said.

"What we are trying to do is give nature a different starting material . . . to make a close relative, a cousin" to natural compounds, Rapoport said.

The next step will be to develop chemical substitutes for morphine and nicotine that will be fed to the plants in the same way as the "false compounds."

"We hope we can develop something better than methadone," he added. Methadone, a totally synthetic chemical which is addictive too, is the only known cure for heroin addiction.

Rapoport's findings are detailed today in the journal of the American Chemical Society.

Russians in Dark About America

By STANLEY KARNOW

MOSCOW (WP) — One of the surprises for an American traveler crossing the vast breadth of the Soviet Union is apparently sophisticated Russians still clinging to old, warped, worn-out notions about the United States.

The discovery is a surprise because it contradicts the belief held in some western quarters that a creeping liberalism is gradually overtaking the Soviet Union.

What is gone, to be sure, is the hostility and suspicion shown towards Americans and other foreigners during the dark age of Stalinism. Even so, the enlightenment seems a long way off.

This is not to say that Russians are unfamiliar with the U.S. scene. On the contrary, they can identify members of the Nixon cabinet as well as Senator Fulbright, the astronauts, George Wallace and the Black Panthers. How many Americans, in contrast, can name the Soviet president?

DISCARDING CLICHES

But if Americans are ignorant about the Soviet Union, they are at least discarding the cold war cliches that once characterized their attitude towards Russia. The Russians, however, have yet to shuck off the stereotypes of the past.

As a consequence, though his Soviet hosts could not be more affable, the American traveler here repeatedly finds himself locked into conversations made hopelessly frustrating by the wildest kinds of dogmatic misinformation.

In a Siberian city the other day, for example, a pleasant, English-speaking Russian engineer had the Middle East situation all doped out: The United States supports Israel and "Zionist imperialism" because the Rockefellers are Jewish and, as everyone knows, they run America.

PRESS REPORT

At the core of his analysis, the engineer disclosed, was a Soviet press report on a visit by Gov. Rockefeller to a New York synagogue. Patient efforts to point out that you don't have to be Jewish to like rye bread failed to sway the Russians.

A pretty schoolteacher in another provincial town similarly asserted that President Nixon's decision to send U.S. troops in to Cambodia had been dictated by the "capitalist bosses" who, as Lenin wrote, make money from war.

Advised to look at the way the stock market plunged after the American intervention in Cambodia, the young lady was baffled for a moment. Then she asked: "What is the stock market?"

In still another place, a local editor confidently claimed that the United States has been helping the Chinese for years to develop advanced weapons designed to threaten the Soviet Union.

FLIMSY EVIDENCE

His evidence, the editor revealed, was the fact that several senior Chinese nuclear physicists and aerodynamics experts were educated at American universities and later sent back to China to build bombs and missiles.

An attempt to explain the deportation of one prominent Chinese scientist in the mid-1950's as a blunder by the FBI evoked a response that would have delighted J. Edgar Hoover. "Come now," the Russian editor said, "the FBI doesn't make mistakes."

Eventually, after hearing the inevitable references to Vietnam and, of course, "lynchings in the south," the traveler vows to avoid further talk about the United States and confine the discussion to the Soviet Union.

But here, the American also finds that Russians are often unable — or perhaps unwilling — to offer much information about Soviet policies and practice at home and abroad.

Many do not know, for instance, that Soviet agricultural setbacks have compelled the Kremlin to import wheat, or that Moscow has been seeking Japanese co-operation for joint development projects in Siberia.

LACK OF CURIOSITY

Moreover, confronted with these and other questions about the way the Soviet Union operates, many Russians seem to display a singular lack of curiosity. Asked to explain the serious shortage of consumer goods in the Soviet Union, for example, a journalist replied: "Ask an economist."

This passivity is matched by a tendency on the part of Russians to accept the official line as gospel. Not long ago, when a foreign visitor suggested to a Soviet doctor that the Communist Party newspaper, Pravda, had its limitations, the Russian said: "But if the truth is not in Pravda, where is the truth?"

Call for Blueprints

LIKE A SHIP OF STATE ON THE port tack, city council's "B" committee has now swung at least implied support to the Reid proposal for high-rise development on Wharf Street, following last week's decision by council's community development committee to press for purchase of the waterfront land involved, thus eliminating the project.

It should be understood that the overall Wharf Street rehabilitation program still stands as one of the best ever proposals to revivify the downtown area. But the particular project set up by the Reid interests — the first of what it was hoped will be many private proposals — has run into the civic metronome. Perhaps being the first caused it to be snapped at so eagerly by Victoria officials and spokesmen, and certainly it is an ambitious and exciting idea even though the hard details have never been pinned down.

A three-tower high-rise complex on the waterfront, with plaza, theatre, apartment and hotel accommodation is an exhilarating concept. The catch comes in consideration of the location — on the harbor front of a city which prides itself on its natural scenic surroundings, blocking the westward view, cutting off the city, in a sense, from its natural marine environment.

The understandable quandary of city council members arises basically from the fact that nobody really knows what he wants the city to become. Should the immediate Wharf Street waterfront be developed intensively in living accommodation, commercial structures, even industrial establishments? Or should the rocky banks become the basis for a green strip or parkland along the water's edge, a promenade of surpassing attraction for a community apparently destined to be one of the outstanding residential and tourist centres on the continent? Nobody knows yet; there is no long-range master plan. So the difficulties of deciding on a $25-million unit before its setting is determined obviously lead to flick-flack decision-making.

When building projects involved frame construction or even brick, there was still a chance to recoup mistakes without unbearable loss. But modern high-rise construction has a great deal more permanence. Once embarked on a program of such construction, particularly in the downtown area, Victoria's course will be set for the foreseeable future. Will the harbor be a place from which the city can look westward to the hills, or merely a viewpoint for tenants on the seaward side of a row of high-rises? Shall we open out to the sea, or shut ourselves in from it?

Admittedly some of the ambitious schemes of today require the high density rentals which only high-rises can provide on limited ground. But is our ground that limited? An astonishingly large part of Victoria's city centre is on the street level. Many a building has little but storage space on its second floor. It might not be an exaggeration to say that two and three-storey buildings could contain most of Victoria's city core activity for several generations to come — and with lots of breathing space and parking space between them.

Each week it becomes more evident that we need a master plan, an overall concept of what the city might look like thirty, sixty or a hundred years from now. And we can make it largely what we wish, for so much of it, and particularly the harbor area, is ready for the wreckers and the planners. But let us not put the first to work until the second have something permanent on paper.

An Ice Worm Cocktail

IN THE BIZARRE CASE OF A United States citizen accused of murder on a floating ice island somewhere off the coast of Ellesmere Island, Canada took a cautious course in not testing its national sovereignty by demanding trial of the man in a Canadian court. For almost two decades the United States has had a meteorological base on the ice mass which floats along the Alaskan Coast and through the Canadian Arctic.

Since the island was in Canadian waters when the alleged murder took place, it can be argued that any trial should be held before a Canadian court. Allowing the United States to try the case might be construed as a loss of sovereignty, since Canada lays claim to the Arctic archipelago.

But closer examination shows that the facts are only the tip of a legal iceberg. The ice-floe wanders with the Arctic winds — even close to the Alaskan coast — and the United States federal court considers the ice island an American ship. By international law a nation has jurisdiction over crimes that occur on its ships while on the high seas.

Perhaps the key term is high seas. Canada does not consider the Arctic waters between Canadian islands as the high seas. And international law is specific about a foreign ship entering the territorial waters of another nation. Any such ship falls under the laws of the nation in whose territorial waters it is sailing. Thus, since the alleged crime took place in Canadian waters, our courts should have exclusive jurisdiction.

Not so, according to international law. A nation has jurisdiction over a "public ship" — a warship or other ship operated by a national government — wherever it happens to be. Because the ice island was occupied and used by U.S. nationals working for their government, it might be legally called a public ship. Robert Service might have thrown up his hands and called the whole thing an "Ice Worm Cocktail", better left unsampled.

Test Ground in the Gulf

WIND, TIDE AND LUCK WILL be the main factors determining whether or not provincial seacoasts on the Gulf of St. Lawrence escape serious damage from oil floating on the water from the sunken barge, Irving Whale. It is encouraging, however, to learn from Transport Minister Don Jamieson that a task force is on the scene preparing to meet the threat.

Several devices have been invented in recent years to fight this form of pollution. None, at this point, furnishes a guarantee of complete success. The situation in the gulf should, nevertheless, supply a useful testing ground and an opportunity to improve on techniques and equipment.

The problem is not restricted to the Gulf of St. Lawrence or the Atlantic seaboard, where recent spills have occurred. It is one affecting seacoasts wherever oil is shipped by barge or tanker — and the prospect of very larger tankers plying the route southward from Alaska gives British Columbia a particular interest.

Since oil transportation by sea is going to be with us for some decades at least, and mainly in super-tankers, it is obvious that a major effort of science and technology should be under way already to devise means of combating spills at sea. And better still, improving methods of avoiding such accidents in the first place.

"... Havana ...? ... I'm sorry sir but this flight is already being hijacked to a Jordanian desert ..."

FROM TORONTO — By HAROLD GREER

Industrial Democracy Can Pay Off

THE Canadian Labor Congress, having resolved at its convention last spring that it is in favor of industrial democracy, now has a committee of labour theologians at work trying to discover just what it means. In labor no less than in religious matters, the Word becomes flesh only with the assistance of a certain amount of interpretation. Certainly the committee has a wide open field before it.

Greer

"Industrial Democracy" may be part of the litany of the trade union movement but it is a term without much practical tradition in this country, and the most casual inspection of the foreign literature, particularly that of Britain and Scandinavia, reveals it can be used to mean almost anything so long as it carries with it the general idea of more control for the workers in areas hitherto reserved as the rights and prerogatives of management.

This in itself, of course, is enough to raise hackles on the capitalists. But there are degrees of antagonism and the problem before the CLC committee is to come up with a concept of industrial democracy which may worry management yet not drive it up the wall.

There would seem to be no point, for example, in adopting a political concept in which "industrial democracy" is synonomous with doctinaire socialism and means, ultimately, the control of production and the management of industries by the workers. This approach has had a long and noble (or ignoble, depending on one's point of view) history in Britain and elsewhere.

Instructive

Foreign experience with one aspect of this political approach, however, does appear to be instructive — the representation of employees on a company's board of directors. This is often argued as the open sesame to industrial democracy but the record of instances where it has been tried would indicate otherwise. It has had an unhappy history even amongst the nationalized industries of Britain, Norway and Yugoslavia.

A research project conducted jointly by the Institute for Industrial Social Research in Trondheim and the Tavistock Institute of Human Relations in London reported in 1966:

"Looking at the behaviour of employee representatives on Norwegian boards, it becomes clear that although they legally share in the power of the Board, they find it very difficult to see how to use that power in ways that are in accord with the usual Board purposes and also make a direct impact on the working life of their constituents.

"The power of the Board relates to and is appropriately used for the economic prosperity of the firm. Most of the known and obvious ways of furthering the employees' interests at Board level involve an increase in labor costs, with no assurance of an off-setting economic gain for the company, or they involve interference in managerial execution of Board policy which a Board will be naturally reluctant to do."

Two-Hat Difficulty

The 'employee director', in short, finds himself trying to wear two hats and it can't be done. The possibilities of industrial democracy, the report concluded, are far more promising on the managerial rather than the board level because it is in the area of management, job operations and administration that the interests of the employees and the company are not necessarily antagonistic.

"Insofar as industrial democracy means more than extended negotiations and consultations," the report said, "then there is a need for some transfer of real managerial power to the employees. It is difficult indeed to see how this sharing can be started at the top at Board level. If democratic participation is to be a reality then it seems inevitable that this be started at a level where a large proportion of employees are both able and willing to participate."

The Tavistock Institute has been a leading advocate of what may be called, for the sake of convenience, the psychological approach to industrial democracy. This involves the relatively new field of work group dynamics and other esoterica, but essentially the thesis is that responsibility for and control over job performance and the co-ordination of jobs should be located as far as possible with the people directly engaged in the jobs — i.e., the workers themselves.

Stimulating Initiative

"The bulk of the scientific evidence," declares a Tavistock report, "suggests that the more the individual is enabled to exercise control over his task, and to relate his efforts to those of his fellows, the more likely is he to accept a positive commitment, releasing that personal initiative and creativity which is the basis of a democratic climate."

The key to the system is the creation of autonomous work groups with the authority and opportunity — within very wide limits, of course — to design their own job performance system. Instead of being alienated automatons, workers would determine their own pace and style of work and set their own targets.

It is a fair guess that the Canadian Labor Congress, in defining its concept of industrial democracy, will be proceeding along these lines of democratization of the work-place, not only because it is a relatively simple enlargement of the scope of working conditions now subject to collective bargaining, but because enlightened management will be able to see, or can be shown, that it is in its own interest to agree.

This is not to say that it will come easily, or that job democracy is compatible with the dominant trends of modern industry. On the contrary, it is a radical concept quite at odds with the autocratic "machine theory" of organization so prevalent in engineering design and development, wherein technological solutions are favored which involve evermore fragmentation of work into dehumanized, robot operations and the external supervision of workers. But the democratic sharing of managerial power at the level of the work-place has the great advantage, apparently, of being profitable.

In short, it pays off, which is a powerful incentive for overcoming old-fashioned prejudices about management rights and perogatives.

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

Big Fleas, Little Fleas and Taxpayers

THE view that government has peculiar credentials as a critic of the advertising industry is supported daily by the remarkable outpourings of federal departments.

A most interesting case in point is the latest issue of news from the Canada Department of Agriculture (Hon. H. A. Olson, minister — S. B. Williams, deputy minister) which contains a lengthy article on pig sties, homes and fleas.

Western

On the subject of fleas, Canadians may be divided generally into two groups. For a specialized elite, they are well regarded as a fascinating challenge to research. Other Canadians, viewing them with detachment or irritation, react to their presence with a spray bottle.

The concern of the department in this case is manifestly not with the specialists. As the article explains, the findings of Dr. George Holland have already been reported in a 150-page illustrated paperback published by the entomological society of Canada. We may reasonably conclude, therefore, that the nation's entomologists are up to date on the subject and will gain nothing by starting from scratch with a popularized account.

It follows that the message must be intended for laymen, specifically for farmers. How then will it help them in their daily tasks? What, of lasting value, is offered to the farm tax-payer?

We learn, first, that "in the eyes of the lowly flea, pig sties are sometimes preferable to poorly-kept households." Some fleas are fussier than other fleas. Where do we go from here?

Travel Bug

Almost anywhere apparently. The next point of interest is that fleas, victims of the travel bug, have followed man and pigs to the ends of the earth. "The common denominator for the so-called human flea appears to be pigs and humans." Some denominators are more complacent about this than other denominators.

Dr. Holland, working "almost as a hobby," did his latest research in New Guinea. There he increased the list of known flea species in the island from 30 to 58; was able to describe the hitherto unknown males of three species and the females of another three. About half the New Guinea fleas, he suspects, remain uncatalogued.

Suspense

From the modern South Pacific fleas, we move back to their evolutionary ancestors. They originated in Australia where none of these species now exist. The New Guinea development "was probably associated with multiple invasions of the Australian region by murid rodents from Asia by island-hopping through the East Indies, the earliest migration occurring in the Miocene age."

This was not the end of the hitch-hiking. "The human and cat flea owe their presence to invasion of the region by man, accompanied by his pigs and dogs." This occurred in Pleistocene times and they have been living happily in New Guinea ever since, except when they appear sporadically across Canada in association with pigs and man.

Apart from minor additional details, this sums up the word from the department. What is the significance of this information for the practical farmer?

Questions, Questions

Is the department suggesting, in a tactful way, that he shoot his pigs? If not, are they to be encouraged to co-exist with their friends or discouraged? In the later case, how?

Or is there a between-the-lines message a warning that the farmer should avoid hitch-hikers, or island-hopping, or New Guinea? Does the department have reason to fear a mass migration of farmers to that tropical flea paradise?

The more plausible explanation is that the department has no message whatever to convey to the farmers. What it is doing is to advertise its good words, which are infinite in their variety. If Mr. Basford has in mind further phillipics on this subject, he would be well advised to have a quiet word first with Mr. Olson. Something about glass houses might do as a conversational starter.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"HI, THERE! IT'S ME AGAIN!"

Looking Back

From the Times of September 10, 1910:

Winnipeg — "I want to see British seamen on the British Columbia coast, and I want to see the advantages now being derived by American, Japanese and Chinese taken hold by men of our own race." A visit to the British Columbia coast has impressed this firmly on the mind of Sir George Loughty, the head of the greatest British sea fishery in existence. He proposes to use all the influence he possesses to get more British control over British Columbia fisheries.

Letters

Doctor's Pay

As a none-too-bright layman, I'd like to answer the letter signed "Cynical" in the September 2 Times. He called the letters written by several doctors in regard to the published statement by B.C. Medical "Self-justificatory" and "pathetic" and wanted an "explanation" from doctors in the highest income bracket.

Who are you "Cynical", to demand an explanation of any man's wages? I for one do not begrudge them one penny of what they earn and would be the last to complain if they charged twice as much and paid out half the overhead. There are very few doctors in this city or any other not completely dedicated to helping their fellow human beings, who give up their personal life to aid those who need them. There is something very special about a man who is willing to spend years of his life in school learning his trade, then spend the rest of his life keeping up with new treatments and drugs so his patients will get the best; a person who must know and understand the mental as well as the physical makeup of his patients.

I can't see any reason for the publication of the B.C. Medical statement in the first place. It was not only an invasion of privacy, but showed total lack of regard for the medical profession as private citizens.—Pat Martens, 495 Tribune.

"Can Only Get Worse"

Very disappointed — even somewhat depressed — by Jack Scott's review of "Woodstock" the other day.

The tone of the review was petulant, angry; it smacked of the sort of bitter anxiety that keeps so many people in their middle age in our culture ready to slap out at the bizarre advance of our technology-propelled youth.

"Woodstock" was over-long, but reflected an aspect of the 18-30 generation's life and particular orientation — albeit, in a highly concentrated, spectacular fashion.

In rejecting "Woodstock," Jack Scott has rejected what much of an entire generation has embraced. Too bad: things can only get worse, Jack. —E. Littleton, High School Teacher, Port Alberni.

Healers

I would be grateful if you would allow me space to record my appreciation to Doctors D. R. Horton and M. J. MacKay and the nursing staff of the Royal Jubilee hospital.

I was on holiday in Canada during July and August and whilst there became ill and underwent an operation in Royal Jubilee hospital. The treatment I received was excellent, and furthermore Doctors D. R. Horton and M. J. MacKay waived their fees, which was an extremely generous act which I will long remember. I am now on the way to complete recovery, thanks to the second-to-none care and attention which I received. — A. McGarrigle (Mr.) 8 Almo Place, Londonderry, N. Ireland.

A Businessman Says 'No' To South Africa

London Observer

Neil Wates, managing director of Wates Ltd., one of Britain's biggest building firms, has refused to extend his operations to South Africa because, he says, "the idea of doing business in South Africa is totally unacceptable; we could not be true to the basic principles on which we run our business and we should lose our integrity in the process."

In January this year, his firm received an invitation from a firm of South African developers to franchise the Wates System of industrial building to them. Wates turned the invitation down because the directors did not wish to work in the atmosphere of apartheid.

The South African firm replied that Wates had been misled by hostile propaganda and that it could not take such a decision 7,000 miles away.

As a result, Wates agreed to go out to South Africa to look at the situation at first hand.

He returned to Britain more convinced than ever that the franchise should not be granted. Wates, who is anxious to make clear that his own assessment does not commit his colleagues, has given his reasons in a long personal report, which is bound to have repercussions throughout the business world. Here are some extracts from it:—

"We should have to operate within a social climate where the color of a man's skin is his most important attribute and where there is virtually no communication between the races; we should be locked into this system. We should have to operate within an economic climate which is designed deliberately to demoralize and to maintain an industrial helotry; we should, in turn, profit from such exploitation and ultimately end up with a vested interest in its maintenance.

"We should have to operate within a legal climate where the rule of law has been abolished in favor of rule by decree, which bids fair to become a reign of terror.

"The cumulative effect of all these factors in the long term must be self-defeating; within the short term it must make it impossible for ourselves individually, or as a company, to connive at anything which would serve to perpetuate a system which in the last analysis has no other justification than the preservation of white supremacy as an end in itself.

"To analyse each of my points in a little more detail. . .

1. There is virtually no communication between the races. In the first place there is very little physical contact—"non-European" park seats, bus-stops, airport entrances, lavatories, taxis, buses, etc., etc., (the duplication of services would be absurd if it were not often tragic; witness the collapse of a grossly overloaded non-European footbridge over a railway, causing the death of many Africans, while the adjoining "white only bridge" was empty).

"In the second place there is very little social contact; white and non-white cannot sit in the same office, eat in the same public place and enjoy simultaneously the same cultural or physical recreations. Of course, a white can invite a non-white to his house — but it would be fraught with difficulties. In the first place his servants — not to mention his neighbors — would raise their eyebrows; in the second place, unless the African had his own transport the white could not run him home at the end of the evening without a permit. It would, of course, be illegal for the African to stay the night.

"Above all — following the Improper Interference Act 1968 — whites and non-whites cannot attend the same political meetings or join the same party.

"As visitors we found it almost impossible to talk to Africans and we have the usual absurd stories about 'them' from our fellow whites — their ignorance, their criminality, their immorality, etc., etc. For contact with the African we had to wait until we visited Zambia where Africans were obtaining levels of responsibility and acquiring skills which would have frankly astonished the story-tellers in South Africa.

2. A scandalous under-utilization of human abilities. The policy of reserving key jobs for whites virtually means that 3,600,000 whites must provide the entire management capability and key skills for a population of over 19 million. The real scandal lies in the fact that all the real job opportunities one can see being grasped by Africans both in supervisory management and in the area of technical skills in a country like Zambia are totally denied to them in South Africa. It is impossible to say how many first-class minds are doing the most menial jobs and it is, of course, impossible to measure the waste of ability.

"The theory of separate development is plainly nonsense, all the time the whites depend on the blacks for their industrial manpower—and of course there can be no meaningful development in the homelands where most of the blacks are working in white areas. Only 8.7 per cent of employed Africans are in the homelands — whilst over one-third live in the homelands but work away from home on annual contracts. This self defeating policy prohibits and prospect of career development for them let alone the building up of any loyalty to the company and reduces the non-white to the level of a 'Labor Unit'."

3. A climate designed to demoralize and maintain an industrial helotry. White industry needs African labor: but each one of those Africans must have a permit to "work, live and be." It is true that he can establish certain residential qualification to live in a township — if, for example, he has worked any area for 15 years, or 10 years in the same job. But he may not necessarily be able to live with his wife — he certainly cannot invite a friend for the night without permission, and he is liable to lose all his rights if he is found to be "idle and undesirable." Whereupon he will find himself sent to a "homeland" which means nothing to him.

"It is battleground of world problem'

"What he needs, of course, is a home and not a government fabricated myth of a homeland. What he gets is life in a transit camp without property, political, and precious few legal rights. So far from being a protector, the law is seen as a persecutor; incredibly 943,000 people were convicted of offences in 1968, 674,000 were admitted to prison during that year and the average daily prison population was 80,000.

"Since it is virtually impossible not to break the law in a small way each day, major and minor offences become blurred and respect for the law goes to the wall.

"It is small wonder that there is virtually a reign of terror in the native townships by night; in Soweto, the average number of murders on the peak night of the week is seven; nobody knows how much unreported crime of violence takes place—but then none of this would be obvious to the superficial white observer.

"It is no defence to point out the undeniable truth that the black South Africans are better off than blacks in any other country in the world; the important factor is their relative well-being to their white fellow citizens; the Africans constitute 68 per cent of the population, but their share of the national cash income is 19 per cent—whereas the white constitute 19 per cent and their share of the cash income is 73 per cent.

4. The rule of law has been abolished. If there is a physical reign of terror in the townships, all the ingredients are there for a legal reign of terror within the country.

"In South Africa, under the 1967 Terrorism Act (which created new offences and made them retrospective to 1962) it is explicitly stated that 'no Court shall pronounce on the validity of any action for the release of a detainee under this Act.' Under the Bantu Administration Act the President is supreme and his actions cannot be challenged in respect of the African right to remain, reside or work in certain areas. With the Suppression of Communism Act 1967, which virtually says you are a Communist if the Minister says so, there are wide powers to arrest, together with the right to bar Counsel — and if you obtain your discharge under this Act you can simply be rearrested in open Court and detained sine die under the Terrorism Act.

"Clearly the Terrorism Act is itself an act of terror; in accepting the security of the State, rather than that of the individual as the over-riding consideration, the rule of law has been abolished and a potential reign of terror through rule by decree has been established. It is true this is currently mainly directed against the black, but it is already beginning to be used against the white and must ultimately prove self-defeating.

"I travelled South Africa hoping that I would find good reasons for doing business there; privately I had always considered critics of South Africa to be shrill and emotional—to whom everything black was good and everything white was bad. But the parallel between Hitler's treatment of the Jews in the 1930s and South Africa's treatment of the blacks today, became daily more obvious to me in the course of my visit and was brought home most vividly when I saw blacks being literally herded like cattle through the Bantu Administration Courts.

Just as I think with hindsight it would have been totally wrong to do anything to connive at Nazism in those days, so also do I think we should do nothing that would help to perpetuate apartheid.

"I was frequently pressed in South Africa to say whether we were looking at it as a business or an ethical problem: there can of course be no difference.

"During the course of my visit I came to see more clearly how South Africa is the battleground for the major issue which threatens the world, including within it of course the world of business—the problem of race. There is a direct confrontation in South Africa and another confrontation in the United States — and increasingly in this country.

"It is crucial that as individuals and as a company we make our stand known and play our part in promoting a non-racial world."

Journalism in Poor Shape for Its Testing

By TOM GOULD

(A former Times reporter, Gould now is director of public events for the CTV network. He wrote this article for the International Press Journal.)

Journalism in North America is under attack. It is rapidly losing credibility, its bedrock of public confidence, without which it is just another shrill voice shouting rumor on the wind.

The critics are not minor-league politicians trying to get their names in the paper the easy way. They are Spiro Agnew and Senator Eugene McCarthy, Pierre Trudeau and Keith Davey.

Journalism in all its forms is being scrutinized—by institutions and individuals—and the starting point for all this analysis is the assumption that something is wrong with the news media.

●

Journalists have responded to the criticism with reflexive outrage. Those of us who pursue the craft of reporting have been brushing aside our critics for so long it has become habit.

We recite the ancient litany, ". . . the public's right to know," and we have failed to recognize how serious is the threat to that vital right and to our freedom.

North America is experiencing the beginnings of a middle-class revolt against dissent and more particularly the manifestations of dissent — riots, demonstrations, marches and Molotov cocktails.

History tells us that in times like these free institutions are trampled under in a blind, lurching search for stability and security. Witness the public support in the U.S. for the police riot in Chicago. Witness the bylaw recently passed by the city council of Montreal that outlaws demonstrations.

Journalism in North America is about to undergo as serious a test as it has ever encountered. And it is in poor shape for the contest.

We are not performing to the satisfaction of the community. When other institutions in the community perform badly the community takes corrective measures. When governments, industries or trade unions fail to perform as they should, the community brings them to heel.

But to take repressive measures against journalism is far more serious, for it strikes at the foundations of our political structure.

It has been said so often it's a bore, but it's a fact: "There cannot be a free society if there is not a free press." Legislative control of any form of journalistic expression destroys the substance of democracy.

If journalists in Canada and the United States, two of the freest societies ever created by man, are to avoid intimidation or, ultimately, legislative controls —the inevitable political response to widespread public dissatisfaction —they must be willing to listen to and act upon legitimate criticism.

And you don't have to probe too deeply to find things to be critical about.

This is the hey-day of the mission-oriented reporter. The mission-oriented reporter knows what he wants to write before he leaves the newspaper office or the television station; it's simply a case of finding the right set of facts to illustrate his point of view.

Like a lot of other reporters, I was brought up in newspapers where every possible effort was made to keep opinion off the news pages. The editorial page was reserved for the views of the paper.

As a young reporter I rebelled against the distinction. Most of us did. We persisted in the belief that we had to say something.

When I moved into television, I found the same thing. Television journalists become quite caught up in, almost intoxicated by, the power of the medium and its capacity to arouse emotions.

We have other faults, of course. We thrive on conflict, and create it where it is non-existent, by describing events in the vernacular of the boxing ring—"he charged" ". . . he ripped into" ". . . slashing attack" ". . . a verbal slugfest."

Our human resources have not grown to meet the complexity of our environment, nor have we learned to utilize fully the technology available to us today for the gathering and distribution of news.

We make assessments on the flimsiest evidence—today's journalist, sent hurtling through the night on the first available Boeing 707, is expected to be an instant expert, often sending home his first report, or film, when he arrives at a distant airport.

But our greatest failing is our penchant for making judgments.

Many newspaper editors have recognized the danger and opened their pages to a wide range of opinions. They balance off their own prejudices with the prejudices of others. What results is column after column of opinion crowding out factual reportage.

Television journalism is groping with the tyranny of the stopwatch. Brief, superficial reports are crammed into a limited number of minutes. Cameramen, reporters and editors all seek good visual material, and when it isn't available they often shape the story to fit the film they have.

Television journalism offers a thousand technical temptations to those who believe that it doesn't matter what comes out the tube "as long as it's good television." Rather than grapple with the inherent distortions of the visual medium, they use techniques to distort reality still further.

Objectivity, of course, is an illusion. But too many journalists have ceased striving to grasp that illusion. Punditry is less work than digging out the truth.

It is one of journalism's primary functions to seek out and hold up for display society's warts, trusting in the collective wisdom of the society to demand their removal. No amount of soul-searching, no amount of intimidation should sway us from that purpose.

We will never be loved for it, but if journalists rededicate themselves to the search for truth, and thus maintain the respect of the community, journalism will be in a better position to deter those who believe that repression is the solution to discontent.

'The Groom and I . . .'

By RUSSELL BAKER

LONDON — One field in which the oppression of women has been healthy for the common good is the newspaper column. Here the rule that a woman must be at least twice as good as a competing man to get the job they both want has spared the reading public at least a modicum of twaddle.

The rare woman who succeeds with a newspaper column is so extraordinarily good that, unlike her male competitor who prospers on smaller ability, she never seems obliged on days when her brain is marking time to fill space with material about her pets, her family or her household.

This is probably because, being a woman, she would never have reached such solemn estate unless she had the kind of brain that did not need to mark time. In any case, the idea of a Dorothy Thompson, Anne O'Hare McCormick or Doris Fleeson in arch prolixity about crabgrass or their dogs' inner wisdom would have been inconceivable.

Not so with the men. The Association of American Newspaper Columnists is packed with men who would be powerless to place a word on paper if they had not provided themselves with families to write about. It is said that you can always tell when one of these fellows is over the hill; the signal is publication of his first column about his dog.

If true there is scarcely one, among the men at least, who is not far gone into decline. Many, in fact, after years of vigorous animal phobia, buy dogs late in life so that they will have something to write about on a desperate day.

A desperate day for one of these men is one on which there is nothing to write about his wife, a truly oppressed creature who is invariably referred to in print as "the little lady," "the bride," "the better half," or in similar coynesses.

Until now the women columists have been too good a breed, thanks to the harsh tests they have had to pass, to require resort to piffle. The excellence we have come to associate with seeing a woman's name over a newspaper column seems certain to pass, however, as the demands of the women's liberation movement are won with increasing ease.

Newsweek has already promised to start judging editorial talent by a single standard, regardless of sex. This can only mean that very soon the women who write newspaper columns will be just as numerous, and not a bit more talented, than the men.

How depressing to imagine all the desperate-day columns ahead. Example:

"As this column was looking unsuccessfully for the freshly cleaned plum midi that our better half was supposed to have collected from the dry cleaner day before yesterday, we noted that the little gentleman was wearing that look which distinguished the masculine mind trying to conceal a guilty secret.

"All right," we said. "We know that look from too many times in the past when you forgot to pick up my drycleaning. What does it mean this time?"

"It means that on the way to the dry cleaners," he said, "I happened to stop off at the barbershop. There was a group of the boys there and everybody was angry about the difficulty of getting tickets for the professional football games, and . . ."

"And," we said, "you got so mad you forgot all about picking up my dress from the cleaner."

"Yes," conceded our groom, "but if you women realized how furious it makes us not to be able to buy football tickets, maybe you'd be building a little fire under the President about what we want for a change instead of always worrying about Asia."

★ ★ ★

"A trivial household chat between this column and the good husband? Maybe, but the President would err gravely if he took a cavalier attitude when millions of American house-husbands gathering in the barber shop and supermarket . . ."

Or, on truly desperate days:

"Sometimes the nation's welfare demands that a woman change her focus from the great baffling issues such as Asia, the Pentagon and the Republican party, and look at the world as the creatures closer to nature see it. As her pet parakeet sees it, for example. Not a world composed of great baffling issues, but a world rich in the little eternal verities. Case wire, for example. Birdseed . . ."

New Building System Will Slash Home Cost

By AB KENT
Times Staff

PORTLAND, Ore. — A building system that could trim $8,000 from the cost of a typical North American bungalow was shown Tuesday to 90 British Columbians and building inspectors from across the U.S.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said he sees an immediate application of the development to help cut the high cost of school, hospital and institutional construction in B.C.

But since local authorities are autonomous in the approval of building codes, it may be some time before the system is used to help fill the housing gap in this province.

The system involves the use of rigid panels made from gypsum board or plywood to replace conventional 2 by 4 and 2 by 6 frame studding, floor and ceiling joists.

The panels have superior strength and insulation characteristics and have been approved for Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. purposes in Canada and by the Federal Housing Authority in the U.S.

A crew of two or three men can erect all interior and exterior walls for a conventional size home in three hours, a spokesman said during a demonstration at the Hotel Hilton arranged by F. W. R. Systems Inc., wholly-owned subsidiary of Vancouver-based Richwood Industries Ltd.

Richwood flew a representative group of B.C. business and financial men, reporters, Campbell and Minister Without Portfolio Grace McCarthy by chartered jet to Portland Tuesday morning to see a mobile factory for making panel sections.

Present for their annual convention in the Hilton were about 500 delegates of the International Conference of Building Officials, which has a research committee studying the panel system and its application to North American construction.

ON THE SITE

The mobile factory, mounted on a semi-trailer for easy highway transport, is designed to turn out sections on the site of multiple-house projects at a great saving in time and labor, which is estimated by Charles Sullivan to be from one third to two thirds of the cost of construction.

Sullivan is vice-president of architecture for the consulting engineering firm of Daniel Mann, Johnson and Mendenhall (DMJM), which completed a study of systems building for the U.S. government.

His company assisted in development of the mobile factory, which uses techniques of the aerospace industry to turn out electronically cured panels.

HONEYCOMB

Heart of the system, invented by A. Lynn Castle, a San Diego contractor, and Robert L. Timbrook, a Vista, Calif., architect, is a honeycomb of kraft paper, glued by a strong plastic resin between two sheets of material such as gypsum board and mounted on 2 by 4 plates.

Completed 4 by 8 panels are keyed together to form walls ready to take exterior siding on one side, paint or decorative panelling inside.

The "key" section, about one foot wide, is inserted between two panels butted together, then fixed in place using the same high strength resin glue. Any combination of panels may be arranged, said Sullivan, in much the same way as conventional houses are designed.

Honeycomb panels are strong enough to support the whole weight of a house when used for floor sections, without the use of joists. Others may be used for roofing.

Castle, who with Timbrook was on hand for the demonstration, said he and his partner began work on the idea about 4½ years ago, spending some $500,000 in development before licensing Richwood to produce panels.

Richwood, through FWR Systems, has spent about $400,000 in further research and development, including the mobile factory.

The Vancouver company, whose president is Lewis Dillman, is on the interim listing at Vancouver Stock Exchange and has filed with the U.S. Securities Exchange Commission for a public offering of 500,000 shares.

Ford Pinto Price $172 Below Vega

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. announced Wednesday its sub-compact car, Pinto, will sell for $1,919, $172 less than the price announced for the Chevrolet Vega Tuesday and only $80 more than the price of the basic 1970 Volkswagen beetle.

The announcement of a $2,091 suggested retail price for the Vega caught most industry observers off guard, since it had been expected that the car would sell for less than $2,000. The price of the Pinto is slightly lower than most experts had predicted.

The 1970 Volkswagen, the car the Detroit mini-cars were primarily created to challenge, sells for $1,839.

Ford also announced Wednesday that the 1971 price of its compact, Maverick, would be $2,175, up nine per cent from the $1,995 price for 1970 models.

Zeller's

Zeller's Ltd. reports a sales increase of 4.5 per cent and net income up by 7.3 per cent for the six months ending July, 1970.

Sales were $70 million for the first half of the fiscal year, which represents as increase in volume of $3 million or 4.5 per cent over the comparable period in 1969. Net income for the period was $1.68 million which was equal, after payment of preferred dividends, to 13 cents a common share against 12 cents a share one year ago.

Calona

Calona Wines Ltd. and its subsidiaries report a 44-per-cent gain in net income for the six months ended June 30, based on a 20-per-cent rise in sales.

Sales amounted to $1.74 million against $1.5 million and net earnings were $293,379 compared with $216,902 before taxes, or $155,664 and $107,837 after taxes.

Cost of sales rose along with administration expenses, but depreciation dropped slightly.

Polaris

Polaris Mines Ltd. said it has completed ground magnetometer and geochemical surveys on the Ron group of eight copper claims located in the Nicola mining division, eight miles northwest of Merritt, and directly north of the Craigmont mine.

They disclose anomalous areas of considerable size.

Canadian Dollar Still Rides High

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal government officials believe the international strength of the Canadian dollar will continue longer than originally expected.

It was heavy demand for Canadian dollars from foreign purchasers of Canadian goods that forced the government to free it from its International Monetary Fund peg of 92.5 U.S. cents June 1.

While Finance Minister Edgar Benson would give no firm indication when Canada might return to a fixed exchange rate, officials then said the dollar might find its own international level on a more or less stable basis by the end of the year.

But demand for Canadian dollars to pay for heavy exports, principally to overseas markets, is continuing.

The IMF annual meeting opens in Copenhagen Sept. 21, and the Canadian dollar continues to ride high. There now seems no likelihood of a new peg being set for it within the next 10 days, and perhaps not before the year-end.

When it was first set free, the dollar rose to about 96 U.S. cents, and lately to about 98 cents. It closed on the New York foreign exchange market Wednesday at 98 27-64.

Technically, under IMF procedures, Canada is violating the rules by not using its international exchange resources to hold the dollar withing one per cent of 92.5 cents. While that peg continues as Canada's official exchange rate, it is being ignored.

The IMF has no power to condone such action, and Benson will have to defend the Canadian position at the Copenhagen meeting. He is expected to explain that Canada had to unpeg the dollar or borrow huge sums from the public to keep the dollar below its free-market price. The latter course would be inflationary at a time when the government is fighting inflation.

U.S. Using Protectionist Tactics With Import Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is vigorously enforcing a 49-year-old import duty law to prevent foreign manufacturers from dumping their products on the U.S. market.

Some Japanese and other foreign businessmen see the action as evidence of a return to a protectionist U.S. trade policy. Administration officials deny the charge.

The Anti-dumping Act of 1921 provides for penalty duties against foreign goods found to be damaging U.S. trade by being dumped on the U.S. market at lower prices than in home markets.

For example, an item sold for $90 in the United States and $100 in its home markets would be charged a $10 duty.

The Administration has begun to enforce the law vigorously—partly in response to prodding from a protectionist-minded Congress—after a period of sporadic enforcement dating back to the early 1950s.

The number of enforcers has grown from five to 14 since president Nixon took office. Backlogs of complaints dating to 1968 are being cleared out.

NO LONGER BELIEVED

A foreign manufacturer's word that he will charge fair prices in the future is no longer sufficient to halt a full-scale dumping investigation.

Two weeks ago the treasury department began the biggest anti-dumping action in the history of the statute—a formal investigation of alleged dumping of Japanese television sets, a multi-million-dollar import business.

The Japanese government has expressed concern. American businessmen, lured by the prospect of slowing increasingly competitive foreign producers, have expressed interest. Their inquiries have tripled, and the customs bureau expects soon an increase in formal dumping complaints.

The treasury department has under consideration more than 30 dumping complaints, involving Japanese loudspeakers, Japanese and other foreign glass products, pig iron from Canada, West Germany and Finland, and large electrical generators from six nations — France, Italy, Japan, Switzerland, Sweden and Britain.

Constitution Committee Begins Tour

By BOB DOUGLAS

OTTAWA (CP) — The joint parliamentary committee on the constitution sets out today on an eight-day tour of Manitoba, now celebrating its centenary, and the Yukon.

The committee, at public meetings in seven centres, will hear prepared briefs and other views on the Canadian constitution.

The hearings, the first outside Ottawa, begin tonight in Winnipeg. Stops are planned also at Brandon, St. Boniface, Churchill and Thompson, all in Manitoba, and the Yukon centres of Whitehorse, Dawson and Watson Lake.

The joint committee was set up in January by the Senate and the Commons to examine government proposals on the constitution during the current constitutional review and outside opinions.

Meetings here in June heard evidence from government constitutional experts. The committee is slated to complete its work by November, 1971.

WANT MORE INTEREST

The public meetings across the country are designed to stimulate interest in the constitutional discussions. Trips to other parts of the country are planned later.

Committee members say the Northwest Territories are not included in this trip because the committee does not want to be accused of interfering in local politics. Elections for the territorial council are to be held Dec. 21.

Mayor Stephen Juba of Winnipeg and Jack Willis, chairman of Metropolitan Winnipeg council, will present briefs tonight.

Other groups expected to appear in Winnipeg tonight and Friday are the Ukrainian Canadian Committee, the Canadian ethnic press, the Canadian League of Rights, the institute of urban studies of the University of Winnipeg, the Manitoba Metis Federation and the Manitoba Indian Federation and the Jaycee units of Metropolitan Winnipeg.

The committee will visit Brandon Saturday and St. Boniface Sunday before leaving Monday for Thompson and Whitehorse.

The committee will go to Dawson City Tuesday and Watson Lake Wednesday.

Martin Named Gallery Head

OTTAWA (CP) — Joseph Martin, 48, an editor with the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism until early this year, Wednesday was named assistant director of the National Gallery of Canada.

Mr. Martin, a native of La Malbaie, Que., will be responsible for the art gallery's travelling exhibits in Canada and international exhibitions.

He did graduate studies at the Sorbonne in 16th century French and Italian architectural theory. He took a master's degree in sociology at Laval University, Quebec City, majoring in urban sociology and town planning.

He has worked at the National Gallery since early this year as curatorial administrator.

Giant Tanker Abandoned After Collision

LONDON (Reuters) — The crew of the giant 100,000-ton tanker Aquarius was reported to have abandoned ship today after a collision with a Russian vessel off the coast of Muscat and Oman.

A distress signal from th Russian ship, the 9,547-ton Svetlogorsk, asked all ships in the area to assist her, Lloyds shipping agents said.

The reports said the Liberian-registered vessel was on fire and sinking. At least one seaman is missing.

The Aquarius is owned by the Cyrus Tanker Corp. of Monrovia, Liberia.

All new and low-priced, too!
Mercury has a brand new little car for you this year. It has everything you expect a little car to have including a low price, and more! We call them better ideas.

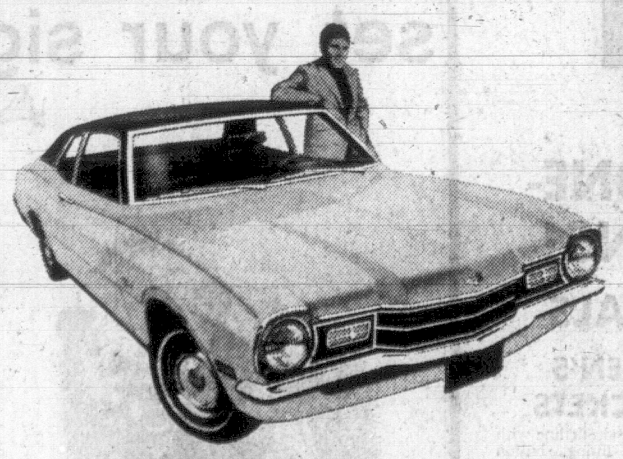

See fewer gas pumps. Thrifty little better idea!
New Mercury Comet saves you money on running costs. Average driving should give you mileage that rivals many imports. This means you won't be seeing your favourite service station man so often. Why not send him a card to say "Hello".

New Mercury Comet is the first little car to offer you a choice between three frugal six cylinder engines and a performance proven V-8. The V-8 is quite something in a car this size. Let's just say six or V-8, it's an experience!

Look, no cramps! Roomy little better idea!
New Mercury Comet presents you with a choice between four doors or two. If you choose the 2-door model, four adults can ride in comfort. Select the slightly larger 4-door model and there's room for one more adult. If you have a big family and you also want a little car . . . try a Comet on for size.

When it comes to service... Cunning little better idea!
First of all, there are many minor maintenance procedures you can do yourself and there's a booklet available to give you tips. When you do take it in for service, you'll find we've made Comet as simple as we can for maintenance. This is one car your wife won't mind taking in to the dealership for you. How's that for a time saver!

It parks in tight places. Nice little better idea!
On every street; in every parking lot; there always seems to be a spot that's too small for the big cars. Wheel Comet right in. It makes you feel good. Makes your wife feel good, too!

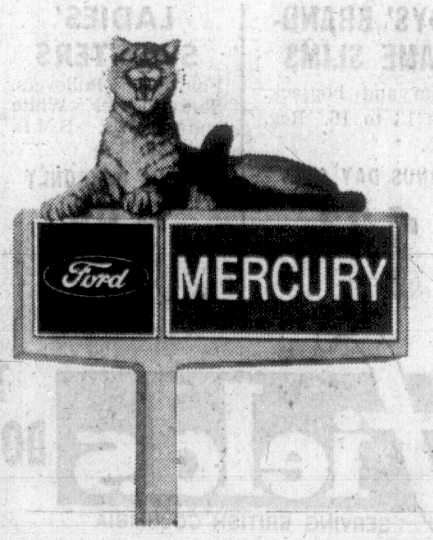

Little car, big trunk! Handy little better idea!
New Mercury Comet has a family-sized trunk. It will carry more bags, picnic hampers, etc. than most little cars. This might not seem like much of an advantage when you're commuting to the office . . . but just wait 'til your wife wants to go shopping. The goodies go in the trunk where they belong. Not in the back seat where people belong.

Little but luxurious. Convenient little better ideas!

Ferry 'Blocked By Fish Boat' At Collision

VANCOUVER (CP) — Captain James Pollock of the British Columbia ferry Queen of Victoria testified Wednesday that he could not move his ship farther to the right before its collision with a Russian freighter because of a fishing boat off his starboard bow.

Under cross-examination, Pollock, 57, said the seine boat was on his starboard side "right up to the moment of collision."

He was testifying at the 14th day of a federal inquiry into the Aug. 2 collision between the Queen of Victoria and the freighter Sergy Yesenin in Active Pass. Three ferry passengers were killed.

Questioned by D. B. Smith, counsel for the Yesenin's master, Capt. Nikolai Knaustov, the ferry skipper said that shortly before the collision, near the western mouth of the Z-shaped pass, he had ordered his helmsman to turn 10 degrees to starboard.

He said the ferry was going slow ahead at that moment. Smith asked why we did not put the vessel full speed ahead to try to clear it from the freighter's path faster.

★ ★ ★

"If I was to go full ahead I would likely have gone up on the beach. I would have exposed my whole port side to the frieghter and probably would have been cut in half."

As it was, his starboard order was almost immediately followed by a hard-aport manoeuvre which he has said was aimed at bringing the vessels parallel to "minimize" the effects of a collision.

When Smith suggested there was room in a bay to the ferry's starboard that would have permitted the move without beaching, Pollock replied:

"As we say, there's plenty of water around but not very deep."

Smith questioned him on published excerpts from a tape recorded interview with a CBC broadcaster, Allan Anderson of Toronto. The interview took place on the bridge of the ferry about half an hour after the crash.

Smith pointed out that Pollock was quoted in the interview as saying he could not move farther to starboard.

"Yes, I said that," Pollock replied. "The seine boat was on my starboard bow and I couldn't go over any farther without running him down."

But he emphasized that the ferry was travelling to the starboard side of the middle of the channel — on the side it should be on.

He admitted under cross-examination the ferry was travelling to port of the "normal" course through the pass "by a matter of about four degrees" — again because of the presence of the unidentified seine boat.

Pollock said his estimate of how far the ferry was off normal course was based on his sighting of landmarks. He said he did not look at the ship's compass during the time he was on the bridge in Active Pass.

The ferry skipper also said he was unable to communicate with the Russian ship with the radio equipment on his vessel.

The ferry's equipment is channelled on 2182 kilocycles — a distress radio band. Unless the freighter turned to that band, it would not have heard the ferry's signals.

Pollock said it was his experience that foreign vessels, which regularly use the channel en route to Vancouver, do not tune to the 2182 band.

Pollock testified that his first officer, Zale Kirron, was at the controls of the ferry before the freighter was sighted. The captain took control after that.

★ ★ ★

He said that at one point Kirron started to reduce speed because of the number of small craft in the pass, but resumed full speed when the captain "suggested it."

John Steeves, counsel for the Russian vessel's owners, asked why the captain ordered full speed.

"Mr. Kirron was in control at the time and I guess it seemed prudent to him to reduce speed," said Pollock. "I suggested that in my opinion it was not necessary at that particular time to slow the vessel down."

Steeves asked whether the fact that the ferry had left Tsawwassen eight minutes late was the reason for maintaining full speed. Pollock replied: "No."

Mrs. Octopus Fine, But Who's Daddy?

NEW YORK (AP) — A 40-pound Pacific octopus has become the mother of hundreds of baby octupuses at the New York Aquarium. Mother and babies are fine-but no one knows who's the father.

The mother has been alone in an exhibit tank for five months—far longer than the normal 90-day gestation period.

When she laid several thousand eggs early last June, aquarium officials presumed they were infertile since she had had no contact with a male.

But last week the eggs began to hatch. "We already have several hundred," said a puzzled official.

The only explanation so far is that a male was in an adjacent tank at one point and the tanks share a common water filtration system. Possibly, officials theorize, sperm carried through the filters.

New Stamp Honors Lord Strathcona

OTTAWA (CP) — A commemorative stamp marking the 150th anniversary of the birth of Sir Donald Alexander Smith, better known as Lord Strathcona, will be issued by the post office Nov. 4, it announced Wednesday.

Designed by Dora de Pedery-Hunt of Toronto, the six-cent stamp is printed in yellow, brown and green. An issue of 34,000,000 stamps is being printed.

He drove the last spike for the CPR in 1885.

Born in Scotland, Donald Smith came to Canada in 1838 with the Hudson's Bay Company. He was sent to Fort Garry in 1869 by Sir John A. Macdonald to look into the Riel rebellion.

He was a member of Parliament between 1871 and 1896, except for the 1880-87 period. He was president of the Bank of Montreal from 1882 to 1887, high commissioner to Britain from 1896 to 1913, and governor of the Hudson's Bay Company from 1899 to 1913.

He equipped and maintained the Lord Strathcona's Horse during the Boer War.

He died in 1914, aged 94.

No Charges In Sinatra Gun Incident

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The district attorney says a man who pulled a gun on Frank Sinatra during a casino dispute had finger marks on his throat to prove the singer attacked him.

Because of that, District Attorney George Franklin said Wednesday, he has decided not to lodge a charge of assault with a deadly weapon against Sandford Waterman, 66-year-old executive vice-president of Caesars Palace.

Waterman was arrested by the sheriff for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon in the wake of the run-in with Sinatra early Sunday morning.

Witnesses told the sheriff's department the dispute erupted when Caesars Palace refused to extend Sinatra credit to play baccarat at $16,000 a hand.

It ended with Sinatra's stamping out of the hotel, where he had just opened what was supposed to be a three-week engagement. He was reported to have gone to his home at Palm Springs, Calif.

'Purge Radical Professors'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate's third-ranking Democrat said Wednesday colleges and universities in United States should purge radical professors and students and then adopt policies to keep them out.

Senator Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said in a statement to the president's commission on campus unrest it is time college administrators "return to a policy of making our institutions of higher learning once again representative of main stream America."

"It is high time that professors who distort the perspective of young minds, who advocate the overthrow of our system of government, who corrupt and pervert the educational process be purged from our educational institutions," Byrd's statement said.

He added: "I am convinced that one of the major causes contributing to the disorder in our institutions is the presence in those institutions of many young people who have absolutely no business being there."

LONDON SEX SUPERMARKET NOW OPEN

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's first sex supermarket opened here Wednesday and advertised what it claims the average couple needs for well-adjusted sex.

A wide range of sexual aids are available including contraceptives, books and "quick acting tonics to increase the sexual urge."

She claims her purpose in opening the store is not to make money but to help people have happier sex lives and happier marriages.

HADDOCK DISAPPOINTED

Secret Committee Disbanded

Mayor Courtney Haddock's controversial policy review committee was disbanded Wednesday.

Haddock put the future of the committee on the line and lost by a three-to-two vote at the final session — a meeting Haddock described as "the best meeting they've had for a long time."

Obviously disappointed, Haddock said in an interview today that he must somehow replace the function served by the committee because there must be an executive committee of some sort.

The six-month-old committee ran into trouble when a number of aldermen expressed displeasure at being left out of it, and Ald. Peter Pollen threatened to boycott the meetings because he said public business should not be carried out in secret.

Haddock said, on return from a recent holiday, he had no intention of dissolving the committee but hinted he would canvass aldermen for their views.

Aldermen Pollen, Tom Christie, Clyde Savage, Percy Frampton and Cecil Parrott attended Wednesday's committee meeting. Pollen, Christie and Savage voted against continuing the meetings, outnumbering Frampton and Parrott.

Haddock said he bears no grudge against the opposing aldermen whose views must be heard, but he stressed the difficulty of doing the city's business without the function of some kind of executive committee.

Toxic Dinner Put Under Ban As Family Hit

By DOUG MacRAE

A popular brand of frozen chicken chow mein dinner was being withdrawn from the market in Victoria today after a Victoria mother and her young son were taken violently ill after eating the product.

Lab tests here confirmed that Ricksha chow mein, manufactured in Vancouver, contained active toxin in a batch now on sale in stores throughout the province.

Unlike salmonella, which produces staphylococci only and doesn't produce food poisoning symptoms for 24 hours, the chow mein was found to contain toxin already produced by the germs. Symptoms, including nausea, vomiting and abdominal pain, showed up two hours after the chow mein was eaten.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, Victoria's chief health officer, said distributors have been instructed to have their salesmen pull the product from store freezers until further tests are completed.

"But it's the packages that may be in refrigerators now that we are concerned about," Whitbread said. "The food poisoning can be severe enough to require hospitalization."

He said anyone suffering the typical symptoms should inform the health department.

Whitbread said his department investigated the woman's complaint Tuesday, bought a package of the chow mein and had it tested here Wednesday and found it "loaded with toxin."

Jack Benny Is Younger

Premier Bennett said today he has just caught his "second wind" in political life.

"Every person that feels old should retire," Bennett said in response to questions about the planned retirement of Newfoundland Premier Joey Smallwood who will join Bennett in the 70-year-old-premier category in December.

Bennett corrected a reporter who asked how it feels to be 70; pointing out that by his method of figuring — with healthy age deductions for non-smoking, non-drinking and regular hours — he is only 45 years old.

Mayor Knocks Police Abuse

Mayor Courtney Haddock wants the Canada Criminal Code changed to protect policemen from abusive language and ridicule while performing their public duties.

The kind of abuse hurled at police in the United States, he says, is a "creeping, insidious disease" before which the police are "helpless." And the disease is spreading in Canada.

Haddock will ask city council today for endorsement of a resolution designed by him to go before the Union of British Columbia Municipalities convention at Penticton next week.

Calling policemen "pigs," said Haddock, should not be allowed to go unpunished.

Haddock's resolution calls for pressure on the B.C. attorney-general to get his backing for a change in federal criminal law providing a summary conviction for such offences.

Haddock's resolution is aimed largely at the political activists who clash in the streets with police. A large proportion of these dissidents are American citizens, said Haddock, but not all of them.

School Enrolment Within Expectations

By NEILL GADDES

Preliminary enrolment figures in the three local school districts are close to what administrators expected with the largest increases being at the secondary level.

There are, however, some pressure points in the districts that officials are straightening out during this first school week.

The Sooke school district has close to 6,800 students which is within the estimated 7,000 maximum expected. Late registrations will add to the total.

A Sooke official said today the boundaries for Sangster Elementary are being redefined to allow for the transfer of 25 students to Metchosin and Hans Helgesen elementaries.

There were 398 students at Belmont last year and this is up to about 530 this year.

The Saanich Peninsula school district expected about 5,200 students in their schools and Wednesday figures show there are 5,222. Late registrations are expected.

Again, the secondary level is where the greatest number of new students are — about an eight per cent increase compared to a three per cent increase in the elementary level.

The hiring of another teacher at Royal Oak Junior Secondary looks to be the remedy to a 40-student jump over projected enrolment.

About 470 students were expected at Royal Oak but are now at 510 which is up from last year's total of 420.

Junior secondary enrolment has remained static.

Victoria was expecting about 33,000 students but kindergarten figures have not yet been established.

Ask The Times

Q. Can you tell me who was the composer of the famous overture "Zampa"? L.G.R.L.

A. It was composed by Louis Joseph Ferdinand Herold, who was born in Paris in 1791 and died there in 1833. He won the Prix de Rome at the age of 20, from that time on devoting himself to operatic composition, but also writing ballets and piano works.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send it to the "Ask the Times" editor.

Questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Nicholson to Open United Appeal Drive

Lt.-Gov. John Nicholson will officiate at the formal kick-off luncheon for the 1970 United Appeal campaign Tuesday at the Old Forge.

The appeal's canvasser drive began this week with campaign officials issuing a call for 3,100 Victorians to canvass on Oct. 19.

Campaign officials today urged mothers of school children to contact appeal headquarters once they have finished getting their children started for fall classes.

"We know that many families are busy this week with school starting and we hope for their support once it's under way," said campaign director Judy Nyquist.

The Appeal's goal from the residential canvass is $111,200. Over-all goal for the campaign this year is $694,000.

HERE FOR MANAGEMENT CONFERENCE

Parkinson to Lay Down the Law

PARKINSON

The man who invented Parkinson's Law — the axiom that work expands to fill the time available for its completion — will be the head speaker at a Victoria conference of the Pacific Northwest Management Association Oct. 8-9.

Dr. C. Northcote Parkinson, historian, educator, author and humorist, will speak Friday, Oct. 9, on his laws for management.

Parkinson is best-known for his witty satires of corporate and personal inefficiency, but he has also authored works on political theory as well as numerous articles for the London Economist, Punch, Harper's and other periodicals.

The conference is the 32nd meeting of the association which takes its membership from public and private personnel managers in British Columbia, Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

Other topics before the conference include addresses on the free enterprise system by Undersea Gardens Ltd. president John Hoegg and challenges before unions in the 1970s by B.C. Government Employees' Union secretary-general John L. Fryer.

The conference will be held at the Empress Hotel.

Hydro Willing to Look At Alternative Site

B.C. Hydro said Wednesday it will be pleased to consider "a reasonable and comparable alternative" to its planned service centre site at Quadra-Beckwith in Saanich.

The comment is made by C. W. Nash, manager of the corporate services division, in a form letter to municipalities throughout B.C.

The letter follows one from the North Quadra Land Use Protection Association which urged municipalties to support bringing B.C. Hydro under the power of the Municipal Act.

At present, B.C. Hydro is specifically exempt from the Municipal Act under the B.C. Hydro Act, passed by the legislature. This means it does not have to seek zoning for its land uses.

Despite this, Saanich council has called a public hearing for Sept. 28 in Lake Hill Elementary on the planned service centre.

Several years ago, B.C. Hydro did apply for zoning for this use on a nearby site and council rejected it in the face of strong residential opposition.

Nash, in his letter, traces the history of the planned service centre, which at one time was to go at Admirals Road and Trans-Canada Highway. Later this property was considered for a vocational school and now is to become a park.

He said the municipal planning and engineering departments were "both kind enough" to have discussions with B.C. Hydro on various sites for the service centre and "the proposal to purchase the Quadra-Beckwith site for a service centre was not opposed and Hydro subsequently acquired the property."

However, Wednesday, municipal engineer Neville Life said municipal staff neither favored nor opposed this site. In any event, he said B.C. Hydro knew it was just talking to staff and not to council.

Nash said the service centre is a more suitable use than residential development because of levels and drainage on the property.

The centre would be "well hidden" from most nearby streets. And there already is a high-voltage transmission line on steel towers running the whole length of the property, he said.

"The planning of the service centre took these factors into account in order to make the best use of the available land," he said.

"The building proposed will be a credit to the area in the manner of the B.C. Telephone Company's service centre nearby. The presence of the telephone company's centre has not inhibited neighborning residential development. The municipality of Saanich has a works yard near which attractive residences have been built."

●

Nash also said no building work has commenced and construction is not likely to start for about five years.

"In the meantime, Hydro has tidied up the site, cut the hay and will be removing the old barns now on the property," he said.

BILL WALKER

"A superstar," says coach Hal Laycoe of the Vancouver Canucks, now of the National Hockey League," is a player who can play one league higher than the league he is playing in."

Hal was in town for a few days, visiting in-laws, renewing old acquaintances, and getting fat, or so it seemed. Yes, he has put on weight since he managed and coached the old Cougars in the 1959-60 Western Hockey League season.

Naturally, the discussion was about hockey — the Canucks . . . expansion . . . Boston . . . superstars . . . Bobby Orr . . . and if you want a ticket to see the Bruins and Orr in action at Vancouver on Oct. 18, good luck!

"Our ticket response has been terrific," said Hal. "The season ticket sale has passed ten, two (10,200) and Boston is practically sold out now; there have been that many mail order applications."

The drawing card. Orr! Who else?

"You just have to see him to believe it," Laycoe said.

"He's a superstar who could play two leagues higher than the NHL. He's that good."

He then philosophied that the more superstars on a team, the higher the team would finish.

For instance, Chicago and Boston, finished one, two (or tied if you like) . . . they had the most superstars . . . and so on down the line, the fewer stars, the lower the club's placing.

But about the Canucks — would they have a "sleeper" in the Orr class?

"Not likely," said Hal. "We know pretty well what we have, and what to expect. But if there are any surprises, that's all right too."

"But let's face it," he added, "I just hope the fans don't really erpect too much in the first season. Because after all we are an expansion club, a second expansion club at that."

●

Earlier he had explained that the Canucks were working on a five-year plan. He and Poile had agreed that if they could succeed in that endeavour then the Canucks would be competitive with everyone.

"We will have a young, healthy club," he predicted. "And big."

"And although we have some ideas already, everyone will get a chance to make it," he added of the 60 players, including 42 professionals who will report to Calgary Friday.

"I suppose Charlie Hodge would have to be the backbone of the goaltending corps," he commented. "He has proven he can play in the NHL." Then he added: "But our own George Gardner always has given us everything we asked of him, so he must be considered, to.

"Dunc Wilson, a 22-year-old, was our first draft pick from Philadelphia, and he could be a fellow to watch. Poile (Bud) is high on him as the best young prospect in hockey."

Of the defence, Gary Doak drew the most interest.

"He was really hampered last season," Hal explained. "He had a bad back, and had suffered from mononucleosis the year before. Thus he didn't play much. But we are certain he will be a big help to us."

●

He seemed pleased, too, with the fact he had much to choose from in Marc Reaume, John Arbour, Darrel Sly, Doug Dunville, Paul Popeil and Pat Quinn, all veterans with varying degrees of talent.

"Popeil may prove to be a handy acquisition," he suggested, "while I'm certain that Sly can play better than he did last year. And he does want to play in Vancouver."

Down the middle, where the strength must lie, Laycoe appeared to have good reason to be optimistic.

The names of Orland Kurtenbach, Ray Cullen and Dale Tallon spilled out in that order.

"Yes, we are going to play Tallon at centre," said Hal. "That's where we want him, and I've heard nothing but good reports about him," he added of the club's first amateur draft pick.

"If he goes well, it will have solved one of our biggest problems — centre, and give us time to concentrate on the other positions.

"Kurtenbach just has to be the big man for us," he added. "He has recovered from the back surgery he had two years ago, and being third man behind Walt Tkaczuk and Jean Ratelle in New York, certainly was nothing to be ashamed of."

"Cullen," he said, "has scored 71 goals in his last three years in the NHL. That's better than several players I could mention."

There was more, too, on the forwards, and rookies, but that will come later, because an inquiring reporter upset the former Los Angeles coach, but not seriously, with the question:

"But Hal, just how many of those superstars you mentioned do you have on your list?"

"Don't go putting words in my mouth," he said and laughed.

Which is all, really, he could do. Because the best he must hope for this season is sixth place, out of seven.

Anything higher would be "super."

NET OFFICIALS TIRED OF 'LOVE'

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.S. open tennis championships were rained out Wednesday, and umpires and linesmen used the occasion to put in a pitch for some of the loot of the big money tournaments. They say they're tired of doing it for nothing.

The umpires committee of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association issued a two-page report warning tournament directors that they can expect pressure from the umpires and linesmen for a cut of the gate.

With players receiving such big cheques $20,000 to the winner here, for instance — it is "patently absurd," R. Michael Dunne, the umpires' chairman, said, for skilled umpires and linesmen to contribute their services for nothing.

Traditionally, they have toiled for love of the game. It takes 13 officials to call a regular match.

The umpires also indicated they are sick and tired of the abuse they have to take from the players. They proposed means of disciplining players guilty of bad conduct — either through monetary fines, point penalties or disqualification.

Lose Czech Star

PRAGUE (AP) — Jaroslav Jirik, former star forward of the Czechoslovak national hockey team, may not return to St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League.

Jirik, who divided his time between the Blues and their minor league clubs last season, was to leave for St. Louis Sept. 9, but decided not to leave Czechoslovakia because his wife is due to have a baby.

Drayton Cracks Ten-Mile Record

TORONTO (CP) — Jerome Drayton, 26, of Toronto broke the world record for the 10-mile run in winning the Canadian 10-mile track championship at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Drayton's time of 46 minutes 37.6 seconds bettered the previous time held by England's Ton Hill by 6.4 seconds.

DENNY McLAIN
. . . his world crumbles

SUSPENDED McLAIN . . . . . . ALLEGED GUN-TOTER

Suddenly, Everything Tastes Sour

NEW YORK (AP) — Only two years ago, Denny McLain had the world in his hands. He was baseball's brightest star.

He had fame, wealth and talent, and a future that promised only more of the same.

In six short months, he had turned into baseball's bad boy. He is criticized, he is broke and his future is riddled with doubt.

It all came to a climax Wednesday afternoon when baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn suspended the Detroit Tigers pitcher for at least the remainder of the 1970 season.

It was McLain's third suspension this year, and the words "at least" give some cause to think that this one might extend even longer than the 1970 season.

All Kuhn would say in announcing the suspension after a meeting with McLain and Detroit officials was that it was "pending further proceedings, which by agreement of counsel will not take place before the end of the season."

McLain slipped away without comment, and Kuhn requested Detroit officials not to talk about the suspension.

Kuhn did say, in his statement, that "certain new allegations have been brought to my attention, including allegations regarding McLain's conduct with respect to the Detroit management and information that on occasions McLain has carried a gun."

It represented the final blow to the 26-year-old right-hander, who, in 1968, became the first pitcher since 1934 to win 30 games in one season. He became the toast of baseball, the Cy Young Award winner.

Last year, he was almost as good, winning 24 games and sharing the Cy Young Award with Mike Cuellar of Baltimore Orioles as the American League's top pitcher.

But then the bottom fell out when he was implicated with gamblers and suspended in the spring until July 1. Then, on Aug. 28, he doused two Detroit sports writers with ice water, a prank, and drew a one-week suspension from the Tigers.

Missing all of spring training and most of the season, in his brief period on the mound he managed only a 3-5 record with a 4.73 earned-run average.

The Tigers, without the pitcher who hurled them into the World Series in 1968 and to second place in 1969, are buried in third place in the American League East Division.

Jockey Strike Threat To Ex-Park Race Meet

VANCOUVER (CP)—Jockeys at Exhibition Park threatened Wednesday to go on strike Saturday and the British Columbia Jockey Club said that if there is a strike, it will cancel the remainder of the 1970 racing calendar.

Tak Inouye, jockeys' representative, said that unless a fee dispute with the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association is settled by 7 a.m. Friday, the jockeys will not ride here Saturday.

The executive of the horsemen's association refused Wednesday to consider further the jockeys' request for a 10 per cent increase, across the board, in the range of riding fees jockeys receive.

Inouye said the jockeys have not had an increase since 1962. The horsemen's association said they have received more money because purses have risen, thus increasing the sliding scale of riding fees.

Merv Peters, spokesman for the B.C. Jockey Club, said the horsemen suggested they could not negotiate with jockeys until a new scale of purses is set.

This, he said, means the horsemen are putting the Jockey Club in the middle. "Hence our decision to call off the balance meeting if there is no racing Saturday."

The Exhibition Park season is scheduled to end Oct. 14. Racing is held four times a week. Cancellation of the remainder of the schedule would mean horsemen losing $400,000 in purse money.

Inouye said jockeys have already accepted mounts for Friday's racing, so that will go ahead.

Between races Wednesday, the horsemen's executive held a second meeting and rejected a suggestion from president Sonny O'Connell that a general membership meeting be held tonight.

Said Peters:

"All across Canada, horsemen and jockeys have worked together and come to compromise settlements entirely between themselves.

"The horsemen, who get 60 per cent out of our every dollar, the highest rate in Canada, got $122,000 more in money during the first 80 days of this meeting."

Grexton Rolls Record Series

Grexton rolled a 741 series, the highest score recorded around Victoria in the past 25 years, while competing in the Wednesday Commerical League.

The 22-year-old kegler started with 236, bowled 261 for his middle game and then added 244. He started with a six-timer, ran into a split, threw four more strikes and ended with an eight-count on his last ball for his highest game.

He had 26 strikes in the three games.

Fred Nelson rolled the highest tenpin series last season — 705.

PLAYERS, SHAREHOLDERS . . . . . . CLOSE TO REVOLT

Eskimos Hit 'All-Time Low'

EDMONTON (CP) — Wayne Overland, sports columnist for The Journal, says Edmonton Eskimo football players are on the verge of revolt with morale at an all-time low.

"There isn't a player on this team who wouldn't pay $1,000 cash to get traded to B.C.," Overland quotes an unidentified player as saying.

As of Labor Day, the Eskimos "were virtually eliminated from the Western Football Conference playoffs with a record of two wins and six losses."

Edmonton is in fourth place, four points behind British Columbia Lions who hold down the last playoff spot.

"This is the result of a seven-year rebuilding program," Overland says, adding that a shareholder uprising could be brewing in the community owned club.

"Some of the estimated 150 shareholders are attempting to obtain copies of the constitution and share lists to find out what steps can be taken to shake up the board of directors."

"There is no easy . . . answer to what has happened to the Eskimos. The organization has problems with directors, management, coaching and players."

Overland quoted Al Irwin, an Eskimo end last year now practising law in Toronto as saying: "Eskimos will never win until they get rid of the cancer at the top."

The problems were with the concept the Eskimo board had of its responsibilities.

There were two concepts a community-owned club could adopt. One was best demonstrated by Calgary Stampeders which held directors' meeting infrequently and had given general manager Rogers Lehew sweeping powers.

"The other concept is demonstrated by the Eskimo board which meets frequently during the season and has several committees which are active . . . The result has been to reduce general manager Norm Kimball to the role of office boy."

Jack Baker, president of the Eskimos, said that he would not comment on the column, first of a series.

Baker said he would have something to say when Overland's series ends.

Cards Holding Deal In Baseball Stakes

By The Associated Press

There are three teams and 7½ games between Red Schoendienst and first place in the nervous National League East. But the St. Louis Cardinals skipper still can talk about taking it all . . . as long as the front-runners keep playing giveaway.

"We're going to win the pennant," Schoendienst proclaimed, with a straight face, after his Cardinals knocked off the plodding Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4 Wednesday night.

The Pirates' third straight setback cost them undisputed possession of the top spot for the first time in 5½ weeks. But the New York Mets, given an opportunity to pass Pittsburgh, could do no better than split a twi-nighter with Philadelphia Phillies for a share of the lead. And the third-place Chicago Cubs remained one game back after a 3-2 loss to last-place Montreal Expos.

PLAY BUCS TONIGHT

Even if the Cards don't win the pennant they surely will have something to say about who does.

They play the Pirates again tonight, then meet the Mets and Cubs three times each in the following seven days.

In Wednesday's other NL action, Cincinnati Reds downed Los Angeles Dodgers 6-0; Atlanta Braves split a doubleheader with San Diego Padres, winning 6-3 in 11 innings, then losing 7-4, and San Francisco Giants topped Houston Astros 9-5.

The Twins, behind Jim Perry's 22nd victory, knocked off their closest pursuers, Oakland Athletics, 3-1. They hold a six and one-half game lead in the American League West.

In other games, Chicago White Sox defeated California Angels, 11-4 and 3-1; Washington Senators edged Cleveland Indians, 5-4; and Boston Red Sox defeated Detroit Tigers, 4-1.

FIRST VICTORY

The Cardinals erased a 4-0 Pittsburgh lead with three-run rallies in the fifth and sixth innings. Ted Simmons' two-run double keyed the first uprising and ex-Pirate Carl Taylor pinch hit a run-scoring bloop double in the middle of the second burst, enabling left-hander Frank Bertaina to pick up his first victory of the year.

Willie Montanez, just recalled from the minors, stroked a run-scoring pinch single in the ninth to send the Phillies past the Mets in their opener. But southpaw Ray Sadecki earned the home club a split by taming the Phils on four hits and striking out 12 in the nightcap, Duffy Dyer providing the margin of victory with a bases-loaded single in the sixth.

WINE SPARKLES

Light-hitting Bobby Wine beat the Cubs with a two-out, run-scoring single in the ninth and also contributed a pair of defensive gems at shortstop.

"You don't mind getting beat 15-1," grumbled Cubs' pilot Leo Durocher, "but not like this. With the pennant race at this stage, you ought to beat the teams you think you should."

Rookie Milt Wilcox fired a five-hitter for the Reds, whose magic number dwindled to seven enroute to clinching the NL West title. Lee May drove in two runs with a double and his 30th homer.

OUTDOOR SCENE

By Barry M. Thornton

A mixed bag and creel this week.

Blue grouse hunters throughout the Island have had good sport during the opening weekends of the season. Shortly however, the early mid September migration of these birds will have the upland bird hunter locking up his gun. His sport will be finished until the leaves fall in late November and the Ruffed grouse becomes accessable.

I feel it is time for the Fish and Wildlife Branch to initiate the introduction of an alien upland game bird species which will provide mid-season sport for upland bird hunters. Certainly such an introduction will have to be done with much study and caution so that resident populations of wildlife are not endangered. However, the elimination of pheasants by pesticides, changing farmland practices and municipal regulations has curtailed the past mid-season sport. What is needed now is initiative for planning and experimentation of another of the two hundred plus species of pheasant or some other upland species which will adapt to the west coast climate.

Current plans by the Fish and Wildlife Branch are for the introduction of Rocky Mountain Goat to Vancouver Island. Goats will be trapped at Jarvis Inlet on the mainland and transported to the Prince of Whales Range, north and east of Campbell River, in an attempt to introduce this species there.

Recent waterfowl management regulations in certain states of the U.S. have come under considerable criticism since their inception. The regulations aimed at species management, is based on a daily point total with each duck species given a point count according to abundance. This system has been welcomed by many sportsmen as an excellent management regulation. In fact, the Canadian Wildlife Federation, the voice of organized Canadian sportsmen, is advocating such a system in Canada.

The most recent criticism comes in an article, "Limit the Duck Hunters?" by J. Shields, in the September issue of "Outdoor Life." Mr. Shields (with tongue in cheek I sincerely hope) is quite scathing of this inovative management technique, and calls for simplicity of regulations (for a limited number of hunters) rather than an educated hunter. I would strongly recommend the article to all Island waterfowl hunters as a foreshadowing of possible Pacific coast waterfowl regulations.

Recent acts by various municipalities and regional boards on Vancouver Island to ban the use of firearms under the pretext of conservation should certainly be questioned by all sportsmen. Protectionalism is not a conservation measure. It does nothing but stock pile wildlife promoting the spread of disease and parasites. Firearms bans for public safety are respected by outdoorsmen and are certainly necessary in areas of congested population. Hunters planning trips near municipalities should check recent bylaws for that area to ensure they are not in a restricted zone.

Fish and Wildlife clubs in B.C. are to be congratulated for their efforts in instructing upwards of 4,000 youngsters per year in firearms safety. These clubs spend many hours and much effort instructing youngsters in care with firearms but unfortunately have little follow-up when the actual hunting season occurs. As a follow-up clubs could initiate a program of hunting trip for these and other youngsters in their area who are without transportation and parental supervision. A public service like this, which co-ordinated transportation and adult supervision, would be a highlight in any youngsters life. Many hunters would volunteer their services if they knew of a co-ordinator they could phone, particularly as some adult hunting trips are spur of the moment decisions and company would be welcomed. The experience given to the youngsters would be invaluable providing the very best of outdoor partnership, ethics, safety and wildlife management.

Recent announcements by Federal Fisheries Minister, Jack Davis, of the first Coho and Chinook hatchery in B.C. (to be located on the Capilano River in North Vancouver and of the proposal for an alien salt water licence are certainly applauded by all B.C. sportsfishermen.

The initial hatchery is the first of a series promised by the minister to sportsfishermen for the improvement of the salmon sports fishing runs. A second has been set for Vancouver Island but as yet the specific location has not been reported.

It would seem appropriate at this time for the Provincial Fish and Wildlife Branch to negotiate with the Federal Fisheries Department for steelhead production in this hatchery. Steelhead management is the responsibility of the Provincial Fish and Wildlife Branch, but as yet little management has occured. The new provincial at Abbotsford is unable to cope with steelhead fish culture. However, as the new federal hatchery is for Coho, a salmon with almost an identical life history to the steelhead, it would seem appropriate that steelhead production be a part of that hatchery.

The proposed salt water licence for aliens over sixteen years states a fee of one dollar per day up to a maximum of three days, ten dollars per month, and twenty-five dollars per year.

A quote from the minister at the 1969 B.C. Wildlife Federation Convention, "As long as I am Fisheries Minister there will not be a resident salt water angling licence," should allay any fears for a resident licence in the near future.

MacNeil to Help Canadiens' Coach

MONTREAL (CP) — Al MacNeil, long-time National Hockey League defenceman and coach of the American Hockey League Montreal Voyageurs last season, was appointed assistant coach of the NHL Montreal Canadiens Wednesday.

MacNeil, a 35-year-old native of Sydney, N.S., will act as a full-time assistant to Claude Ruel, starting his third season as coach of the NHL club.

Pollock said the idea of an assistant coach for an NHL team "is not new, but it will be a complete idea in hockey within the next few years."

Pollock also announced that Ron Caron has been rehired as general manager of the Voyageurs and will assume MacNeil's previous coaching post with the club.

The announcements came on the eve of the Canadiens pre-season training camp opening. More than 70 players report to the camp here today.

Ruel said he picked MacNeil, a veteran of 524 NHL games, as his assistant because the two had been friends since their junior days and because of the latter's experience as a pro and a coach.

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS: Straight arm—without tension

Adanacs Extend Lacrosse Series

Kevin Parsons scored with one minute remaining in the game Wednesday to give Coquitlam Adanacs an 11-10 win over New Westminster Salmonbellies in the fourth game of the best-of-seven Western Lacrosse Association finals.

New Westminster leads the series, 3-1. Next game is Friday in New Westminster.

The WLA champion meets Peterborough starting Sept. 15 in a best-of-seven series for the Mann Cup. All games will be played in New Westminster or Coquitlam.

Adanacs had to play the final half without scoring ace Mike Gates, who was ejected at 10:49 of the second period for throwing his glove at referee Ralph Pomeridge after receiving a 10-minute misconduct penalty.

Adanacs' captain Bill Bradley led the Coquitlam attack with two goals and three assists while Parsons and John Allen each scored twice.

COMPETITION WANTED

Elsewhere in lacrosse, Lakeshore Maple Leafs won their third straight game in the best-of-seven series for the national junior A championship Wednesday night but the team's general manager is a bit disappointed:

"We would have liked to play a stronger team," Boyd Baragar said after his Leafs downed Burnaby Cablevision 14-8 in the third game for the Minto Cup.

The Leafs swept the first game of the series Sunday 22-6 and the second game Monday 25 13.

FAULTS ASSOCIATION

The fault lies partly with the B.C. lacrosse association, Baragar said.

"Their problem is that they don't protect their junior players. Junior clubs in B.C. get raided by the seniors. Not here. We have protection here."

At Windsor, New Westminster Blues easily beat Windsor Clippers, 17-7, and took a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven series for the Canadian senior B championship.

Blues scoring was paced by Whitey McKean and Barry Erlandson, who got three each; Neil Holloway, Ken Henry and Barry Bolton, getting two each; and singles from Gary Stevens, Brian Jones, Dave Thwaites, Skip Mint and Mike Mitzel.

BOOKMAKERS BLANCHE AS NIJINSKY ENTERED

LONDON (AP) — American owner Charles Engelhard entered super race horse Nijinsky in Saturday's English St. Leger classic, and the British bookies had a nightmare.

If Canadian-bred Nijinsky wins, it will cost them millions of pounds.

The betting on Nijinsky almost froze. If you could get a bet, the odds were prohibitive.

Nijinsky, to be ridden by British champion jockey Lester Piggott, has been syndicated for a record $5.8 million as a stallion.

The son of Native Dancer never has raced over the St. Leger course of one mile six furlongs and 132 yards. The race is a furlong longer than the horse has ever travelled.

Bill Wakeham Bows in Playoff

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Stan Homenuik of Dauphin, Man., canned a 20-foot putt for a birdie on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff here Wednesday to defeat Bill Wakeham of Victoria and capture the Dartmouth Open golf tournament.

Homenuik, who trailed Wakeham by two strokes at the halfway mark of the 36-hole tournament, took the lead by carding a one-under-par 33 on the front nine to Wakeham's 36. But the Victoria pro trimmed a stroke from par on the back nine while Homenuik recorded nine pars and both finished with two-day totals of 137.

In the playoff, Homenuik reached the green with his second shot while Wakeham was short and pitched on in three. When Homenuik dropped his putt, it was all over.

Chuck Thorpe of Washington, D.C. had a 68 Wednesday to finish in third place with 139 while Bruce Dobie of Worcester, Mass., placed fourth with 141 after a 71 on Wednesday.

Soccer Traveller MacKay Happy to Be Home

Experience Was Great But Ike Staying Home

By DAN STINSON

"One day we went to Londonderry where there had been some rioting. We beat them for the first time in quite a few years, and the fans wrecked our buses after the game!

"The Irish take their soccer quite seriously, you know."

Life in Northern Ireland was pretty exciting, in many ways, for 22-year-old Ike MacKay — playing soccer with the Portadown Club, travelling the countryside, and teaching physical education in a Belfast school.

Sound great?

Ike says it was a good experience. But after a year-long stay in Ireland, the Victoria youth does not feel that the land of Leprechauns is his bag.

He wasn't sure just what to expect. But now, after his recent return to Victoria, he's sure of one thing.

He's staying in Canada.

"They are very suspicious of each other in Ireland, even when just walking down the street.

"Your next-door neighbor could be a fellow who would burn you out! It's not a relaxed atmosphere."

Some of the staunchest soccer fans were in the Portadown area, about 26 miles south of Belfast. Although the club finished fifth in the 10-team first division of the Irish League, Ike says its loyal contingent never lost faith.

"Almost all of the Irish people are crazy about soccer. It's the only widely-accepted sport they have. They can get pretty excited too."

"Wherever we travelled in Northern Ireland, there always would be a busload or two of fans who came along. Sometimes there was more action in the stands than down on the playing field!"

This fall, Ike is returning to the University of Victoria for his fourth year of training in physical education.

While in Ireland he lived in Belfast during the week and taught at a Catholic school, commuting to Portadown for the weekend games.

"The youngsters in Northern Ireland have good soccer potential, but the country is sadly lacking in facilities. There aren't too many good fields, and with all the rain many are just mud baths."

MacKay says the soccer fields are not as big in northern Ireland as they are in B.C.

"This hindered my performance because I've been used to bigger fields where, if I got into any trouble, I could usually use the field to advantage.

"I guess the basic difference between Irish and Canadian soccer is that the Irish are more experienced. They are not as fit as Canadian players, but then they don't have to be on the smaller fields. Over a short distance, Irish players are quicker."

Not all of Ike's time was spent in Ireland. For a week he took a coaching course, sponsored by the English Football Association, in Lileshall, England, and came out with the first "major" level certificate.

He toured Spain for two weeks in May and found the way of life altogether different from Northern Ireland.

"The people in Spain are so much more relaxed than in Ireland. Irish temperment is such that once you've made a friend, you'll always keep him. But the Irish are very cautious when they first meet you."

★ ★ ★

MacKay admits that soccer is extremely well-organized all over the British Isles, but prefers the Canadian way of life.

"There is so much more variety here. Just look at all the opportunities we have in sports. If a boy in Ireland doesn't have the ability to play soccer, he's out of luck!

"Canadians eat better, live better and are probably happier than any other people in the world. With all this opportunity we should be producing better athletes. Not just in soccer, but in all sports."

World Bank Increases Loan Approvals

By HOBART ROWEN
The Washington Post

The World Bank Group approved the highest level of commitments ever in its last fiscal year (which ended June 30), running the total over $2 billion.

This was announced Wednesday in the annual report of the bank, summarizing its record and those of its affiliates, the International Development Association and the International Finance Corp.

But World Bank officials were the first to concede that this raw statistic gave an excessively optimistic coloration to the real results of the year.

The more significant fact is that despite the increase in commitments (agreements to make loans) actual disbursements have failed to increase in the past two years.

"The failure of disbursements to increase is a real disappointment," one bank official acknowledged. "We know we don't have all the time in the world."

The report noted that further appraisals, supplementing the work of the Pearson Commission, would be needed to focus attention on the complicated needs of developing countries.

"The challenges facing the developing world are becoming clearer," the report said.

"The bank group is deeply conscious of the need to enhance the quality and quantity of its own work in the field on economic development. . . ."

It estimated the economic growth rate of the developing world (in terms of gross domestic product) at 6.7 per cent, compared with 5.9 per cent in 1968.

But it noted that "a number of fundamental constraints" still holds back economic growth, including lack of access to markets in the big industrial countries, and the continued problem of too large a population straining abailable resources.

Bank President Robert McNamara had committed himself in 1968 to a doubling of the workd bank's role in aid commitments in the ensuing five years. This goal is on its way to being substantially achieved, with loans boosted in 1970 to $1,680,000,000 from $847,000,000 in 1968.

But a loan represents mere approval of a project — establishment of a line of credit. Disbursements — the actual payments for work under way — totalled only $772,000,000 in 1970, the exact total of the disbursements in 1968, and only slightly above those in 1969.

Bank officials, though concerned, have an explanation. The main cause, they say, is a lag between commitment and actual expenditure, expecially since the focus of activity is to emphasize less traditional projects and to enter new and smaller countries.

Officials predict a rapid acceleration in actual disbursements later this year and in 1971. "We are concerned with the quality as well as the quantity of aid," one bank official says, "and it will take a time to show up."

Nonetheless, bank officials, knowing that the lag in disbursements, compared with the rising volume of loans would draw criticism, have conducted a rigorous internal examination to see if policices have been too cautious or standards set excessively high.

The bank's self-consciousness is accentuated by the fact that it turned a record profit for the last fiscal year of $213 million, up from $171 million in fiscal 1969.

Back on Stage

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Trumpeter Louis Armstrong, performing publicly again after a two-year layoff because of illness, says he would like to make another world tour.

Armstrong expressed this wish in an interview Wednesday a day after opening an engagement at the International Hotel with Pearl Bailey.

Auto Firms May Get 'Escape-Hatch' Bill

WASHINGTON (WP) — There is a strong possibility that the U.S. Senate public works committee will write a partial escape-hatch for the auto industry into the air pollution bill Thursday.

But a leading industry spokesman said he didn't regard the proposed change as a substantial improvement in industry-opposed provisions requiring development of a nearly-pollution-free engine by 1975.

The escape-hatch provision, developed by the committee staff and expected to be offered as an amendment later today with good chances of success, would authorize the automakers to go to court and seek annual extensions of the 1975 deadline.

Under the bill sponsored by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie (D.—Me.) and approved unanimously by the air and water pollution subcommittee, auto firms are required by 1975 to start using engines which yield 90 per cent less pollution than allowed for the 1970 model year.

N.S. Sheriff Delays Release Of Treasure

HALIFAX (CP) — A Louisbourg, N.S. treasure hunter has been given rights to 8,800 gold and silver coins he recovered from a sunken ship, but Sydney, N.S. sheriff James MacKillop Wednesday declined to release them to the man.

The coins, recovered in 1965 by diver Alex Storm, are from the 18th century French pay ship Le Chameau.

The appeal division of the Nova Scotia supreme court issued Tuesday an order setting aside a notice of appeal against an earlier supreme court decision that the coins belonged to Storm.

Storm disclosed the find in April, 1966, and four years of legal manoeuvring over their ownership followed.

But when Storm tried Wednesday to take possession of the hoard valued tentatively at $700,000, from sheriff McKillop he was told that the local receiver of wreck had instructed him (MacKillop) not to release them.

"It is incredible," Storm said in an interview following the confrontation with sheriff MacKillop. He explained that in 1965 he received dispensation from Ottawa which made it unnecessary for him to deliver the treasure to the receiver of wreck.

John H. Dickey, Storm's lawyer, said here Wednesday the latest action was "surprising."

Sheriff McKillop said he had received a letter from Halifax ordering him to release the treasure to Mr. Storm "but customs and some department in Ottawa have yet to give clearance," he said this would be only a formality.

Sheriff MacKillop, who was responsible for counting the coins and depositing them in a Sydney bank, said it would take about three days before the treasure is released to Mr. Storm.

Dolly Becomes A Champ

NEW YORK (CP) — Hello Dolly: became Broadway's musical champion Wednesday.

The matinee performance, No. 2,718, eclipsed the record of My Fair Lady. Four standing, whistling ovations by the capacity audience hailed star Ethel Merman and the cast that capered with opening night verve.

The show was written originally with Miss Merman in mind, but when she turned it down, Carol Channing got the part. In between, the role has been done by Ginger Rogers, Betty Grable, Phyllis Diller, Martha Raye and, longest of all, Pearl Bailey.

The production cost about $440,000 and has grossed about $60 million here and in reproductions elsewhere.

Cobalt Sulphate, Beer Don't Mix

LONDON (CP) — Heavy beer drinkers face a serious risk of heart trouble if their drink contains cobalt sulphate, Dr. Yves Morin of Quebec's Laval University warned Wednesday.

Speaking at a plenary session at the Sixth World Congress of Cardiology, he said the danger of the sulphate, used as an additive to stabilize the head on ales, was first discovered in Quebec in 1966.

Since then, a Canadian law was passed forbidding the use of the additive in beer production.

Morin said in a period of three weeks, 48 men and two women were admitted to hospital. Twenty died within 24 hours of admission.

Tests showed the patients were suffering from cobalt cardiomyopathy, a complaint attacking the arteries and muscles of the heart.

All were heavy beer drinkers, averaging about 20 pints a day. One man regularly drank 40 pints a day.

Similar cases occurred in the United States and Belgium when beer had a high cobalt content.

About 3,000 cardiologists are attending the six-day congress, held every four years.

Uvic Chancellor To Open Evening Extension Series

The University of Victoria chancellor, Roderick L. Haig-Brown, author, conservationist and judge, will open the 47th annual lecture series of the University Extension Association of Victoria on Monday evening.

HAIG-BROWN
. . . where we live

Haig-Brown will speak on What Shall We Fashion Where We Live, at the university's Room 144, MacLaurin Building, starting at 8:15.

This will be the first of 10 lectures running through to March 22.

On Sept. 28, Dr. A. Rae Patton, visiting professor from the department of chemistry, Colorado State University, will speak on Science and Society.

On Oct. 26, Donald N. Abbott, curator of archaeology at the Provincial Museum, will discuss Environments, Cultures and Time in relation to Pacific rim peoples, and on Nov. 16, the theme will be complemented by Dr. Bryan H. Farrell, professor of Uvic's department of geography, with an address on Pacific 1970—Some Recent Observations, a summation of impressions from his recent stay in the South Pacific.

'NOTE FROM DICKENS'

As the final lecture prior to the Christmas break, Dr. Roy Daniells, UBC, recently elected president of the Royal Society of Canada, is scheduled to speak on A Seasonal Note from Dickens, an occasion marking the centennial of the famous novelist's death.

British Columbia's entry into Confederation will be marked by two lectures on the Spirit of '71 to open the second half of the program. One will be delivered by Willard Ireland, provincial librarian and archivist, on Jan. 11, the other by Dr. James E. Hendrickson, head of Uvic's history department on January 25.

Feb. 8, Dr. Jean-Paul Vinay, head of the department of linguistics at Uvic, will speak on Linguistics and Communication.

Bertram C. Butler, former Canadian high commissioner to Malaysia and ambassador to Thailand and Burma, will trace developments in Southeast Asia in a lecture entitled East of the Suez.

The series will close March 22, with Stuart Keate, publisher of the Vancouver Sun, discussing another element in communications under the subject Job Evaluation—The Press.

All lectures are open to the public.

School Libraries 'Out Of Date'

Many school libraries are still back in the "print age" of book research only when modern teaching methods require films, tapes, records, film-strips, radio and television, according to a report by the B.C. Teachers' Federation and the Educational Research Institute of B.C.

And the report adds that the libraries are lagging behind department of education standards set six years ago.

John Church, BCTF assistant director of professional development, visited 183 schools in preparing the report and noted that many libraries are inadequate and out of date because they have too few books and failed to use the audio-visual tools available to good teaching today.

LACK OF SPACE

The report says the library must be available at all times to all pupils if current trends in language arts, science and social studies are to work.

"Lack of adequate space — a library the size of a traditional classroom in a school of 500 to 600 pupils — was, unfortunately, found to be quite common," the report says.

The report recommended a three-year upgrading program for B.C. school libraries, expansion of library staff and materials and lifting of provincial restrictions on the size of school libraries.

Air Force Plans Bombing Runs

Warnings on practice firing and bombing to be carried out by the Canadian Armed Forces this month have been issued by the department of transport.

Bofors firings will be carried out by the armament depot at Christopher Point in the Strait of Juan de Fuca from Sept. 14 to 18, beginning at 8 a.m. and continuing until 4 p.m. each day.

The danger area is enclosed by an arc between the bearings 230 and 260 from Christopher Point radius 5,000 yards.

Planes of the 407 VP Squadron will carry out night illumination runs and practice bombing at the Texada Island bombing range on Georgia Strait from Sept. 14 to 18 and Sept. 21 to 25 at ceilings of 1,000 feet or below. The night illumination runs will take place between 10 p.m. and 4 a.m.

Practice bombing is scheduled for 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. each of those days.

Test firing of non-explosive torpedoes may be held daily during daylight hours in an area approximately 15 miles eastward from the Dallenas Island light.

Recovery vessels will carry a flashing red light in addition to the required lights and shapes. They should not be approached closer than 4,500 feet because of outlying moorings.

Further information can be obtained by contacting the Comox radio station VAC by radio-telephone.

Boaters travelling in Haro Strait are also warned that the daymark on Big Zero rock has been reported as missing.

The Weather and You

When I was a kid of 7 or 8 in Wisconsin, and I heard somebody say the "dog days" had arrived, I wondered what dogs had to do with it. Pewaukee Lake, where we lived in the summer, and the brownish Fox River nearby, had floating scum that was supposed to be a sign of the "dog days." But there were no dogs other than our Boston bull named Firpo.

The term, I learned years later, probably came into our language from the supposed influence on us, during the sultry days at the end of the summer, of the brightest star in the sky — Sirius, the Dog Star.

This is the time of the year when rabies is said to be more prevalent among dogs, which is dangerous for both dogs and people.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A weak weather system gave occasional rain to the north coast and to the central interior this morning. Intermittent rain will persist throughout the day across central areas with skies clearing tonight.

In the south temperatures again dipped into the thirties early this morning as skies remained clear. There were a few cloudy periods during the day but generally it continued sunny but cool.

By Friday the weather disturbance will have moved into Alberta and it will be followed by an area of high pressure. Thus most regions will be sunny although there will be a few cloudy periods. Overnight temperatures will be quite cool and frost will occur in many interior valleys.

USSR Fleet in Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) —A seven-ship Soviet fleet pulled into the port of Cienfuegos in Cuba's Las Villas province, Havana radio reported.

POLICE COURT

"I'd like to leave town. Every time I come here I get arrested."

John Duncan Walker, 56, leaned forward in the prisoner's box and addressed Judge William Ostler as he appeared in provincial court on a charge of causing a disturbance by being drunk.

"I just got out of jail yesterday. I'm getting too old. I'm ready for the grave any time," Walker told the judge.

"You probably do feel ready for the grave this morning but it's your own fault," Ostler replied.

He sentenced Walker to seven days in jail on the charge.

LONDON (AP) — The luck of the Irish paid off Wednesday for 66-year-old Patrick O'Malley — a man who arrived in England with only a few cents in his pocket and now has £285,000 ($712,500). O'Malley, married, with four grown children, won his fortune for a penny bet on a British soccer pool.

PURCHASED FOR $3.2 MILLION

Ocean Liner to Be Seagoing College

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A Chinese shipping magnate who made the $3.2-million high bid for the liner Queen Elizabeth says he plans to turn her into a seagoing international university.

The bid by C. Y. Tung of Hong Kong at a bankruptcy auction Wednesday saved the former queen of the Atlantic—now tied up here—from going to the scrap yard.

Italian scrap dealers had made a pre-auction offer of $2.4 million for the liner.

Tung said his C. Y. Tung Island Navigation Co., which owns 100 other passenger ships and freighters, would spend $4.5 million refitting the Elizabeth either in Hong Kong or Singapore to ply the seas as a luxury cruise ship until plans for the university are completed.

He said his C. Y. Tung Foundation would finance the floating university at the start, but that he hoped to persuade the United Nations to take over permanent sponsorship.

WAS QUEEN OF FLEET

The 1,031-foot Queen Elizabeth was built in Greenock, Scotland, in 1938 and was the pride of the Cunard Steam-Ship Co. until she was retired here in 1968.

Cunard planned to develop her as a convention centre and hotel. But these plans fell through, and she was sold for $8.6 million to Utilities Leasing Corp., Stanton and Robert Miller, and Charles Williard, all of Philadelphia.

Williard, the Millers and Utilities Leading formed a group called Queen Ltd., and began offering guided tours of the vessel. But last May Queen Ltd. filed voluntary bankruptcy proceedings, claiming assets of $8.6 million and liabilities of $12.8 million, and court-appointed receivers ordered the auction.

African Conference Lauds Viet Cong Peace Delegate

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — The 54-nation non-aligned conference gave an ovation today to Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, the Viet Cong's chief spokesman at the Paris peace talks, and voted to admit her provisional revolutionary government of South Vietnam as an observer at the conference.

"The United States has brought death, sorrow, ruin and countless suffering" to the peoples of Vietnam, Mrs. Binh told the conference.

She said the withdrawal of U.S. troops "in dribbles" is a manoeuvre to quiet public opinion. She accused the Nixon administration of intensifying the war with the aid of Vietnamization, "which really means getting Vietnamese to fight each other."

Prisoner's Wife Won't Head Group

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — Sybil Stockdale is giving up leadership of the National League of Families of American Prisoners in Southeast Asia.

After five years of letter-writing, speeches and trips throughout the United States and abroad to call attention to the plight of the captive men, Mrs. Stockdale said Wednesday:

"I just can't do it anymore."

Mrs. Stockdale is the wife of the highest-ranking U.S. prisoner in North Vietnam. She stepped down five years to the day after her husband, Navy Capt. James B. Stockdale, was shot down and captured.

The organization which she formed in 1966 claims 1,400 members among families of the 1,600 U.S. servicemen missing or believed prisoners of the North Vietnamese.

'Saving Not Proven'

WINNIPEG (CP) — There is no proof the Manitoba government's auto insurance plan will mean any saving of money, opposition leader Walter Weir said Wednesday.

He was replying to a statement by Municipal Affairs Minister Howard Pawley, who said in Bramelea, Ont., Tuesday the plan will save Manitobans $5 million annually.

"There's never been any kind of proof that there would be any savings or, indeed, that there would be any improvement in service," the opposition leader said in an interview.

Plans Announced

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — The University of Lethbridge may introduce its first post-graduate programs by 1975, acting president Bill Beckel said Wednesday.

Dr. Beckel said in an interview that due to existing monetary restraints and the current five-year financial program, there is no way of introducing such programs now.

But when the next five-year plan was introduced in 1973 there was no reason funds could not be included to allow for a graduate faculty.

Control Promised

EDMONTON (CP) — The interests of Albertans will be "jealously guarded" in the fields of pollution control and environmental management, Premier Harry Strom said in a statement today.

"The conservation authority will enable us to put policy decisions into the context of the total environmental picture," he said.

Winnipeg Booms

WINNIPEG (CP) — A $50 million development for the core of downtown Winnipeg was announced today. It includes an eight-level convention centre, three hotels, two apartment buildings, two office towers and major parking facilities.

The project, announced by metropolitan Winnipeg Chairman Jack E. Willis, is the first stage of metro's downtown development plan which envisages redeveloping a 14-block area in a 10-year period.

Request Granted

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba Court of Appeal Wednesday granted an appeal by Bertram Joseph Thomas, 22, who wants to spend two years in prison instead of 18 months. Serving a sentence for possession of stolen goods, theft and escaping custody, he said the longer term would give him time to take a training program.

'Put RCMP Aboard Aircraft'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two armed RCMP officers should be assigned to all Canadian overseas flights as a safeguard against hijacking, the Winnipeg Travel Agents Association proposes.

The association suggested the action in a telegram Wednesday to the prime minister's office.

The telegram says the association is concerned about hijacking and the "failure of government to take preventive action." It called for immediate "government initiative to stop hijackers before serious loss of life occurs."

Brendan O'Brien, president of the association, said the recent Mid-East hijackings are making people apprehensive about overseas and international travel.

He said travel agents are beginning to get an indication of this feeling from clients, although there has been no loss in business.

SFU Students Plan Vote of Confidence

VANCOUVER (CP) — Students at dissension-riddled Simon Fraser University plan to hold a vote of confidence in SFU President Kenneth Strand later this month.

Student President Norm Wickstrom said Wednesday that "a lot of controversy surrounds Dr. Strand since he has been in office."

The vote of confidence, to be conducted among all 5,000 students at SFU on Sept. 23 and 24, is tied directly to Dr. Strand's decision to fire one professor and refuse a special committee's recommendation ordering the reinstatement of four others.

Wickstrom declined to say whether or not he had confidence in the president's actions.

The controversy, which has been going on for more than a year, involves professors from the political science, sociology and anthropology departments.

'Eskimos Must Play Major Role' In Communications

By KEN POLE

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Eskimos and Indians must play a major role in development of communications in the Arctic, Jean Chretien, minister of Indian affairs and northern development, said Wednesday night.

Addressing delegates to the northern communications conference at a banquet, Mr. Chretien said:

"In the north, where unique barriers must be overcome, the means of communications, the direction in which it flows, the comprehension of the message take on a special importance."

By communications, he meant not only in the technological sense but also in its broadest interpretation—as an exchange of facts and ideas between two or more persons.

"Major developments, especially in the petroleum industry and supporting services, are about to get under way in the territories. The requirements for improved and expanded communication, both in the technological and the sociological sense, becomes more apparent every day.

"Northern communication is notoriously difficult and technological obstacles are not the only ones. Cultural barriers also create grave problems which are difficult to overcome.

"It is a paradox that the early traders and trappers seemed to have had less difficulty with inter-cultural communication than have their successors.

"Through his mastery of technology, the newcomer to the North is less dependent on the natives for assistance. Thus are some gaps widened while distance is being diminished."

He charged the communications industry with the responsibility for lowering these barriers, for ensuring better links between Canada's North and South.

"In this way, we can ensure that in the Yukon, the Mackenzie and the Eastern Arctic, government and people, developer and residents, are brought closer together rather than being driven further apart.

Northerners, especially the natives, wanted a voice in how their region was shaped: They wanted to become active in local government.

"We may have to evolve quite new and different forms of government, quite new and different forums in which views can be advanced," he said.

Much of past northern development had been oriented to southern needs."

"In the future, we must ensure northern needs are more fully and properly considered. The employment of northern residents in is a case in point.

"All to often the economic activity of the past has left out the indigenous people of the north: they have benefited little if at all.

"The success of our employment efforts in the territories rests largely on our ability to build better communication networks between developers, educators and northern residents.

'Technology Needed' To Stop Oil Spills

MACHIAS, Me. (AP) — Senator Edmund S. Muskie says more than just "pious hopes" of containing oil spills are needed before going ahead with plans to build a refinery complex at Machiasport.

"With the beauty of this coastal area, the high financial costs involved and commitments made, we need more effective technology than apparent at Santa Barbara" if a refinery is built here, Muskie said.

The Maine Democrat made the statements to oil industry executives who testified Wednesday at the final session of a two-day hearing on the environmental impact of coastal oil facilities.

OPTIMISM EXPRESSED

L. M. Ream, executive vice-president of Atlantic Richfield Co.; Dr. Armand Hammer, president of Occidental Petroleum Corp., and Robert A. G. Monks, president of Atlantic World Port, Inc., told Muskie's subcommittee on air and water pollution there is little chance of ever finding a method of eliminating completely the threat of oil pollution.

But they expressed optimism that methods of containing major oil spills in open seas can be developed within three years.

The three executives represent companies which have proposed construction of tanker terminals at Machiasport's 100-foot-deep rocky-bottomed harbor and refineries along the shore.

Dr. Hammer warned that if unable to obtain a free trade zone in New England "we would have no alternative" but to go to Canada.

"It's only 40 miles away and has the same advantages."

Meet Ford's Pinto

The little car with a little price and a lot to say

Pinto is the little car that's built to go a long, long way. A long way between gas stops. Service intervals. Repair bills. Even a long way between styling changes. Sized and priced like imports, Pinto is designed to free you from car cares, big and small. It's Ford's newest Better Idea. But, you've probably got lots of questions . . . and Pinto's got a lot to say.

Q. You say Pinto is small. How small?

A. Only 13½ feet bumper to bumper. That's only three inches longer than the well known little import. But Pinto's turning circle is three feet shorter. So Pinto can slip easily into mini parking spaces.

Q. How about inside?

A. Pinto's roomier than you'd expect an import-sized car to be. More room in front for shoulders. More room in back for knees and heads. More room getting in and out of the doors, too.

Q. How about price?

A. Pinto will be priced like the economy imports.

Q. Yes, but what will the price include?

A. Plenty. A 75 hp engine that's been proven in 50 million miles of motoring. A 4-speed fully synchronized transmission. Precise rack and pinion steering—the same as you'd find on expensive European sports cars like Jaguar and Porsche. High-back bucket seats. Full width rear seats. Thick, foam-padded upholstery. A rich all vinyl interior. All steel, rattle resistant unitized body/chassis construction that is welded together like a spaceship. DirectAire ventilation with upper level fresh air outlets. Heater defroster with 3-speed fan. Two-speed electric windshield wipers, electric windshield washers. Anti-theft steering column lock. Your choice of 15 exterior colours. And lots more.

Q. How about optional extras?

A. Pinto's a real economy car. So the option list is short and to the point. Like a more powerful overhead cam 100 hp engine. A 3-speed fully automatic Select-Shift transmission (some of the competition offer only a 2-speed automatic). Built-in air conditioning. Vinyl roof. Rear window defogger. Fold-down rear seat. A few dress-up extras to personalize your Pinto. Sensible things like that.

Q. How's Pinto on gas?

A. You can expect 30 mpg. That's based on tests of all the conditions you might normally encounter.

Q. What's the maximum cruising speed?

A. Pinto is designed to cruise safely at any legal, reasonable and proper speed.

Q. How about acceleration?

A. Compare Pinto's 75 hp engine with other cars Pinto's weight and size. The well known import has only a 57 hp engine. In a Pinto, accelerating to merge with fast pace Canadian traffic is no problem. Neither is stopping, by the way. Pinto's brakes require 30 to 50% less pedal effort than typical non-power systems.

Q. How about Pinto's engine? Is it aluminum? Air cooled? Or in the back of the car?

A. It's made out of rugged, lightweight cast iron. Not very exotic. But very reliable. It's water cooled for maximum thermo efficiency and minimum noise. And it's mounted up front for better stability and a familiar feeling of security.

Q. Many small cars seem to get blown around a lot in high winds or when passing a truck. How about Pinto?

A. Pinto has a low silhouette, a wider stance than any economy import. These give you more predictable handling under all conditions. Add Pinto's precise rack and pinion steering, and you really have a feeling of control.

Q. Well how about service?

A. Pinto is designed to require less routine maintenance than other cars. The usual service interval for cars in this class is three months or 3000 miles. Pinto doubles this to six months or 6000 miles—and eliminates many traditionally required items of maintenance.

Q. Is Pinto really that easy to service.

A. The handy owner will find that Pinto's really easy to service. The ten most often repaired or replaced items have been designed with the home tinkerer in mind.

Q. But suppose I've never worked on a car before?

A. Don't worry. There's a do-it-yourself manual you can order. You can get at things easier because the hood is designed to open all the way. You can even adjust the hand brake from inside the car. And do many typical service jobs yourself. You even get a specially designed gadget that looks like a key but which is really a handy do-it-yourself tool.

Q. How do I know you've got the bugs out of Pinto before I buy it?

A. Prototypes were run all over the place to make sure Pinto would stand up to all kinds of punishment. That's why the key metal in Pinto's body/chassis is galvanized for better corrosion resistance. And after a zinc rich primer coat, the final coat is applied with 60,000 volt electrostatic sprayers so the paint gets everywhere it's supposed to...more evenly. The acrylic enamel finish holds its shine without waxing.

Q. Pinto sounds great. It would be a shame if you changed it.

A. To quote Henry Ford II: "The Model T lasted virtually unchanged for 19 years. And with that in mind, I felt we should try to accomplish the same objective with Pinto. Any changes in the Pinto will be aimed at making it a better car, not just different looking."

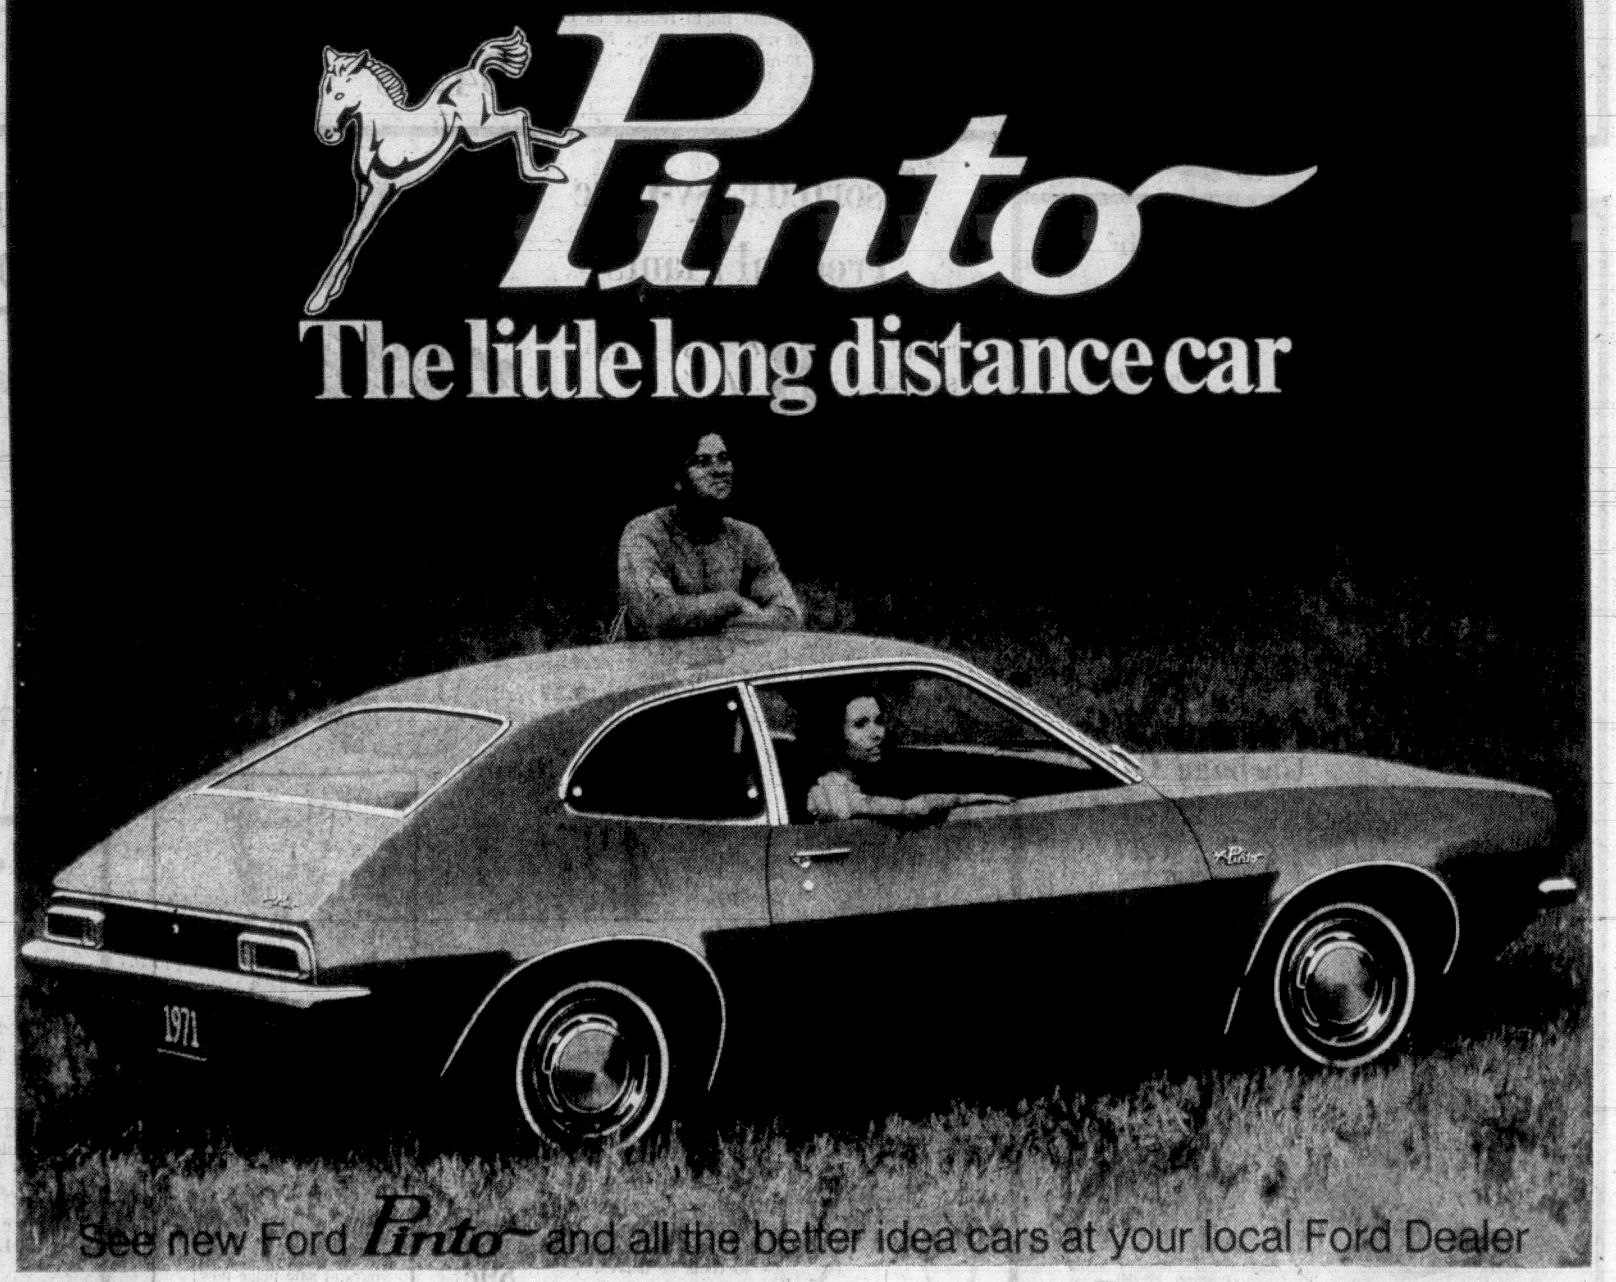

Q. One last question. Where can I try Pinto out?

A. That's easy. See your Ford Dealer. And if you have any more questions, he'll be glad to answer them.

Ford gives you better ideas...it's a fact

'This High-Rise May Be Hazardous To Your Health'

FRANKFURT (AP) — A West German doctor has found that living up in a high-rise apartment house may be hazardous to your health.

Dr. Dietrich Oeter, civic health officer in Hamburg, is warning city planners that economic and technical factors are far outweighing basic human physical and psychological needs in the increasing trend toward high-rise building projects.

Studies have shown that housewives and children living on the fourth floor of apartment houses are twice as likely to be ill as those on the ground floor, he said. Working fathers who are out of the house much of the day are not affected by what Oeter called "upper-floor illnesses."

Housewives who live in upper floors were found to be more prone to mental ills and their children are more susceptible to respiratory and circulatory ailments.

Apartment blocks, Oeter said, become barriers for children too small to use the stairs or elevators on their own. Their mothers often are too busy with housework to accompany them, so the children get out into the fresh air less frequently than their playmates on the ground floor. They also have little room in the apartment to play and let off steam—even if neighbors are tolerant of noise.

The mother's problem, Oeter said, is that they often feel totally isolated.

Garden Social Saturday Event

Victoria Chapter No. 17, Order of the Eastern Star will hold a garden social Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Morrish, 3510 Richmond Avenue.

A light lunch and afternoon tea will be served. There will also be a sale of home cooking.

NEVER TOO SOON TO LOOK AHEAD

Those pieces of driftwood laboriously gathered from Fleming Beach in Esquimalt will be appreciated a lot more during darkest winter when they make a fine blaze in the fireplace. The prudent wood gatherer is 12-month-old Timmy Nicholson of 1239 Park Terrace. His beach combing ends with a long walk home, using his stroller as a wood carrier.

Young Students Find Oldsters Fascinating

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — Success in bridging the generation gap seems to be promised in the newly-formed Spring and Autumn Alliance.

The name for the project was chosen by some University of California students who find elderly people make fascinating friends.

Patty Nelson, 19, a junior from Banning, Calif., is the spark for the project which she says "brings wisdom for us and enthusiasm for them."

"I started listening to these people. It's incredible to hear people who were married in 1910 — and lived through history!"

She hopes to compile a book of philosophies of life and anecdotes from old people.

"I think it's a neglected field. All the books are on children — and here is an incredible resource of knowledge and life histories that is being wasted."

"I have an elderly friend whom I have to call on the phone before I visit her — her husband won't let her open the door to any young person because he is afraid of them. They keep their door locked." Patty said.

Simply visiting elderly people is the method of the project. Patty and Lee are quick to say there are no political motives involved. They talk about other subjects, such as gardening or the oldster's grandchildren.

"At one place, a man showed me a couple of handwritten lists of what he didn't like about young people — and he wouldn't stay for our visit (at a retirement home). Gradually, he moved into the group and now we're good friends," said Lee.

"People ask me often, 'Why do you throw fire bombs? I always answer, I don't throw fire bombs and we oppose throwing fire bombs here and in Vietnam,'" said Patty.

She thinks that some radicals are naive when they talk about "power to the people" when they don't have the sensitivity to work with people.

"Nineteen is not the wisest of ages, but it has enthusiasm, intelligence and curiosity," she said.

Besides visiting, the young people have arranged campus tours for their older friends, provided transportation and taken them to dinners on the campus.

Rags-to-Riches Story Told Of Philippines' First Lady

MANILA (AP) — A rags-to-riches biography of the wife of the Philippines' president has finally appeared and become the best-selling book in the islands.

She is Imelda Romualdez Marcos and many gossips think she will run for the presidency herself when her husband Ferdinand ends two permitted terms in 1973, but she has denied she aspires to the job.

The Untold Story of Imelda Marcos, as the book is called, says official biographies of Mrs. Marcos have glossed over reality, giving her an aristocratic background. Actually, it says, her impoverished childhood implanted a driving ambition that has made her politically shrewd and the most powerful woman in the land.

The book was completed last year and 11,000 copies were printed several months before Marcos won his second term last November. It was withheld so it would not be an election issue, Mrs. Pedrosa says, and then was "held back through various pressures by Mrs. Marcos."

She says the book has been released now because a pirated edition was printed from unauthorized photographic plates. She and her husband have filed a suit against the publisher.

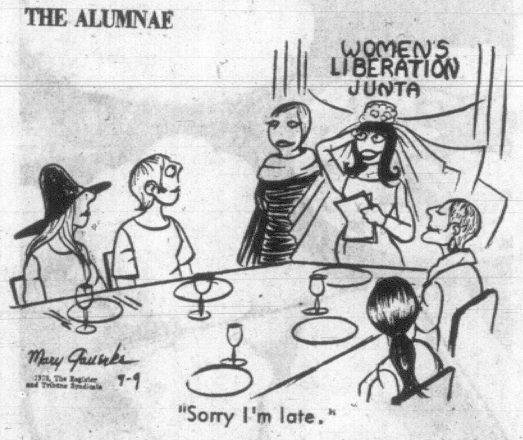

The Untold Story describes Imelda's fervent efforts to win a beauty contest, and her courtship by one of Manila's most prominent young men. That ended abruptly with a whirlwind romance and her marriage to Marcos, then a congressman.

This ushered in a new life amid high society and competitive politics. The unsophisticated girl from the provinces learned to combat the catty tactics of older, less attractive women in the social and political elite and plunged fully into her husband's 1964 campaign. She displayed extraordinary stamina, imagination and political flair.

Tommye Fights Pollution In One-Woman Crusade

YALE, Okla. (AP) — Tommye Thompson waded into her favorite fishing hole, came up with pants and shoes squirming with maggots and dead fish, and set out on a personal crusade against the forces polluting her environment.

The 34-year-old farm wife and mother of three brought smiles to many faces recently when she began prowling oil leases looking for pollution.

But nobody's laughing now — particularly not oil operators. Acting on Mrs. Thompson's complaints, the state corporation commission has shut down one oil lease and warned nine others to correct their ways or face similar action.

Mrs. Thompson was spurred to action in August by news that a fish kill on Skull Creek involved an estimated 100,000 fish, and by a similar incident soon afterward.

Since July she has spent every day except one looking for pollution from oil and salt water.

She leaves her house each morning before eight.

"I try to be back in before my husband gets home at 5:30," she said, "but I don't always make it."

She's worn out 10 pairs of canvas shoes crawling up rocky creek beds and over hills.

Singer Feels Young People Seem So Sad

TORONTO (CP) — Mahalia Jackson, the famous singer of Negro spirituals, says life is tougher for young people now than it was when she was growing up.

"I feel so sorry for the young people today," she said in a recent interview while in town to tape a television show.

She said the world has changed a great deal since she was young.

"We are living in times we never saw before. We need songs to lift us. We no longer know what tomorrow holds for us.

"It's terrible — the killing of people, the killing of policemen. I don't know why there is such hatred."

"At concerts they come to me afterward with the tears in their eyes. I say to them, 'Baby, what's the matter?' and they just can't tell me."

So great is her concern that Miss Jackson would like to retire and spend more time helping the young.

"I'm tired of the glittering lights," she said. "I want to help."

Ancient Roman Consumer Made Complaints Felt

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Consumer criticism has been around a lot longer than we think.

In 1902, author George H. Ellwanger attacked bottled salad dressing as ". . . that milky, mysterious compound which is set upon certain restaurant and hotel tables, and through the cajoleries of the merchant-grocer or blandishments of the advertiser often even invades otherwise respectable households."

Ellwanger's criticism appeared in "The Pleasures of the Table," a history of gastronomy from ancient times to the turn of the century. It has just been republished by the Gale Research Co., Detroit, in a library edition.

Consumerism of sorts existed even in ancient Rome, where penalties for offenders were considerably more severe and rapid than they are today. Ellwanger wrote of one wealthy Roman who punished his chef for an unsatisfactory dish by making the unfortunate man subsist on the offending food alone until he invented an acceptable substitute.

Two of France's most famous gastronomes, Anthelme Brillat-Savarin and Grimod de la Reyniere, drew Ellwanger's fire for another subject of current interest — "shop-puffery" or glowing endorsements of commercial products and/or establishments. But he also praised Reyniere's policy of exposing merchants who overcharged or sold inferior goods. Ellwanger viewed this as "a censorship that would be invaluable in the present days of adulteration."

History is repeating itself in other ways, to judge from the book. Diners out at the turn of the century were concerned about high prices. Ellwanger wrote that many of the best Parisian restaurants responded by omitting prices from their bills of fare ". . . so that one may dine without disturbing his digestion by thinking of the expense."

So you think fondue, a melted cheese dish that originated in Switzerland, is relatively new to the United States? Ellwanger claims it was introduced to New England by Brillat-Savarin during a visit in the early 19th century. Brillat-Savarin was a French lawyer but he is remembered today chiefly for his "Physiologie du Gout," a book about the physiology of flavor.

In it, he offered good advice on health — suggesting that good eating habits produce bright eyes, clear skin and good muscle tone.

He also laid down rules for a perfect dinner. Among them were — no more than 12 guests, to keep the conversation general; guests of varied occupations but analogous tastes, and known to each other so "that odious formality of introductions" might be avoided.

He urged a brightly lighted room, a table set with snow-white cloth and a room temperature of 60 to 68 degrees — just right for the wine.

The menu should be small, he wrote, but like the wine, of the best quality. And the meal should proceed slowly.

Cookbook publishing is another area in which some things haven't changed for centuries. Ellwanger wrote that many cookbooks were issued in the 17th century, often by republishing ancient recipes with minor changes. Most of those recipes make better reading than eating.

Herring Pye, for instance, contained pickled herring, raisins, currants, sugar, cinnamon, dates, butter, claret wine and verjuyce made from fermented crabapple juice flavored with damask rose petals.

If you think that sounds inedible, consider cock ale:

Two quarts of sack — a dry white wine, in which you steep a large raw rooster — "the older the better," according to E. Smith's "Compleat Housewife," 1736; plus raisins, mace and cloves. This seasoning was added to 10 gallons of ale after it finished fermenting. The combination was bottled and aged still further.

Women Just Might Possibly Be Right?

Male dominance is the target of a manifesto issued by militant feminists at the University of the Witwatersrand here. Kathy Saunderson, driving force behind the movement, says women are oppressed.

"So much so that today the very structure of our language defines women as a sub-species of man. We are the negative woman or female while man is both positive and neutral, both as individual and as universal human beings."

The manifesto grumbles that men cannot accept that when a female disagrees with them, she might be correct.

"We are tired of seeing ourselves as objects in the world, in a world when men as subjects colonize, ravage, profiteer and pollute everything around them

Fall Fruits and Vegetables: Old Favorites in New Recipes

One of the popular fall vegetables is acorn squash, also known as winter squash. Halved and baked, squash is a clever "container" for a variety of stuffings.

In another recipe, cauliflower and celery combine with link sausages for an easily prepared skillet dish, nourishing yet low in calories.

BAKED ACORN SQUASH

3 medium-sized acorn squash
Salad oil
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped fresh onion
3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
Salt and pepper

Cut squash in half lengthwise. Remove seeds and stringy portions. Brush cut surfaces with salad oil. Arrange, cut side down, in baking pan. Bake in 400 degrees F. oven 30 minutes, or until tender.

Saute green pepper and onion in butter or margarine until lightly browned. Remove from heat.

Scoop squash from shells reserving 4 shells. Mash squash; beat in onion mixture and drippings. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Pile mixture into reserved shells. Bake 15 minutes longer or until thoroughly heated. Makes 4 servings.

SAUSAGE-CAULIFLOWER SKILLET

1 pound link sausages
1 medium-sized head cauliflower
1 cup sliced celery
¼ cup water

Place sausages in large skillet. Add water to ¼-inch level. Cover and cook 5 minutes. Pour off all liquid. Cook, uncovered, over medium heat until sausages are browned on all sides. Pour off drippings.

Meanwhile, separate cauliflower into small flowerets. Add cauliflowerets, celery and ¼ cup water to sausages. Cover and cook over low heat 15 minutes. Season with salt as desired. Makes 4 servings.

FRESH APPLE CRUMB PIE

TO PREPARE FILLING:

2/3 cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
⅛ teaspoon salt
6 cups sliced, peeled apples (about 2 pounds)
2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
9-inch unbaked pastry shell

Mix together sugar, flour, cinnamon, nutmeg and salt. Lightly toss sugar mixture with apples and lemon juice. Turn into pastry shell.

TO PREPARE CRUMB TOPPING

½ cup flour
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup softened butter or margarine

Mix together flour, sugar and nutmeg. Blend in butter or margarine with pastry blender until crumbly. Sprinkle evenly over apples. Bake in 400 degree F. oven 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 375 degrees F. Bake 35 minutes longer. Makes 1 9-inch pie.

It's Apple Pudding Time

By HILDA BEASTALL

Apple desserts warm from the oven are sure to spell out a welcome for the youngsters coming home to lunch. Any effort used in preparation of these nutritious, appetizing foods is worthwhile in far reaching results on health and general wellbeing.

British Columbia apples are now heaped up in the markets and what is even better, many home gardens have one or more varieties of this most popular tree fruit. The quality is not affected by a nibble or two lost to an insect nor by a bruise when falling.

Popularity is well deserved, for no fruit is more versatile. One could collect apple recipes over two or three years and still come up with something new.

Perhaps these two apple recipes will be new to some readers and a welcome reminder to others who may have compiled similar.

First, Apple Roll in Syrup to serve after a hearty cottage cheese, lettuce and tomato salad.

The pastry is a quick but not rich mixture. Ingredients can be doubled if you want half for supper dessert the next day.

For the pastry roll: 1 cup whole wheat flour; ½ teaspoon baking powder; ¼ teaspoon salt; 1 tablespoon butter or other shortening. Cold water.

Method: cut the butter into dry ingredients. Add water gradually to make a stiff dough with a fork. Put the ball of dough between two wax papers on a board and roll to form a rectangle. Spread the rectangle of dough with a layer of thin apple slices, then roll from one long side. Seal ends and top by dampening the edges with cold water. Place roll in a greased baking pan.

No sugar is added inside the roll, which is part of the flavor appeal when served.

Make syrup from heating together for two minutes: ¼ cup brown sugar, ½ cup water, 2 tablespoons butter. Cool. Pour over the roll, coating it as a glaze. Cover with a lid or a piece of foil.

Bake at 350 deg. for about 1 hour. Serve warm.

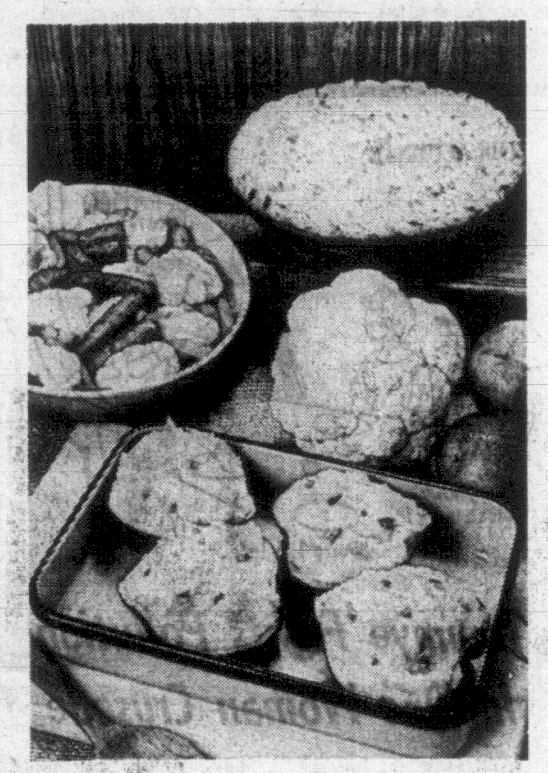

A Baked Apple Pudding provides another quite different taste treat for a cool day luncheon and is a real quickie to prepare since the batter is set aside for one hour while the apples are peeled and quartered, and a dozen other household jobs taken care of.

For a one-pint casserole (four good sized servings) take ¾ cup whole wheat flour, 1 egg, 1 cup milk and beat all together. Set aside for one hour.

Meanwhile, grease one-pint size casserole, and fill ¾ full with quartered apples. The chunks give better flavor and texture to this dish than thin slices. Sprinkle with 1 tbsp. brown sugar and a grating of fresh nutmeg.

Rebeat the batter and stir in ½ teaspoon baking powder. Pour the batter over the apples, coating all the top pieces. Bake in 350 deg. oven for about 1 hour or until apples test done with a fork. Sprinkle with level teaspoon brown sugar and serve hot.

There is no shortening or fat of any kind in the recipe and the result is a thick pudding with the tang of apples between. A fine dessert to accompany a salad of Canadian cheddar cheese with lettuce and tomatoes.

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Mrs. Farmer,

I have a lovely piece of material that a friend brought me from India. My problem is that the pattern or the border appears on the selvage and if I would like this border to appear at the hem of my dress, I will have to cut the pattern on the crosswise of the material instead of the lengthwise. I don't know too much about sewing and have always been told that your garment must be cut with the lengthwise grain of the material. Can you help any of us who come across this type of printed edge?—Mrs. O.C.

Dear Mrs. O.C.:

You are referring to fabric that has a border running either lengthwise with the selvage or across one end (as many of the hand-woven fabrics from India have). These borders can be used as a vertical or horizontal accent depending on your pattern and the effect you wish to achieve. These fabrics are usually woven firmly and an exception is made to the normal rule of cutting on the lengthwise grain.

Consider the completed garment carefully and decide just where you would like the border to appear and forget the grainline in this instance. Just be sure you have a true lengthwise or a true crosswise grain and from that point on, forget it and concentrate on your beautiful garment.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Just an Excuse

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Why can't women be as broad-minded as men? I really love my wife, Abby. We've been married 15 years and she's doing a super job with our home and children, but now she's letting a small incident she happened to see make a difference in our lives.

Now, you're a businesswoman, Abby, and you know how hard it is to keep a good secretary. Mine has been with me for five years and she does a great job. She's always on time, she's efficient and the price is right.

Well, last week my wife happened by my office and she saw me with my arms around my secretary. I've made friendly gestures like this for some time to show my appreciation to her, but my wife is mad, and she doesn't even want to speak to my secretary again.

Abby, will you please say something in your column about how hard a good secretary is to find? My wife may see it, and understand. —Troubled In Tuscon.

DEAR TROUBLED: A good television repair man is also hard to find! I mean one who comes immediately when you call him, has all the parts you need right with him, repairs the set and quotes a price that is right. How would you like to come home and see your wife "showing her appreciation" by putting her arms around him?

You will find "sympathy" under "S" in the dictionary, Mister.

And next time you want to show your "appreciation," try money.

DEAR ABBY: About those two young men in Canada whom the landlady suspected were gay. Isn't it strange that we can kill another man legally, but we aren't permitted to love each other?—Gerry.

DEAR GERRY: Yes, and ironic, too.

DEAR ABBY: I am absolutely furious! My husband is Irish and I'm Italian, so naturally we fight a lot.

Last week we had one of our famous fights and I walked out on him. (I went to my mother's, and he knew where I was.)

Well, the crazy fool put an ad in the local newspaper. "MARIE, PLEASE COME HOME

THE DOG MISSES YOU!"

Everyone in town saw it, and I'm now the laughing-stock of the community. What is your opinion of such a low-down trick? And what should I do?—Marie

DEAR MARIE: I think it's hilarious. Go home to that witty Irishman before some other woman grabs him.

DEAR ABBY: Our family uses a fine doctor who has been a good friend to the family for years, but he has a nurse-receptionist working for him who is really the limit. She tells things about patients she has no business telling. I know this for a fact, because while I was waiting for my mother this receptionist sure gave me an earful! Whew, if I had had a tape recording of what she told me about some of the patients, I think she could have been sued.

Now, I like this doctor and so does my whole family, but but I don't like that nurse. She is evil! My husband said to tell the doctor, but I'm afraid he might not like to hear it because he's had this nurse working for him for a long time and he trusts her.

DEAR PUZZLED: I'd tell the doctor. Even doctors' nurses get sick.

And she sounds sick to me.

What's your problem? you'll feel better if you get if off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Rubber Better Than Bread Crumbs

CHICAGO (UPI) — Children and others who make mistakes — in or out of school — should hail a man named Magellan. He may be the father of the pencil eraser.

Encyclopaedia Britannica says that the proceedings of the French Academy for the year 1752 reported that "a man named Magellan" proposed the use of caoutchouc as a replacement for bread crumbs in erasing black lead marks.

Caoutchouc is rubber and was given the name 200 years ago by Sir Joseph Priestly. Caoutchouc was used to rub out marks.

Priestly wrote: "I have seen a substance excellently adapted to the purpose of wiping from paper the mark of a black lead pencil."

Every teacher and every mother would agree with Priestly and Magellan that it is better than bread crumbs.

Valley to Study Pesticide Problem

DUNCAN — A special committee to study alternatives to herbicides and pesticides will be established by the Cowichan Valley Regional Board.

The decision was taken after the board received a letter from Kurt Horn, president of the Cowichan-Malahat Society for Pollution and Environmental Control.

Horn said he hoped the board will take action to control pesticides and herbicides.

Referring to the large number of bylaws in existence, director Kay Grouhel, mayor of Ladysmith, said bylaws are useless unless enforced.

She recommended the regional board send a letter to the Pollution Control Board regarding the pollution of all lakes within the Cowichan Valley regional district.

What concerns the board is the question of enforcing sanitation regulations on a houseboat now cruising Shawnigan Lake.

EPIDEMIC FEARED

"From the health point of view, something must be done or there will soon be an epidemic," commented director Jim Saunders.

"Many of the schools located on the Shawnigan Lake, as well as the residents of both the lake and Mill Bay, get their drinking water from the lake, which is now being polluted," he said.

A motion to make funds available for rubella vaccine was defeated by the board.

SUPPORT URGED FOR DRUG PARLEY

NANAIMO — Minister without portfolio Grace McCarthy Wednesday urged the Women's Christian Temperance Union to back Attorney-General Leslie Peterson's call for a national conference on alcoholism and drug abuse.

Speaking at a WCTU convention in Nanaimo, the minister described alcoholism as one of the most crippling diseases and a major source of family disorder in the country.

A national conference, she added, would lead to a co-ordinated federal-provincial policy to combat the problems of alcoholism and drugs.

Mrs. McCarthy said the WCTU should work with other organizations toward establishing such a conference, saying it was time that groups stopped working in isolation.

New Bid for Amalgamation

DUNCAN — A resolution calling for a plebiscite in December on amalgamating Duncan and North Cowichan will be submitted to the directors of the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce.

President Les Atchison said the decision came as the result of talks with Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

"It was evident from the comments of the minister that while the short-term benefits of the amalgamation may be nebulous, long-term benefits to the district would certainly accrue from such a union," he said.

He said a union would make it possible for the city and the municipality to eliminate much of the duplication of services and other costly areas of municipal concern.

"It would provide a unified force to insure the planned development of the north-eastern portion of the Cowichan Valley and Chemainus and Crofton areas," he said.

Air Victim Well Known On Island

Peter Anthony Frattinger, 61, of Ganges, one of five men killed Tuesday in a plane crash about 90 miles from Prince George, was a well-known Vancouver Island engineer.

He helped design the B.C. Forest Products Ltd. pulp mill at Crofton and was responsible for installing new machinery when the plant's capacity was augmented a few years ago.

At one time, he was also part-owner of Scott Point Marina.

Frank Richards, publisher of the Driftwood Weekly at Ganges, said Frattinger was active in every aspect of the community.

He was a former school trustee for the Gulf Islands and served as member of other Gulf Island administrative organizations.

Tahsis Ignores Gold River Study

Tahsis president J. V. Christensen today said he would not read a union-commissioned report which criticizes company-dominated Gold River.

"It's a year old," Christensen commented from jis office in Vancouver, and in any case he had not been provided with a copy of the study, ordered by the now-striking Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

The union decided to make the report public Wednesday. It deals with the "instant town" near the head of Tahsis Inlet and the degree of company control over municipal affairs.

'STARVE US'

PPWC ordered the study a year ago, charging Gold River, despite its status as a community under the Municipal Act, remains under the influence of the Tahsis Co. which built it, and its partner, International Paper Co.

The PPWC has been on strike against the Tahsis pulp mill and seven others across B.C. since July 24.

"The Tahsis Co. is trying to starve us into submission," said Bill Mewhort, a PPWC spokesman, who added the union decided to release the report because "the gloves are off now."

The report, written by Bruce Yorke of the Trade Union Research Bureau in Vancouver, says the benefactors of the Gold River development are two "foreign, billion-dollar giants" who own Tahsis — the east Asiatic Company of Denmark and the International Paper Co. based in the U.S.

"The municipal council remains a 'captive' of the company even though it is now formally elected by the citizens," said the report. Though Tahsis Co. pays 80 per cent of the total tax bill, "it should be higher."

Private Searchers 'Don't Get Credit'

Owners of private planes and boats don't get the credit they deserve when they take part in search and rescue operations, says Roy Parrett, chairman of the Victoria wing, Canadian Owners and Pilots Association.

"The Rescue Co-Ordination Centre (operated by the department of national defence) gets a great deal of help from individuals with planes and boats but indirectly the RCC gets the credit."

Parrett's criticism was sparked by Rear-Admiral Richard Leir's statements Tuesday that private citizens should be more involved in the centre's work. Leir had stated that pleasure boats had caused a sharp increase of incidents and private planes had been responsible for high costs of search and rescue operations.

Parrett adds: "I feel the admiral is not recognizing the great contributions made by marinas, owners of boats and planes."

★ ★ ★

He cites examples:

"Earlier this year four civilians lost their lives when carrying out an air search in the Campbell River area. There was no recognition for them — or their survivors.

"When Victoria's Reg Thurber was lost on a flight from here to Edmonton, somewhere on the B.C.-Alberta boundary line, volunteers searched for weeks, putting on the greatest civilian search of all time in Canada."

Parrett says that federal and provincial departments do not help the private pilot to act on the admiral's suggestion of making homing beacons on all planes mandatory.

"It costs anywhere from $300 to $1,000 to install one of these beacons. A provincially-owned plane gets one for less than $200 because it is exempt from provincial taxes.

"Federal planes, because they avoid import duties and the 12 per cent federal excise tax, anc be fitted out for $85.

"If they want us to have beacons for safety purposes they should cut out the tax."

Parrett adds that homing beacons are not the ultimate answer.

Group Condemns Hydro Policies

Concern over B.C. Hydro's power and policies brought about 35 people to a public meeting at View Royal Community Hall on Wednesday.

They were almost unanimous in condemning the crown corporation's methods of obtaining private land and its proposed overhead transmission lines in Greater Victoria.

Pat Codyre, who acted as chairman of the meeting, and whose house and property were recently expropriated by Hydro, said:

"If the people of Victoria knew what they have ahead of them in proposed power lines they would be here by the hundreds.

"You would be astounded if you knew how many people are using the law against the interests of the people."

DISCLOSURES

Codyre promised to make some disclosures next time about the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen, the job placement agency set up last year by P. A. Gaglardi, minister in charge of welfare.

A series of slides made recently by Henriette Pilon showed how Hydro transmission towers contribute to visual pollution in the Capital Region.

Miss Pilon screened a second group of slides which showed substandard housing, health hazards and unsafe conditions on public property in Greater Victoria. She blamed greedy landlords and unconcerned public officials for the bad conditions, but said it's up to individuals to speak out and have the problems rectified.

Codyre said the majority of people in this area have been afraid to raise their voice against the unfair treatment from large government agencies and large businesses.

"Everybody will tell you you can't beat Hydro — don't believe it, that is one of the biggest fallacies of the age," he said.

Codyre said this meeting served to draw attention to other issues that could be discussed at future public meetings.

He also referred to B.C. Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum and his drinking in July of weed-killing chemicals used by Hydro to clear plant life away from power line right-of-ways.

"If Mr. Shrum thinks he had a cocktail with that drink he had, when I'm through with him he'll think he's been on a real binge."

NOT FOR WOMEN

Codyre, who began his fight against Hydro last spring, said he is not trying to get more money for his Munn Road property from the government.

"I have never yet discussed with Hydro any price on my property. I am fighting for the principle that we as Canadians can live where we want to as long as we don't disturb our neighbors or stop progress."

He told the people who attended the meeting:

"You are the salt of the earth because you will encourage others to come out. You have no ulterior motive, you are not out for money, you are here for justice."

Jim Gorst, who ran in last fall's provincial election as a New Democratic Party candidate in Esquimalt, said Hydro officials have already admitted they would not run an overhead transmission line through Oak Bay even though they plan to do so in less affluent parts of the city.

"The people who make decisions that affect the lives of most of the people in Greater Victoria live in that area (Oak Bay and Uplands)," he said.

Continents on a 'Slow Journey'

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Two U.S. government scientists have produced visual support for the theory that for the last 200 million years continents have been making a slow journey across the face of the earth.

They have produced a series of five maps which, when viewed in sequence, are much like a time-lapse movie, showing what they believe happened since the time there was on earth an universal mother of continents.

The conclusions of Dr. Robert S. Dietz and John C. Holden, marine geologists with the environmental science services administration in Miami, Fla., were being published today in the Journal of Geophysical research.

The mapping grew from two relatively new geologic concepts: that the floor of the sea is gradually spreading and that the outer hull of the earth is made of great crusty plates.

BACK WITH MAPS

Pangaea, considered in some quarters to have been the universal mother of continents, was unbroken at the end of the Permian geological period 225 million years ago.

About 200 million years ago, what ultimately was to become North America, Europe and Asia—the supercontinent Laurasia—split away from the mass, called Gondwana, that was to break into Africa, South America, Australia, Antarctica and India.

That created an Atlantic Ocean that lay east-west along the equator as sort of an offshoot of the Pacific. Africa and South America split away from eastern Gondwana, while another split lifted India off Antarctica.

NEW RIFT OPENED

About 135 million years ago, sea floor spreading opened the North Atlantic and Indian oceans and a new rift began splitting South America away from Africa.

During the geologic period ending 65 million years ago, the North Atlantic rift grew northward, extending the North American-European split. Australia tore away from Antarctica, Africa drifted north, and India moved to the equator.

India's journey stopped when it crunched under southern Asia and uplifted the Himalayan Mountains. Africa continued, and split in its northeastern bulge to establish the Arabian Peninsula and the Red Sea.

Tradition Falls

EXETER, N.H. (AP) — Phillips Exeter Academy, along with Yale University and McSorley's Old Ale House, is the latest all-male institution to cast aside tradition and welcome women through its doors. Exclusively a boys' school for 189 years, Phillips Exeter announced that 40 girls would be admitted at the opening of school Monday.

Tender Accepted For Vic West

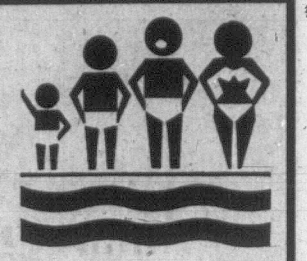

The building and grounds committee of the Greater Victoria school board Tuesday accepted the $20,900 tender of contractor Jay Bobiak for kindergarten renovations to a brick annex at Victoria West Elementary.

The Bobiak bid was the lowest of three submitted and included $542 figure added to the base bid for alternative materials which the committee also accepted.

The provincial treasury board in early August approved $21,000 worth of renovations to the annex.

Promising Buds Can Be Seen Now

By HILDA BEASTALL

One of the shrubs to bloom well before spring is thought about is also among the first to drop its leaves in fall. Daphne mezereum, flowering on bare stalks in February looks presentable enough all summer but long before September, the leaves turn a sickly yellow and drop before the first week is gone.

Hilda

While this early flowering and early maturing of leaves does not occur as an infallible rule through the whole range of shrubbery plants it is worth more than passing interest.

Early flowering in spring does seem to call for a beginning during the previous year. Botanists term this "bud initiation" when considering woody plants.

In early-blooming bulbs, the flowers are "laid down" during the previous late spring and develop in summer storage months. This goes on fortunately whether the bulbs are lifted from the ground and stored artificially, or remain in almost dry ground during summer.

This week we are noticing why the small winter bulbs need planting in late August.

As soon as 48 hours of cooler temperatures were experienced, green shoots of Glory-of-the-Snow (chionodoxa) and of muscari were seen poking through the soil.

When a narcissus bulb is brought to the surface by mistake, new white roots are already emerging. In this climate there is no season when every plant is dormant. The nearest approach to this condition is during a deep frost lasting several days—and then the plants seem to be just holding their breath, merely suspending activity until things are again normal.

If we look closely in the leaf axils on forsythia stems we notice tiny buds indicating next spring's flowers are already initiated.

This is all quite normal, but noticing details of nature's progress adds so much to the meaning of life that we feel it worth bringing to the attention of those gardeners who may feel September is the end of everything.

Look at the tips of rhododendrons, azaleas, pieris, and even the June flowering enkianthus. You will find buds already promising next year's flowers.

Don't feel that you have to "do something" now that you've seen them. Leave this for nature to handle, but continue your observations through fall and winter. This is part of our year-round gardening interest here, and we need to take time out to enjoy developments as they come.

It may be a form of escape. But what better form could it take than a return to the more durable and fundamental processes of the world around us?

Entire City Will Be Classroom

VANCOUVER (CP) — A private high school organized here this summer will have the city for its classroom.

Students will use three rooms in a downtown school as a home base but community facilities, including city hall, the public library and recreational areas, will be the main areas of investigation.

Robert Sarginson, one of the five teachers planning the school, said in an interview that instruction methods will be aimed at making courses "relevant to the lives of students."

The name of the school, simply, is Relevant high school.

"If you took a poll of high school students," said Sarginson, "you'd find that the most common complaints are boredom, irrelevancy and being treated as children.

"I'm not sure how many kids are awake for five or six hours in a public school classroom."

The school will follow provincial curriculum guidelines, but will broaden and embellish courses by bringing in represenatives of business, professional and various labor fields and by taking students to resources outside the school.

"Because we're operating in the downtown area, this can be done," said Sarginson.

"We won't operate from rows of desks. We'll take students to places where the sciences are applied, and we can discuss all kinds of social issues and then take them to people who work on these issues."

For the first term, about 60 students in Grades 7 to 11 will be enrolled. There will be three or four full-time teachers, each of whom will be paid a "minimal" salary. The student fee has been set at $400.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

Today's deal contains a type of book play that is second nature to the better players, but is often mishandled by those who are not familiar with it. The hand arose in a recent rubber-bridge game.

North-South vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ◇.

South made a good guess when he chose to rebid three no-trump, rather than two no-trump. Had he made the latter bid, North might well have passed with his six points. Form a pragmatic point of view, perhaps he should have bid only two no-trump, since that is all he made. However, three no-trump was there for the taking.

East put up the diamond queen at trick one, and it was allowed to win. He continued with the diamond 10, and when South again played low, West overtook with the jack. West next led the diamond king, dummy discarding a spade as South took the trick with his ace.

Dummy was now entered for the first and last time via the ace of hearts. The queen of clubs was then laid down, and East made the winning play when he declined to cover the queen with the king. With the queen winning, the nine of clubs was played next, South being forced to capture the trick with his 10 when East again followed suit with a low club.

South then laid down his club ace, in the hope of felling East's king. When he failed to do so, all he could make were eight tricks: two spades, two hearts, one diamond, and three clubs.

South's sole hope of fulfilling his contract rested in his bringing home four club tricks. The best chance of accomplishing this was to finesse against East's hoped-for king. But declarer should have provided for the possibility that East might have four clubs, in which case three finesses would have to be taken.

To accomplish this, the nine of clubs (instead of the queen) should have been led on the initial club lead. With the nine winning, the queen would then follow. And when the queen would win the trick, a third club lead could then have been made off dummy, with South's jack being finessed successfully. And that would be that.

"That's really something, a genuine 1912 silver dollar," said Andy.. "Do you have any more?"

Steve smiled. "I've got eight of them, but one's a good fake. Looks the same but it's a trifle heavier."

"Okay, then. Here's one for you. Tell me how you would identify it for sure with only two weighings if you had a balance scale but no weights."

You figure it out.

Stanfield Takes Tough Stand On Conservative Party Unity

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Reported dissension within the Progressive Conservative party appeared to dissipate Wednesday as some 60 MPs heard leader Robert Stanfield take a tough, no-nonsense stand on party unity at a private caucus. Later he publicly declared himself "perfectly happy" with MP support.

The caucus met in an excited atmosphere Wednesday, on the heels of a Saskatoon meeting of western MPs which gave birth to reports of widespread dissatisfaction and rumors of a minor rebellion against Mr. Stanfield.

But there was no uprising at Wednesday's meetings, and Mr. Stanfield emerged from the caucus room to thunderous applause from his followers.

"I am quite confident . . . I have the full confidence of caucus," he told reporters."

There was no formal vote on the question of confidence in the party leader, but sources said members stood one after another to defend the leader.

The sources said that any criticism of Mr. Stanfield was couched in more general criticism of the party organization. There were several suggestions for a more aggressive stance by the party—and presumably Mr. Stanfield—and some outspoken viewpoints that the Liberal government was being allowed to govern unmolested.

Mr. Stanfield told reporters that "we intend to be more aggressive.

"I think the public would expect us to be."

The Conservative leader also laid down ground rules for future regional conferences and he said that never again should a meeting, such as the Saskatoon gathering, appear to be a secret session. He said it is imperative that "party headquarters and the leadership be in the picture" for such meetings.

He told reporters he would encourage regional meetings of MPs, providing the ground rules were followed, and he would expect the question of leadership to arise. He said he would expect any Conservative meeting "to discuss the problems of the party and even problems of myself."

DON'T PULL PUNCHES

Sources said that few punches were pulled as MPs discussed the state of the party and offered their advice for improvements. And, in turn, Mr. Stanfield gave pointed advice about "secret" meetings and public rumblings about internal differences.

"You couldn't expect me to sit there all day and not give a little advice," he said later.

Asked whether he received advice about improving his image, he replied: "I couldn't imagine my image being improved."

After the Saskatoon meeting and the subsequent reports of discontent, there was a huge gathering of reporters waiting for the caucus to begin Wednesday.

"Who, me?" asked Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) when asked whether he is involved in any rebellion against Mr. Stanfield's leadership.

He said the party could win the next election under Mr. Stanfield and "I know of no rebellion in the party."

Other MPs who attended the Saskatoon meeting made similar comments.

SASKATOON REMEMBERED

Sources said that the question of that Saskatoon meeting cropped up several times during the day, even when the caucus was delving into other subjects, such as unemployment, agriculture and plans for the resumed session of Parliament.

"These reports of dissension in the ranks were bound to dominate things," said one MP. "But there was certainly no sign of any so-called rebellion."

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward Hastings), the caucus chairman, reported at the luncheon break that he believed Mr. Stanfield's leadership had been "100 per cent reinforced." He said later that it had been "a most productive conference."

When Mr. Stanfield emerged, someone said he expected the party leader to be wearing a 10-gallon hat.

"I am not even armed," said Mr. Stanfield.

"What about knives?" he was asked.

Mr. Stanfield turned his back, to show there were no knives there.

Forest Firm Hired 340 Fewer Students

MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. says it hired 340 fewer students during the past summer than it did last year, and says labor unrest in B.C. was the cause of the reduction.

The company says it gave summer jobs to 740 students this year as compared with 1,080 in 1969.

Students are hired each summer to maintain the work force in woods and mills while regular employees take their holidays.

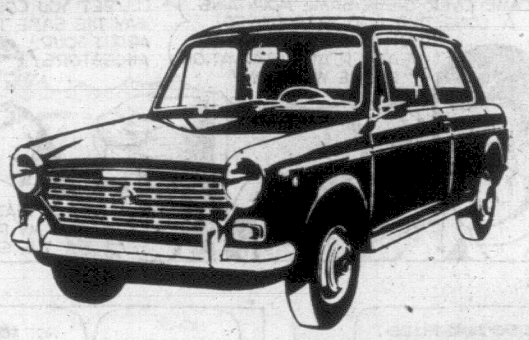

This year, however, work stoppages in the construction industry, towboat industry and pulp and paper sector prevented companies from scheduling vacations in a normal manner.

A strike by members of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada which started July 24 resulted in layoff of 210 students at MacMillan Bloedel's Harmac mill.

Sailors to Be Freed

CAIRO (AP) — The International Red Cross has informed Egypt that Israel will release 14 Egyptian sailors within the next few days. The sailors were among the crew aboard the liner Kniskina Marcia, which sank near the Israeli port of Haifa Sept. 5.

Canadian Skipper Free From Fishing Violation

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — United Staes attorney Doug Baily said Wednesday the skipper of a Canadian fishing vessel will not be charged with violating U.S. territorial waters.

The vessel, Clipper II, of Prince Rupert, was escorted into Ketchikan Tuesday.

Baily said this fishing violation might be different from most because it may involve a boundary dispute.

TOPLESS BUFFERS CHARGED

MIAMI, Fla. (CP-AP) — Police arrested three girls Wednesday who were giving customers topless shoeshines that cost $2. Police said the buffers were in the buff—from the waist up.

Bernice Ward and Julie Synder, both 18, and 20-year-old Diane Jordan were released on $500 bond after being charged with public nudity.

Alfred Leitson and Allan R. Strong, owners of the Adult Bookstore, were arrested on charges of allowing an employee to appear in public nude above the waist. Both were released on bond.

Shots, Tear Gas Halt Indian Protest

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—With most of their leaders in jail following a battle with police and state agents, Indians claiming fishing rights in the Puyallup River said today they have no plans for the immediate future.

Sixty-two persons, including five juveniles, were arrested Wednesday after a struggle in which four shots were fired and tear gas was lobbed, but no one was hurt.

A railway bridge burned briefly after a firebomb was hurled during the battle.

Police Lieutenant William Luevke said all 62 had been booked on felonious riot violations. Authorities said they expected to file formal charges today.

The battle came after state fisheries department agents, backed by 15 police, moved in to stop Indian net fishing.

The Puyallups say treaty right allow them to fish. Indians had camped along the river and fished for several weeks.

But fisheries patrol chief R. W. Josephson said the Indians' state-authorized fishing season opens Sept. 21 on a three-day a-week basis.

SHOTS FIRED

Prisoners were being held in the city and Pierce County jails. Police Chief Lyle Smith said formal charges would probably include arson, possession of firebombs, possession of weapons, and assaulting officers.

Police moved in after first ordering Indians by bullhorn to lay down their arms.

As state agents moved by boat to seize a net, Indians on a Burlington Northern Railroad bridge fired four shots, observers said. Police responded with tear gas, and moved in on the group of 100 Indians.

Indians from the Mestizo, Apache, Cree, Sioux, Blackfoot, Cherokee and Yakima tribes had come to the camp since July. Armed security guards were on duty 24 hours a day to protect it from "outsiders," the Indians said.

Burlington Northern workers have reported that people near the bridge pointed guns at them and once shot out a light on a switching engine.

Indians said "vigilante type people" who come to the camp were responsible for the trouble.

"These people will do anything to destroy the camp," said Many Dog Hides, a spokesman.

"They attempt to undermine the morale of the camp and create incidents. No one from the camp does it."

"It's a sad thing we had to bring the guns out, but we are a dying people and have to fight for survival as we have done for about 500 years."

Indian girl, under arrest, carried off by policeman

Cyclamate Products Still on Store Shelves

WASHINGTON (AP) — Products containing cyclamates, the artificial sweetener banned by the U.S. government as a possible source of cancer, still dot the shelves of the food stores one week after they were supposed to be cleared off.

The Associated Press survey of supermarkets, neighborhood stores and health food stores taken Tuesday in eight cities across the United States turned up products containing cyclamates in 21 of the 36 stores checked.

Most managers of the stores said the presence of the products, banned as of Sept. 1, was an oversight. Others said they misunderstood the Food and Drug Administration order or were leaving the products on the shelves until the distributor could pick them up.

★ ★ ★

The cyclamate-bearing products found included canned macaroni with beef in tomato sauce, fruit drink, imitation maple syrup, gelatin, pudding, fruit and nut chocolate bars, jelly, pie filling and canned peaches, apricots, pears and fruit cocktail.

Government and industry officials, who were interviewed the same day as the survey but before the results were tabulated, expressed satisfaction that the withdrawal was "orderly and effective."

★ ★ ★

The National Canners Association, which represents the segment of the industry hardest hit by the FDA action late last month, had estimated the move would catch canners with $30 million to $35 million of stock.

Generally, canners advised retail stores to strip the labels from cyclamate products and return the labels for cash or credit settlements. Disposal of the cans was left to grocers.

B.C. Lake 'Near Lethal'

TORONTO (CP) — Norvald Fimreite of the University of Western Ontario's zoology department says the mercury level in a species of shorebird on Pinchi Lake, B.C., has reached a near-lethal level.

Fimreite said a reading as high as 17.4 parts per million has been reached in rednecked grebe.

He said a level of about 20 was responsible for the deaths of ret-tailed hawks in Finland.

Canada 'Banana Republic'?

TORONTO (CP) — A University of Toronto economist charged Wednesday that Canada might become a "banana republic" of the United States through a series of separate energy deals which would amount to a continental energy policy.

Prof. Mel Watkins, also vice-president of the New Democratic Party, made the comment at a news conference held to announce cross-Canada demonstrations Saturday against the proposed export of nine trillion cubic feet of natural gas to the U.S. in the next 20 years.

"We want to bring to the attention of the Canadian people the kind of sellout that is going to take place on a piecemeal basis.

"There won't be anything we can point to as an energy policy, but the historians will tell us we sold out our resources," he said.

Demonstrations will be held in Toronto, Ottawa, Kingston and Winnipeg, and possibly in some cities in Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

MOD SQUAD. 7 p.m., Channel 6. Sammy Davis Jr. stars in tonight's episode, Survival House, as a cured dope addict facing a charge of statutory rape. For some unknown reason he refuses to clear himself of the charge and the Mod Squad wants to find out why.

★ ★ ★

FAMILY AFFAIR 7 p.m., Channel 8. (Repeat) An episode with lovely faces and "heart." Buffy and a little Puerto Rican girl who is unable to speak make friends. When Uncle Bill sees a drawing by the silent child, he goes into action, hoping to convince her protective mother of the need for special schooling by introducing a deaf sign-language teacher onto the scene. Audree Norton, from the National School for the Deaf, plays the instructor, and she's just as beguiling as the lovely, sad little Puerto Rican child. Ladies will enjoy this one thoroughly.

★ ★ ★

SPECIAL. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. "The Ice People." Another documentary on the Eskimo and how modern man's technological invasion of his environment is threatening his existence. Hugh Downs is the on-camera host as we wander about the Arctic area learning how the generation gap is even affecting these ancient people who have made survival in sub-zero temperature a way of life. Since we are just beginning to understand the Eskimos, the documentary raises more questions than it attempts to answer, which is certainly a plus.

★ ★ ★

SPECIAL. 8 p.m., Channel 7. "America." Traveling by bus from Boston to the Golden Gate, host Glenn Ford and a group of dancers and singers take a look at the country and perform before its scenic backdrops. Lou Rawls sings of despair in the slums while walking down Philadelphia streets; Bill Medley strolls through Arlington Cemetery in Virginia asking for Lincoln, Martin Luther King, and John F. Kennedy, in the hour's most touching moments; and John Hartford renders a pleasing "Gentle on My Mind" steaming down the Mississippi River. Dancers work out in the desert and on San Francisco streets; Glenn Ford quotes Thoreau and Walt Whitman; and the members of the cast deal mostly in generalities as they offer their impressions on the state of the Union. Regretfully, the quickie tour covers much that is familiar, but a good selection of faces, and some out-of-the-way shots like the one of a Kentucky farm, turn it into a visually interesting show.

★ ★ ★

COMEDY SPECIAL. 8 p.m., Channel 2 and 6. Friends, Romans, Countrymen. The story, set in ancient Rome, involves a senator and his family trying to lead a normal life amid the chaos of Nero's administration. Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster produced it. Jack Carter, Faye DeWitt, Dom DeLuise, Arte Johnson, Lew Parker and the Canadian comedy pair star.

★ ★ ★

SPECIAL. 9 p.m., Channel 4. "Changing Scene." Gene Kelly, the front man for this modern minstrel show, calls for support from James Garner, Barbara Eden, Arte Johnson, and the Mike Curb Congregation. Garner and his host do a spoof on the "Butch Cassidy" movie, singing "Raindrops Keep Fallin' on My Head"; Arte Johnson impersonates George Washington, and a gypsy, among others, and Barbara Eden sings "Windmills of Your Mind." The cast tries on "Hamlet" for laughs with Arte Johnson playing the Melancholy Dane; Gene Kelly dances to "Feelin' Groovy"; and the Mike Curb Congregation take over the old minstrel standards with plunking banjos and tap dancing feet before the big wrapup, a rousing version of "Mame."

THE GOLDDIGGERS. 8:30 p.m., Channel 8; 10, Channel 5. Last show of the summer season for the dancing girls, their host Charles Nelson Reilly, and English comic Marty Feldman. Marty becomes a crazy Sherlock Holmes in a film clip, and tries to reduce on a health farm in a sketch. Reilly has fun in a transplant bit, and the Golddiggers jump from a 1945 song medley to such current hits as "The Time Is Now" and "Frank Mills" from "Hair."

★ ★ ★

SPECIAL. 10 p.m., Channel 4. "Calgary Stampede." The title refers to the famous rodeo in Calgary, an annual event fans of this wild-west adventure won't want to pass up. Tonight, Arthur Godfrey, the Grand marshal of the Calgary Stampede this year, leads you through the highlights of the ten-day affair featuring bull riding, wild cow milking, bareback and saddled bronc riding, chuckwagon races, and the like.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Dr. Harry Harlow, University of Wisconsin, who recently wrote about rhesus monkey infants, isolated from their mothers and exposed to mother-substitutes made of cloth and wire said that six months of social isolation of a baby monkey results in abnormal social, sexual and maternal behavior after it grows up. For some time, Dr. Harlow's efforts to rehabilitate the monkeys that had suffered so severely from isolation were unsuccessful. Adult monkeys put with them did not help. Eventually, Dr. Harlow found that three-month-old female monkeys who when put with the solitary monkeys kept trying to make friends with them, at last succeeded. Then the asocial isolates were cured and began to show essentially normal monkey social behavior.

In the past, no male monkey that had been isolated was later able to reproduce sexually. It looks now is if the animals who have been rehabilitated by the little monkeys will be all right sexually.

The lesson we human beings can get from all this is that it is a very serious and harmful thing that some parents do, when they try to bring up children without showing them all the love and affection and physical contact that a growing child, as well as a growing monkey infant, needs. Without shows of affection, a child may grow up with serious psychological and behavioral problems, and may have a difficult time functioning normally as an adult.

Fairly common is the paralysis of one side of the face due to injury of some kind to the nerve that comes out of the brain to supply the muscles of the face and cause them to contract.

Rencently, Drs. H. Tahl, H. R. Crowley and C. T. Yarington, Jr., of the Nebraska College of Medicine in Omaha, wrote that there are a number of causes for this type of nervous diseases that is called Bell's palsy. They say that there could be a little stroke, a tumor or a little abcess in the brain, a meningitis (an inflammation of the lining of the brain). There could be a shingle-like or germ-caused inflammation of a ganglion (nodule) on a nerve, or there could be a leukemia (a sort of blood cancer), a beginning diabetes or a multiple sclerosis.

Commonly, however, the paralysis clears up by itself in a matter of weeks. The danger is that in some cases, there has been so much injury around the nerve that the person might either remain paralyzed or might not recover completely. In such cases an operation is advisable. The important thing is to get a very well-trained and well-equipped neurologist who can find out, with the help of tests, whether or not the operation is necessary.

Gambling Empire Subject of Probe

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — A four-member royal commission was named Wednesday to investigate agreements which established on Grand Bahama Island a multi-million-dollar gambling and business empire with rights considered above those of the island government.

The commission's objectives as outlined here could torpedo a huge investment at Freeport by Benguet Consolidated, Inc., a firm traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Other members are Sir Fred Phillip of St. Vincent, a former governor of St. Kitts, Nevis and Anguilla; Malcolm F. Lindsay of Toronto, former commissioner of the RCMP, R. McAllister Lloyd of New York, a banker and chairman of the UN investment committee.

The commission was announced by Prime Minister Lynden O. Pindling to "examine the question of the future" of Freeport, Grand Bahama.

A government source said the language meant that Pindling's black government believes the agreement made by former, white-dominated governments had given away the people's prerogatives. A previous inquiry into just the gambling activity had uncovered financial interests by former government officials in the gambling operations.

The source said: "If the commission finds that the Hawksbill Creek Agreement is not consistent with government sovereignty they might abrogate or modify the agreement."

Pindling said only that the commission was asked to make recommendations "as to what changes, if any, ought consequently to be made in the terms of the Hawksbill Creek agreement and subsequent amendments."

Under the 99-year Hawksbill agreement signed in 1955, American millionaire Wallace Groves was given the right to set up the Grand Bahama Port Authority, which controls the companies operating the two casinos on the island.

In 1968, Groves sold his controlling interest for a reported $80 million to Benguet Consolidated, Inc., a mining firm.

The rights under the agreement gave the owners exclusive concession to all business in the free port area of the city called Freeport, Grand Bahamas. Tourism is the principal industry.

U.K. Unionists Agree to Fight For Higher Pay

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — British trade unionists demanded Wednesday a bigger share of the national wealth for the working men and agreed to fight for higher pay and a shorter working year.

Delegates representing 9.4 million workers told Prime Minister Edward Heath and his Conservative government they will face a united labor movement "if they persist in a policy of wage restrictions and punitive measures against the unions."

The delegates approved without dissent at the annual convention of the Trades Union Congress a motion demanding "higher wages and salaries and the shorter working year, as part of the necessary process of sharing the benefit of technological change and reducing unemployment."

Lot Action Delayed

Oak Bay council has delayed action on a bylaw which would amend lot requirements on a 6.3-acre Island Road site from 9,000 to 17,000 square feet.

The Times erroneously reported Wednesday that council had given first, second and third readings of the bylaw at Tuesday's meeting.

The amending bylaw, which does not require a public hearing, unlike a zoning bylaw, would bring lot sizes in line with the average Uplands properties.

Bennett to Push Superport Plan

Premier Bennett said today he will discuss his proposal for a superport at Prince Rupert with federal Transport Minister Don Jamieson while in Ottawa this weekend.

Bennett, who has suggested Ottawa should be willing to spend up to $100 million on a bulk-loading port, said the talks will be separate from federal-provincial talks scheduled to begin at the weekend.

They'll Snoop the World Over

By PAT DUFOUR

Noah and his sons built an ark that could survive any poundings of the sea and a Victoria doctor and his four sons hope they have produced an up-to-date substitute.

They started proving it Tuesday.

Dr. L. E. (Es) Horne and his sons, Dennis, Ian, Chris and Rolfe left on a year-long voyage in the good ship Snoop.

She's an unusual craft, 45 feet long, adapted from a West coast troller design, with a 25-foot aluminum mast up forward, which will carry a steadying sail in rough seas and provide an assist to Snoop's powerful diesel engine.

Why Snoop?

"It was the name we came up with from the collection of stainless steel letters we bought at Capital Iron."

Horne and his sons will coast-hop from here to San Diego. Although there's still finishing work to be done, they want to start moving before the arrival of the autumnal equinox and its accompanying bad weather.

Mrs. Horne and three of the Hornes' daughters, Peggy, Alison and Pamela, will drive to California, rendezvouing each evening with Snoop and her crew.

They'll board Snoop at San Diego.

Horne estimates there will be two months' work to be done on Snoop at San Diego before she is ready for the big advesture.

He has been building boats as a hobby since he was 12 and sailing anything from schooners to Olympic-class six-metres.

From those years of experience, Horne and his sons have created what they feel is a perfect craft in which nine people can see the world — or, at least, a fair part of it.

YEAR OFF WORK

The doctor took a year out from his practice to build the family "dream boat" and the four boys have been working on her since Christmas.

Except for her solid one-inch thick cement hull, every piece of construciton in her has been installed by the family.

Rolfe rigged out the mast, made from industrial tubing, and topped with a home-made truck from which they will fly their burgee.

Every bunk, piece of decking and panelling has been put together by the boys.

"If anything goes wrong, they'll know every inch of her and what to do to remedy the situation," says father.

Snoop's fiberglass tanks were made in the family garage and her extra-high stanchions were also wrought in the family's "factory".

Horne changed Snoop's lines to give her a higher and more seaworthy freeboard and provide a large salon at the stern in which the whole family can relax.

PARTS FROM OTHERS

Two of Snoop's scuttles came from the bridge of a discarded Canadian destroyer and her sturdy three-quarter inch thick portholes have also served their time in other ships.

Noah's arrangements for survival at sea must have been primitive but modern science has helped ensure that Shirley Horne's afloat duties are kept to the minimum.

She also insisted a bathtub be installed.

"But Es threatess to drill holes two inches above the bottom if we use too much hot water!"

There's a 440-gallon tank to make sure that they don't run out of water.

While they're away, the Horne children will abandon school books in favor of the lessons they'll learn from the sea.

As their mother says: "They'll go back to school when we come home. There's things to be learned at sea that they'll never find in text books."

Clarkson Move Defended

Reg Clarkson was transferred to Vancouver as a counsellor for the Alcoholism Foundation of British Columbia because of complaints against his activities within and outside of the foundation, president Miss Josephine Whitehouse said Thursday.

In a prepared statement, Miss Whitehouse told the Times the foundation's reasons for removing Clarkson from his Victoria post as supervisor of the foundation's Vancouver Island region.

"Since our former supervisor, Mr. R. L. Clarkson of the Vancouver Island regional office at Victoria, has seen fit to make a number of statements in the press and on radio and television with respect to his transfer to head office, I feel that the record of this situation should be set straight.

CONSIDERABLE PERIOD

"As a result of complaints received about the supervisor's activites both within and without the organization over a considerable period of time, the executive committee decided to transfer him to head office in Vancouver. Accordingly, notice of this decision was delivered to Mr. Clarkson on Aug. 17.

"Following receipt of the notice, Mr. Clarkson circulated a short report to the directors making a number of recommendations for changes in the foundation's program.

"These matters had not previously been presented in any form to the senior adminstrators or the board of directors."

"Clarkson was given a hearing before the joint executive committee and the personnel committee on Aug. 28, following which his transfer to head office was confirmed.

REFUSED TO REPORT

"On Tuesday, Sept. 8, 1970, Clarkson refused to report to head office and was subsequently suspended on full salary.

"Mr. Clarkson's transfer was ordered for reasons which will be dealt with within the foundation, and they have nothing whatever to do with the suggestions he has put forth in his recent report. These matters are now in the hands of the board of directors."

"Miss Whitehouse's remarks about complaints are typical of the smear tactics I have been subjected to," Clarkson said today.

"Why have I never received any report of these complaints?"

Miss Whitehouse and McRae were unavailable for comment this morning.

Clarkson said Tuesday that he had been transferred because of his criticisms of foundation's policies and not because of criticism against his work.

He said he plans to report to Vancouver next week.

Trail Dedicated By Hardy Few

CAMPBELL RIVER — The scenic Marble Meadows trail at the 5,000-foot level above Buttle Lake in Strathcona Park was dedicated by a group of outdoorsmen Saturday.

Original plans had called for Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell to fly to the meadows and dedicate the trail, but rain and low-hanging clouds grounded the helicopter.

But despite the downpour, 14 persons made their way to the alpine plateau.

Syd Watts of Duncan, of the Island Mountain Ramblers, pronounced the trail open for the enjoyment of hikers and walkers. A bottle of christening fluid, carried up the mountain by Bob Tustin of Vancouver, was also opened and the trail toasted.

The weekend's wet weather deterred more than 100 people from making their way to the meadows.

Mrs. Watts, who accompanied her husband to the meadows, said the hike is well worth the effort.

Readers Told

Alley Cat Walks Away With Role

LONDON (CP) — Last year there was this alley cat scrounging bits from garbage cans and probably thinking: If this is life, who needs nine?

Today she sports the name of Elinor Glyn and is about to star in a new show at the Royal Court Theatre, with a possible trip for a New York run in prospect.

Black-and-white Elinor's new career began when she was found by novelist Inez Holden, who named her after the other writer.

Success came when the Royal Court Theatre advertised for a "genuinely talented" cat to star in Cancer, Michael Weller's new American comedy. Elinor walked off with the part against tough opposition.

"She was perfect in rehearsals — just what we want," a theatre official says. And Tuesday Elinor was knocking back celebration champagne as though it were cream.

N.Y. CABS TO CARRY LOCKED SAFES IN CAR

NEW YORK (Reuters) — Mayor John V. Lindsay announced Tuesday that beginning some time in the next two months all 11,700 taxis in this city will have locked safes, and passengers will not be able to get change of more than $5.

The move was prompted by the seventh robbery slaying of a cab driver in the city since the first of the year.

A similar exact fare program on the city's buses has so far eliminated bus holdups. Bus passengers must use either a 30-cent token or the exact change.

Kissing Didn't Break Any Code

ATLANTA (UPI) — The stringy blonde and her long-haired boyfriend apparently got bored waiting on the sidewalk for the traffic light to change. They started kissing.

That's when patrolman W. D. Cameron happened by. He arrested Patty Voss, of Anniston, Ala., and Frank Canibane, of Chicago, on charges of creating a turmoil and public indecency.

The girl told municipal judge Robert Sparks that it was all a mistake.

"We weren't vigorously caressing, we were just kissing while waiting for the light to change," she said.

Sparks produced a copy of the Georgia code and asked Cameron to find his citation in it. Cameron leafed through the pages for several minutes without success. Sparks said that lewed and indecent behavior were "a matter of interpretation" in the new Georgia Code while the old code uses the terms in reference to "a place of prostitution."

"I don't think that fits in this case, so I'm dismissing it," Sparks said.

Judge Jails 'Outrageous' Driver

A 24-year-old driver Judge William Ostler described as "outrageous" was sentenced to one year, one month and 14 days in prison this morning in provincial court.

Ostler told Henry S. Henderson, of 529 Constance, he had "the unenviable distinction" of being "the most outrageous case of his kind he had ever seen.

"You have shown the most contemptuous disobedience of the law and of the court that I have ever heard or read of," the judge said.

Henderson initially pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving, a charge of driving while prohibited and a charge of driving without insurance.

WRONG SIDE

They were laid after he was seen driving on the wrong side of the road Wednesday.

He then asked the prosecutor to bring three other charges he was facing in traffic court before Ostler to be dealt with simultaneously.

Henderson again pleaded guilty each time as charges of impaired driving, driving without a licence and driving without insurance were read.

At that point Ostler was told by the prosecutor that Henderson was convicted on charges of failing to remain at the scene of an accident, driving without insurance and driving without a licence only two weeks ago in provincial court.

DRINKING PROBLEM

Court was also told Henderson was convicted on a charge of impaired driving in July of 1969.

Ostler sentenced Henderson to one and three months on each of the impaired charges, three and four months on each of the driving without insurance charges, two months for driving while prohibited and 14 days for driving with no licence.

The sentences were ordered served consecutively.

He also ordered Henderson prohibited from driving in Canada for three years.

Henderson told Ostler he had a drinking problem and asked to be sent to Allouette River correctional institution for treatment.

Committee Formed

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — An eight-man committee was appointed to formulate a program against drug abuse in the community at a public meeting called Wednesday by Mayor Muni Evers.

Hijackings Drive Up Insurance

HONOLULU (AP) — Insurance policies will be renewed at higher premiums for airliners damaged in hijackings, a spokesman for the International Air Transport Association said Wednesday.

He also said that the effect of the recent hijacking spree in the Middle East will be to drive up the cost of insurance.

The spokesman for the association which represents about 90 per cent of the international airlines said insurance contracts will have to be renegotiated with brokers in cases where airlines have been damaged in hijackings and other incidents.

The IATA statement was released to clarify remarks made here earlier Wednesday by the organization's president, Dr. Garrit van Der Wal, who also is president of KLM Royal Dutch Airlines.

Van Der Wal had said that all insurance on International airlines had been cancelled. The IATA spokesman said Van Der Wal was incorrect.

Space Station Needs Study

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — The space station the United States tentatively plans to launch into 10-year earth orbit in 1978 must provide each of its crew members a place to be alone and allow them to maintain telephone communications with their families, a design consultant says.

A vital element in designing the station must be concern for the morale of the 12 crew members manning it for up to six months at a stretch, Raymond Loewy told an international conference on space stations utilization Wednesday.

The question of whether the crew should be all-male, or male and female, has not been studied extensively, Loewy said, but he noted that a mixed crew would pose problems that would need serious study.

China in UN by '72 Predicts U Thant

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — UN Secretary-General U Thant set off a guessing game today by mentioning the possibility that Communist China might join the UN in late 1972.

The secretary said he does not think that "involvement of China in UN activities will take place before November or December 1972."

He declines all requests for amplification of what he said was his personal opinion. He made the statement at a press conference called in advance of next week's meeting of the General Assembly.

Thant did say that he did not expect that there will be any change in the status of Chinese membership at the forthcoming General Assembly.

He declined to answer a question that linked this forecast with the November, 1972, United States presidential election. November and December is about the time that the China question is debated each year.

The question of Chinese Communist membership has plagued the UN for years. Each year Albania submits a resolutions calling for the expulsion of the Nationalist Chinese and their replacement by the Communists. Each year the resolution is defeated, recently by substantial majorities.

COULD LAST LONG

However, a trend has been noted toward the admission of the Communists if some kind of accommodation for the Nationalists can be found. Even then, observers have said, it could be 10 years before the China membership question is finally settled.

Canada has in recent years abstained on the vote. If and when current talks in Stockholm on Canadian recognition of Peking come to a successful conclusion, Canada will switch her vote to support Communist admission.

It is thought doubtful that the Stockholm talks will end before this year's vote at the UN.

Thant said it is essential that China and France join the Geneva disarmament conference if these continuing negotiations are to be successful. Canada is a member of that conference. France also is a member but has not participated for some years.

On other matters, the Secretary-General expressing encouragement over political trends in Europe, said it would be relatively easier for the two Germanys to gain UN membership than it would be for the two Vietnams and the two Koreas.

Transplants Total 5,000

THE HAGUE (AP) — The Transplantation Society opened its third international congress Wednesday with a report that there have been 5,000 registered transplants on humans of hearts, kidneys, bone marrow, livers and lungs since 1957.

The society said that in about 4,000 kidney transplants there has been a survival rate of 75 to 90 per cent. Only about 50 of the 1,000 patients who received other organs are alive today, the statement added.

Viet Principal Assassinated

SAIGON (Reuters) — Viet Cong terrorists assassinated a prominent Chinese high school principal as he walked into his office today, a government spokesman said.

The terrorists hiding in the office pumped four bullets into Koang Trung Vinh. His assassins escaped, the spokesman said.

Vinh, 68, was principal of a large high school in the Chinese quarter of Cholon and was deeply involved in Chinese political activity.

Rate Hike 'Habit' Rapped by Critic

By DOUG SMALL

OTTAWA (CP) — Bell Canada is "developing a habit" of appearing before the Canadian transport commission to ask for rate increases, Carlyle Gilmour, self-appointed watchdog over the telephone company's operations, said Wednesday.

The stocky, big-voiced critic, in his words a "Quebec farmer", said the company comes before the board with "tear-stained eyes" asking for more money while it invests large sums in various other enterprises.

Mr. Gilmour questioned W. Allan Beckett, an economist appearing as Bell's first witness, at a transport commission hearing on a company application to increase rates for general telephone service. Also present were lawyers representing other opponents of the rate increase.

Mr. Beckett agreed with Mr. Gilmour's statement that any increase would hit poor subscribers worse than those with more money.

Then the service is being denied to "old-age pensioners and others who need it most," Mr. Gilmour said.

APPLIED IN 1968

Bell last applied for a rate increase in 1968. In September, 1969, the transport commission granted the company increases in long-distance and special service charges while rejecting the company's bid to raise its general service rates. The authorized increases gave the company some $27.5 million in additional annual revenues.

Last June the Montreal-based communications company again applied for the general service increase "to help offset rising costs and prevent deterioration in service."

The application calls for a 6.25 per cent increase in basic monthly service charges to produce an additional $30 million in annual revenues.

The increases would cost an individual subscriber anywhere from 20 to 40 cents a month more than his present rate.

Business subscribers would pay from 35 cents to $1.15 more a month depending on the area.

The company also wants to raise its rates for other residential and business services and equipment such as extension cords, unusual telephone models and other sundries.

Danish Submarine Found in Storm

AARHUS, Denmark (AP) — The Danish submarine Narhvalen was reported missing Wednesday night, but a four-country search was called off today after the craft was found riding out a heavy storm off southern Norway at dawn.

A Danish navy spokesman said the 270-ton submarine failed to make a routine radio check Wednesday night because of a faulty transmitter.

Cabinet Gives Green Light to College Vote

School board chairman Carron Jameson said board members are "delighted" at the announcement as the board has been pressing for it since 1966.

"Our hope is that this will be held within a month or so," he said. A simple majority is needed for the plebiscite to pass.

The college, if it becomes a reality, will be a separate entity located at the Institute of Adult Studies.

Jameson said that the board hoped to have students in the college by September, 1971.

Allan McCallum, acting principal of the Institute of Adult Studies, today said the possibility of a regional college for Greater Victoria has been under consideration since spring 1969.

At that time, he said, the school board prepared a submission to the provincial education department.

Since then, he said, the board has been awaiting an announcement from the department..

If approved, the new college would be the ninth in the province.

It would serve southern Vancouver Island.

The final decision on the site would come from the board of education, McCallum said, and a regional college here would likely include vocational courses. But he could not speculate whether such a college would absorb the facilities of the recently-opened Greater Victoria Vocational School.

It will probably only involve taxpayers who live within the boundaries of the Greater Victoria district.

The outlying districts — Sooke and Saanich Peninsula — will watch the college operation and decide later whether they wish to hold separate plebiscites to join the Victoria college.

The college set-up, under provincial legislation, will mean a better financial deal for the district taxpayers than does the present Adult Institute which is financed through public school systems.

Under legislation, the provincial government pays 60 per cent of the operating costs of regional colleges, students themselves pay some 18 per cent and the ratepayers the remaining 22 per cent.

Social Workers To Appeal Job Transfers

By BRUCE YEMEN

Job transfers described as "sudden" are being appealed by a number of social worker employees of the provincial department of rehabilitation and social improvement.

But Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi said today the transfers — unofficially reported affecting 16 social workers — are "only just a start" in that direction.

He denied that there is any "shakeup" under way in the department which he took over last fall.

Gaglardi indicated the transfers are "promotions" which will improve the qualifications of those involved for future advancement.

But Glen Hamilton, executive secretary of the B.C. Association of Social Workers, said today in Vancouver:

'COMPLETE LOSS'

"We are at a complete loss to understand the rationale for the move."

At the same time Cy Toren, association president, was today sending out letters to a number of newspapers criticizing Gaglardi on other policy matters since he took over the welfare job.

Gaglardi said in February that a reorganization of the "retraining" of staff if necessary could be expected.

Hamilton, in Vancouver, said the association has just learned of some of the transfers and would like to hear from Gaglardi some evidence of the need for the move.

CLOSE TOUCH

"I think there are arguments for keeping staff in close touch with their communities," he said. "I don't think the experience would be much different in one community than in another.

One report said as many as 14 of the 16 department staff affected are appealing the orders. The appeal procedure is a departmental matter.

Gaglardi, asked about the appeals as a possible sign of discontent in his department, replied, "so what?"

He said transfers are a condition of employment.

Gaglardi denied that he was now carrying out previously veiled threats to shake up the department if it failed to adapt to his new approach to welfare services.

"I'm not interested in breaking up anything," he said.

MEMBERS UPSET

Hamilton said the association's members are "naturally upset with the idea of being shifted around."

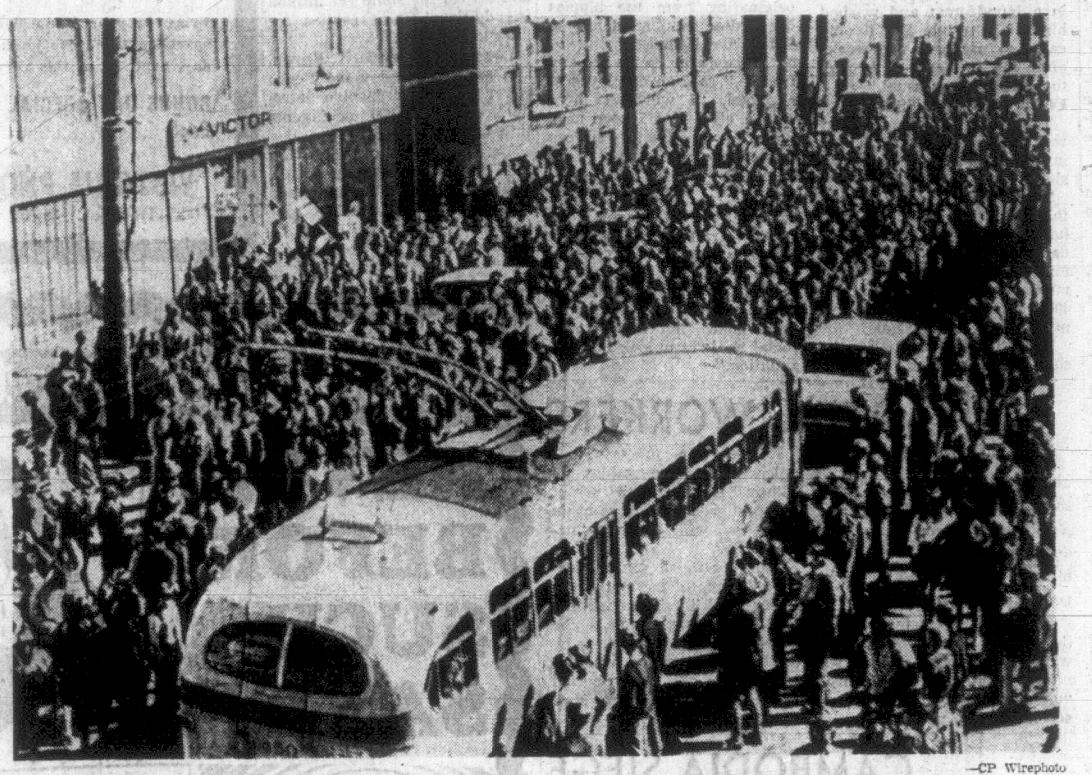

Toren said he hasn't sufficient details of the moves to evaluate them but if Gaglardi's moves are "arbitrary" then it could be "destructive" and create more problems for the department.

In a letter to newspaper editors being mailed today, Toren states that Gaglardi has operated in a manner designed to reduce welfare services and department morale in recent months.

He questioned the wisdom of Gaglardi's claim Wednesday — and repeated today in Victoria — that there are 10,000 jobs available in B.C.

"There is no evidence that there are 10,000 jobs avail-

Oil Now Within 12 Miles Of P.E.I.'s White Beaches

By BILL MOFFATT
Canadian Press Correspondent

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. — A massive oil slick, fed from the tanks of a sunken oil barge, continued to grow today and had stretched to within 12 miles of the white sand beaches at the northwestern tip of Prince Edward Island by midday.

The slick had been about 20 miles from shore early Wednesday.

Today's winds were southerly at about 10 miles an hour and were expected to change little the rest of the day. Southerly winds would carry the oil away from shore, but with such light winds the slick was not expected to move "any great distance," a transport department spokesman said.

Further offshore, at the site of the sinking, winds were light southwesterly and expected to increase to southwest 15 tonight. Northerly winds would bring the oil toward P.E.I. while westerly winds would carry it toward New Brunswick.

Meanwhile, consideration was being given by officials to dispersing the thick bunker C oil with chemicals which have been stockpiled at the Canadian Forces base here.

Dr. William Ford of Bedford Institute of Oceanography said in an interview the chemicals would reduce the oil to about one part per million, and he said he felt the risk to marine life is "low."

A tiny fisheries research submarine was in position over the wreck of the Irving Whale, a 2,300-ton barge which sank 35 miles north of North Cape, P.E.I. Monday with 875,000 gallons of bunker C in its compartments.

The sub Pisces was expected to make its first dive later today to assess the Whale's condition.

PLAN BOOM LOCK

Officials were awaiting the arrival of a 2,000-foot sea boom from British Columbia which will be placed downwind from the wreck to contain oil leaking from the Whale. The boom allows water to pass through but holds oil. It can function effectively in waves up to six feet.

Transport department officials surveyed the slick early today and reported it had become irregular in shape and was about 28 miles long at its longest point.

A fisheries department spokesman said it appeared that large schools of mackerel in the area were safe.

China in UN by '72 Predicts U Thant

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — UN Secretary-General U Thant set off a guessing game today by mentioning the possibility that Communist China might join the UN in late 1972.

The secretary said he does not think that "involvement of China in UN activities will take place before November or December 1972."

He declines all requests for amplification of what he said was his personal opinion. He made the statement at a press conference called in advance of next week's meeting of the General Assembly.

Thant did say that he did not expect that there will be any change in the status of Chinese membership at the forthcoming General Assembly.

He declined to answer a question that linked this forecast with the November, 1972, United States presidential election. November and December is about the time that the China question is debated each year.

The question of Chinese Communist membership has plagued the UN for years. Each year Albania submits a resolutions calling for the expulsion of the Nationalist Chinese and their replacement by the Communists. Each year the resolution is defeated, recently by substantial majorities.

COULD LAST LONG

However, a trend has been noted toward the admission of the Communists if some kind of accommodation for the Nationalists can be found. Even then, observers have said, it could be 10 years before the China membership question is finally settled.

Canada has in recent years abstained on the vote. If and when current talks in Stockholm on Canadian recognition of Peking come to a successful conclusion, Canada will switch her vote to support Communist admission.

It is thought doubtful that the Stockholm talks will end before this year's vote at the UN.

Thant said it is essential that China and France join the Geneva disarmament conference if these continuing negotiations are to be successful. Canada is a member of that conference. France also is a member but has not participated for some years.

On other matters, the Secretary-General expressing encouragement over political trends in Europe, said it would be relatively easier for the two Germanys to gain UN membership than it would be for the two Vietnams and the two Koreas.

Amman Torn By Fighting In Streets

Heavy Casualties Feared

Times News Services

The Jordanian capital of Amman is reported in flames and heavy casualties were feared as Palestinian guerrillas and the Jordanian army battled throughout the night despite appeals for a ceasefire from both sides.

Guerrillas in the capital said the fighting centred on the Amman airport, the Jebel Hussein Citadel, the royal palaces and other sections of the city. They said houses were being destroyed.

The guerrillas said soldiers in 10 scout cars attacked the headquarters of the Popular Democratic Front, a radical guerrilla organization, but that they were repelled and four of the cars were destroyed.

Exploding rockets and bursts of machine-gun fire were clearly heard early today in Jebel Amman, where most government departments and diplomatic missions are situated.

LASTS 10 MINUTES

The firing began at 6 a.m. and lasted about 10 minutes. It restarted at 8:35 a.m. with troops and guerrillas entrenched in their positions on Jebel Amman and Jebel Webda exchanging fire.

Guerrillas May Release Sick Hostages

Times News Services

AMMAN (Reuters) — The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, whose commandos this week hijacked three airliners to Jordan, have offered to release all women and children and people in need of medical care among the passengers if certain conditions are met.

Palestinian Red Crescent sources, revealing this to Reuters, declined to state what these conditions were but said the offer was made on humaniterian grounds during a meeting here today between the Front and International Red Cross representatives.

They added that representatives of the Palestinian Red Crescent, through whom the negotiations were being held, attended the meeting.

The Front is insisting on the release of seven guerrillas held in Switzerland, West Germany and Britain as well as two Algerians and an unlimited number of commandos detained in Israel in return for the release of the hijacked aircraft, their passengers and crew.

The sources claimed about 11,000 Arabs are detained in Israeli prisons, of whom 1,050 have been tried. The others are being held without trial.

They added that among the

CAMBODIAN AMPHIBIOUS FORCE

Three-Month Siege Lifted

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Meeting only light resistance, a Cambodian amphibious force of some 1,500 men reached Kompong Thom Wednesday night and lifted a three-month seige of the provincial capital 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, the Cambodian command announced.

A spokesman said that one Cambodian soldier was killed in the lightly contested drive up the Stung Sen River by a column of boats more than 1½ miles long. The column, which included gunboats with cannon, reached the provincial capital after a two-day operation that began on the shores of Cambodia's huge lake, Tonle Sap, the spokesman said.

Western military experts were puzzled by the ease with which the seige was reported broken, considering that most of the North Vietnamese 20th Division is reported still in the immediate area.

One source suggested that the North Vietnamese might be laying an elaborate trap. Another theory was that the Cambodian relief force would withdraw, and the North Vietnamese could again encircle Kompong Thom without serious casualties.

'POLICE CAN'T COPE WITH THEFTS BY HIPPIES'

Crime Rampant at Long Beach

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Theft by members of the large hippie beach colony, sometimes numbering as high as 1,000 during the peak tourist season, increased at an alarming rate this summer according to merchants and police.

Money, cameras, food, packsacks — anything that can be converted into cash — has been stolen from campers in the new national park.

Cummins said he wasn't blaming police.

"There are thousands of visitors at Long Beach in July and August," he said. "They can't cope with the complaints. They are also responsible for traffic and maintaining the law at Tofino and Ucluelet.

The figure does not include

The sources also said 140 Arab girls are in Israeli prisons, "some sentenced to life while others have not been tried."

The decision to extend the Sunday (7 p.m. PDT Saturday) was made at a meeting of the Front's high command Wednesday night, and a Red Cross mission negotiating the release of three hijacked planes and about 280 passengers was informed.

The original 72-hour ultimatum set after the guerrillas hijacked two airliners to a desert airstrip in Jordan Sunday was scheduled to expire at 2 a.m. GMT today (7 p.m. PDT Wednesday.)

A Front spokesman said the Arab passengers aboard the VC-10—the first British airliner to be hijacked — were released today.

The guerrillas released 21 Arabs and also freed a British girl engaged to one of the Arab passengers. Jordanian army buses took those freed to the Intercontinental Hotel in Amman.

A Front spokesman said that in extending the ultimatum period at the request of the International Red Cross, the Front holds Britain, the United States and other countries concerned responsible for determining the fate of the three detained planes and their passengers.

The Front in giving the extension wished to provide more chance for the concerned parties to act responsibly, he said.

Britain and the United States should understand that their pressure and activities will not serve the interests of the passengers and the three planes, he added.

The spokesman said the Front leaders and the Red Cross mission were expected to meet today, but added there will be no further extensions of the ultimatum.

The passengers went through an agonizingly tense and cramped night in the three hijacked airliners in the Jordanian desert, apparently unaware their captors had granted them a stay of execution.

For 197 captives aboard a Swissair DC-8 and a Trans World Airlines Boeing 707, it was an ordeal they already have gone through for three previous nights.

Aboard the VC-10 were 103 passengers and 10 crew members — about half of them Britons.

With two of the countries ready to meet the guerrilla demands — Switzerland in principle and West Germany without any pre-conditions — only Britain's continued detention of Arab girl guerrilla Leila Khaled apparently stands in the way of a negotiated settlement for the release of the Europeans and Americans on board the planes.

It was to force Britain to comply that the Popular Front seized the VC-10 and forced it down in the Jordanian desert, after a stop to refuel at Beirut.

Following the latest hijacking no one among the 300 heavily armed guerrillas guarding the planes believes the British government will stand firm in the face of the guerrilla warnings about the "serious consequences" for the hostages should a barter not be arranged.

The guerrillas have not said what they will do with their hostages if the ultimatum is ignored, although after hijacking the first two western aircraft Sunday they threatened to blow them up if any attempt was made to recapture the planes.

But even if Andre Rochat, chief Middle East representative of the International Red Cross, can arrange a package deal over the European and American passengers, the guerrillas will still hold a large number of Israelis and passengers withdual Israeli-American citizenship.

The guerrillas said the ultimatum does not apply to this group of hostages who will be released only when a still unspecified number of guerrilla prisoners and two Algerian detainees are freed from prison in Isarel.

While statesmen in world capitals pondered the captives' fate and the morality of bowing to ransom demands for a trade in human lives, the passengers were more concerned with a marked improvement in their living conditions aboard the planes.

A Red Cross doctor and male nurse gave medical care, emergency lighting was rigged in the cabins which had previously been pitch black at night, and mobile air conditioning units were attached to the planes.

In a sudden display of hospitality, the guarrillas broke out four cases of whisky and the passengers and crew of the VC-10 were able to toast their safe landing almost 12 hours after takeoff from Bahrain on a flight to London.

The United States placed six C-130 military transport planes on standby in Turkey to help fly medical supplies to the captives and evacuate them if they are released, but U.S. government spokesmen refused to discuss any other contingency plans the Nixon administration might be considering.

The White House said the six aircraft, each able to carry about 100 passengers, were flown to Turkey from various U.S. bases in Europe.

In interviews today at the desert airstrip in Jordan, one guerrilla made clear that the chief bar to release of the planes is Britain's refusal to free Miss Khaled.

. . . AMMAN FIGHTING

army and security forces and the heavily defended offices of all guerrilla organizations are located in Jebel Webda.

Travellers who tried to reach the Jordanian capital but were turned back by Bedouin soldiers said at the Syrian border town of Dera'a that Amman looked "as if it was burning."

The new fighting kept Amman in a state of tension and gave it an air of a besieged city as the bitter army-guerrilla crisis dragged the country into chaos.

The city was almost completely paralyzed with no stores open and no taxis on the streets.

In parts of the capital where the guerrillas predominate — and they seemed to be everywhere — rocks, rubbish and barbed wire blocked streets.

Telephones in the city were still working but telephone links between some Jordanian towns and between Amman and the outside world were cut.

HIT BY FIRE

The Intercontinental Hotel was hit by small-arms fire, and guerrillas and soldiers battled for an adjacent building. No one in the hotel was hurt, but one round knocked out the building's water system, flooding the lobby and downstairs offices.

The guests, including 127 women and children freed from two airliners hijacked Sunday, spent the night on mattresses in the downstairs night club and in hallways.

Scores of bullets hit the building, leaving holes in the glass-paned entrance door of the hotel and in the windows of several bedrooms.

Exploding shells also shattered the glass windows of a building only 10 yards from the British embassy near the hotel.

Amman radio broadcast orders to stop firing from guerrilla chief Yasir Arafat and army Chief of Staff Mashdour Haditha, entrusted with full powers by King Hussein after an emergency cabinet meeting.

For four hours Wednesday afternoon civilians huddled in their cellars or hugged the floor behind shuttered windows as army artillery bombarded suspected guerrilla positions in the many districts of the capital.

No one has even begun to count the dead and wounded — or to add their number to the 400 or more earlier casualties of this month's fighting touched off by an unsuccessful attempt to kill Hussein.

. . . THANT

CRITICAL

He reiterated his condemnation of aerial hijacking and indirectly criticized Israel for holding two Algerians arrested last month on a plane that landed at an Israeli airport.

The reason for Thant's optimism on the Middle East included two points:

Overwhelming opinion that the UN has special responsibility for peace in the area, and the fact that the Big Four had achieved a wide area of agreement on a Middle East solution. He said the areas of agreement are wider than the areas of disagreement.

Council members also were consulting in private on other measures the world body might take if the guerrillas go through with their threat of blowing up the jetliners if their demands for release of Arab commandos are not met, the sources said.

Quebec Specialists Set Deadline

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists has given the Quebec government 15 days to negotiate a settlement over implementation of a provincial health insurance plan.

"We will not continue negotiations with the government beyond the next 15 days," Dr. Raymond Robillard, president of the federation said Wednesday at a news conference.

"If no settlement is reached within that time, there will be contestation."

Asked whether "contestation" meant strike action by the 4,000 medical specialists represented by the federation, Dr. Robillard said:

"A complete strike is not foreseen. If there is a cut-off of services by medical specialists, emergency services will be preserved."

On Aug. 27, the medical specialists supported strike action if negotiations failed to provide the concessions they seek.

EXPLAINS REASON

"Publication last Thursday of the Castonguay-Nepveu report on the reorganization of Quebec health services gives us a better understanding why the government has adopted such a rigid attitude towards physicians and why it has adopted a law on medicare that is so different from that accepted by the other provinces of Canada," Dr. Robillard said.

"There is no place in this system for real participation of the medical profession. Physicians become civil servants controlled in their professional activity by layman administrators.

"We can say today that the medical specialists oppose strongly any scheme that sets aside their professional liberty and jeopardizes the quality of care they may give to patients."

Dr. Robillard said that within 15 days, "we probably will have explored all the possibilities of reaching an agreement with the government at the negotiating table."

After that, the doctors will prepare a "white paper" outlining their opposition to the Health Insurance Act passed by the Quebec National Assembly this summer. The white paper would also present the doctors' demands and the government's offers.

The medical specialists have been opposed to the lack of an opting-out clause in the health act and are asking that the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons have the last word on professional matters.

Halibut Fishing To Close

SEATTLE (CP) — All halibut fishing off the coast of Alaska, British Columbia, Washington and Oregon will be closed at the end of this month.

The International Pacific Area 2 south of Cape Spencer, near Juneau, will be closed at 6 a.m. Sept. 21, and Area 3B, between the Shumagin Islands and 175 degrees west longitude will be closed Sept. 30.

Th commission announced last week that Area 3A, between the Shunagin Islands in the Aleutian chain and Cape Spencer, will also be closed Sept. 21.

Only halibut fishing after Sept. 30 will be in the Bering Sea.

CHANGES IN TAX PAPER COMING

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson said Wednesday night he has been pleased generally with submissions from the public concerning the federal government's white paper on taxation.

Mr. Benson told a news conference that because of this exchange of ideas between the government and public, the final tax legislation will contain substantial differences from the white paper.

He said he hoped the House of Commons would report on tax legislation in October.

"It's going to look like a better tax system, but it's not going to look like the white paper per se," he said.

Switch Snapped

HAZELTON (CP) — Mrs. Anna Love, a widow who settled in the Kispiox Valley in 1914, snapped a special light switch in the community hall Wednesday to turn on the first do-it-yourself power line in British Columbia, built by residents themselves to carry power from a B.C. Hydro generator.

Police report about 160 complaints of theft were received from tourists. But they estimate about 30 per cent of the campers in the park don't report their losses.

FEW COMPLAINTS

While the business community at Tofino and Ucluelet says that shoplifting is rampant, RCMP report they receive few registered complaints from residents.

Cpl. R. M. S. Kraus of Ucluelet, says he hears a lot about the activities of hippies.

"But I get it through the grapevine," he said. "Few residents lay complaints. For example, I got to hear about a hippie who stripped himself in a laundromat and washed himself in a tub. But it only came to my ears two weeks after the incident — through the grapevine as usual."

FEAR REPERCUSSIONS

This would indicate that residents don't want to get involved or fear repercussions.

The hippie colony during the summer months may have numbered 1,000 but the daily average is between 600 and 800, police say. Now the number has dropped to about 400. Half are U.S. citizens and many of them transients.

Federal park officials say they plan to move out the hippie colony because their camp site does not conform to park regulations, but there is no guarantee that they won't settle around the perimeter of the park.

SOME PACIFISTS

RCMP said it is a misnomer to label all members of the colony as hippies.

They estimate about 10 per cent are true hippies — young people with a philosophy.

"They are pacifists and cause us no trouble," they said.

The remainder were described as young people who can't cope with the problems and stresses of city life. Their way of life is an escape from reality.

Many appear to steal to keep from starving.

What many residents fear is an outbreak of violence, not originating from the hippies but from new residents to Tofino and Ucluelet.

"If they ever cause me any trouble," said an employee of a motel, "I will kill them with a steel pipe I keep near me. I'll tell police they hit me first. Who is to say they didn't."

This is what long-time residents of the area fear most — an incident which would create an explosive situation.

"What we need, said a businessman," is not only more police, but welfare and social workers to look into the situation."

able," Toren said, nor is there evidence that Gaglardi's job-finding agency in the department had found a "significant" number of jobs for people on welfare.

The letter states that "public men" commenting on welfare matters are not so much "unkind" as they are "uninformed" on the welfare services of the province.

It went on to say that unless Gaglardi examines his role in "greater depth" one of the best welfare programs in operation will become "unworkable."

One unofficial source suggested some of the employees transferred in the rehabilitation department might be regarded as troublemakers by Gaglardi, but there was no indication of a concerted effort to overhaul the staff structure at this time.

Thom and the population, without serious casualties.

The town has been surrounded cut off from all land and water communications for three months. The defenders at one point were so hungry they raided the city's zoo and ate some of the animals.

MAKES LESS PROGRESS

Meanwhile, a second force pushing northward to relieve Kompong Thom was reported moving slowly up Route 6 from Skoun and still 40 miles away, having covered 10 miles in three days.

The spokesman said the advance was slow because the infantrymen were waiting for the engineers to repair blown bridges and other breaks in the highway.

The operation to relieve Kompong Thom is the biggest government offensive of the 5½-month-old war in Cambodia, involving an estimated 10,000 men including support troops. It is the first time the government has taken the initiative, and the purpose is to regain a sixable area of population and food production.

In South Vietnam, neither the U.S. nor South Vietnamese command reported any major ground fighting. However, U.S. headquarters said three helicopters were shot down in the northern part of the country, four Americans were missing and three others were injured in the crashes.

The U.S. command's weekly summary of casualties said 87 Americans were killed in combat last week, but 22 of them actually died the week before in a helicopter crash. They had not been included in the summary that week because the bodies had not been identified.

South Vietnamese casualties increased sharply. The government said 469 of its troops were killed, compared with 264 the previous week.

NDP Candidate Here Tonight

TOO TIRED TO LOVE?

Many marriages are wrecked or blighted by a simple hidden cause. Fatigue is easy to blame. But the real problem could lie deeper. Dr. Marion Hilliard, who was chief of obstetrics and gynecology at Woman's College Hospital in Toronto, discusses the problem frankly in the September issue of Reader's Digest. She offers specific help and tells how to take the initiative in creating an "atmosphere of love". Pick up your copy of Reader's Digest today.

$30 MILLION DAMAGE SUIT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Trial of a $30 million damage suit against the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority, resulting from the Peace River power project will open Monday in B.C. Supreme Court.

Court officials said the case could easily set a new record for longevity in the annals of the Vancouver courthouse.

The damages claimed by a consortium of five construction firms — Northern Powerplant Builders—are among the highest ever sought in this province

The trial could run anywhere from 10 months to a year, possibly surpassing the 144-day court battle between B.C. Power Corp. and provincially-owned Hydro in 1962-63.

In that case, B.C. Power could not reverse its expropriation by the B.C. government, but in the end settled for some $87 million in additional compensation for its shareholders.

Lawyer Douglas McK. Brown, QC, said Wednesday the Peace River case will involve introduction of 100,000 documents into the court record.

Mr. Brown, counsel for the five plaintiffs, estimated the trial will run for 10 months and said he will be assisted by four lawyers.

John L. Farris, counsel for Hydro, said he will be assisted by five lawyers and estimated the trial length at six months to a year.

The case will be heard by Mr. Justice J. A. Macdonald.

The companies launched the suit in July, 1967.

They are Northern Construction Co., J. W. Stewart Ltd., Morrison-Knudsen Co., of Canada Ltd., Perini Pacific Ltd., and J. A. Jones Construction Co. (Canada) Ltd.

Much of the dispute centres on interpretation of the consortium's Peace River contract, specifically sections dealing with compensations to be paid for changes ordered by Hydro.

HADDOCK DISAPPOINTED

Secret Committee Disbanded

Mayor Courtney Haddock's controversial policy review committee was disbanded Wednesday.

Haddock put the future of the committee on the line and lost by a three-to-two vote at the final session — a meeting Haddock described as "the best meeting they've had for a long time."

Obviously disappointed, Haddock said in an interview today that he must somehow replace the function served by the committee because there must be an executive committee of some sort.

The six-month-old committee ran into trouble when a number of aldermen expressed displeasure at being left out of it, and Ald. Peter Pollen threatened to boycott the meetings because he said public business should not be carried out in secret.

Haddock said, on return from a recent holiday, he had no intention of dissolving the committee but hinted he would canvass aldermen for their views.

Aldermen Pollen, Tom Christie, Clyde Savage, Percy Frampton and Cecil Parrott attended Wednesday's committee meeting. Pollen, Christie and Savage voted against continuing the meetings, outnumbering Frampton and Parrott.

Haddock said he bears no grudge against the opposing aldermen whose views must be heard, but he stressed the difficulty of doing the city's business without the function of some kind of executive committee.

Toxic Dinner Put Under Ban As Family Hit

By DOUG MacRAE

A popular brand of frozen chicken chow mein dinner was being withdrawn from the market in Victoria today after a Victoria mother and her young son were taken violently ill after eating the product.

Lab tests here confirmed that Ricksha chow mein, manufactured in Vancouver, contained active toxin in a batch now on sale in stores throughout the province.

Unlike salmonella, which produces staphylococci only and doesn't produce food poisoning symptoms for 24 hours, the chow mein was found to contain toxin already produced by the germs. Symptoms, including nausea, vomiting and abdominal pain, showed up two hours after the chow mein was eaten.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, Victoria's chief health officer, said distributors have been instructed to have their salesmen pull the product from store freezers until further tests are completed.

"But it's the packages that may be in refrigerators now that we are concerned about," Whitbread said. "The food poisoning can be severe enough to require hospitalization."

He said anyone suffering the typical symptoms should inform the health department.

Whitbread said his department investigated the woman's complaint Tuesday, bought a package of the chow mein and had it tested here Wednesday and found it "loaded with toxin."

Jack Benny Is Younger

Premier Bennett said today he has just caught his "second wind" in political life.

"Every person that feels old should retire," Bennett said in response to questions about the planned retirement of Newfoundland Premier Joey Smallwood who will join Bennett in the 70-year-old-premier category in December.

Bennett corrected a reporter who asked how it feels to be 70; pointing out that by his method of figuring — with healthy age deductions for non-smoking, non-drinking and regular hours — he is only 45 years old.

Mayor Knocks Police Abuse

Mayor Courtney Haddock wants the Canada Criminal Code changed to protect policemen from abusive language and ridicule while performing their public duties.

The kind of abuse hurled at police in the United States, he says, is a "creeping, insidious disease" before which the police are "helpless." And the disease is spreading in Canada.

Haddock will ask city council today for endorsement of a resolution designed by him to go before the Union of British Columbia Municipalities convention at Penticton next week.

Calling policemen "pigs," said Haddock, should not be allowed to go unpunished.

Haddock's resolution calls for pressure on the B.C. attorney-general to get his backing for a change in federal criminal law providing a summary conviction for such offences.

Haddock's resolution is aimed largely at the political activists who clash in the streets with police. A large proportion of these dissidents are American citizens, said Haddock, but not all of them.

School Enrolment Within Expectations

By NEILL GADDES

Preliminary enrolment figures in the three local school districts are close to what administrators expected with the largest increases being at the secondary level.

There are, however, some pressure points in the districts that officials are straightening out during this first school week.

The Sooke school district has close to 6,800 students which is within the estimated 7,000 maximum expected. Late registrations will add to the total.

A Sooke official said today the boundaries for Sangster Elementary are being redefined to allow for the transfer of 25 students to Metchosin and Hans Helgesen elementaries.

There were 398 students at Belmont last year and this is up to about 530 this year.

The Saanich Peninsula school district expected about 5,200 students in their schools and Wednesday figures show there are 5,222. Late registrations are expected.

Again, the secondary level is where the greatest number of new students are — about an eight per cent increase compared to a three per cent increase in the elementary level.

The hiring of another teacher at Royal Oak Junior Secondary looks to be the remedy to a 40-student jump over projected enrolment.

Junior secondary enrolment has remained static.

Victoria was expecting about 33,000 students but kindergarten figures have not yet been established.

Ask The Times

Q. Can you tell me who was the composer of the famous overture "Zampa"? L.G.R.L.

A. It was composed by Louis Joseph Ferdinand Herold, who was born in Paris in 1791 and died there in 1833. He won the Prix de Rome at the age of 20, from that time on devoting himself to operatic composition, but also writing ballets and piano works.

Nicholson to Open United Appeal Drive

The appeal's canvasser drive began this week with campaign officials issuing a call for 3,100 Victorians to canvass on Oct. 19.

Campaign officials today urged mothers of school children to contact appeal headquarters once they have finished getting their children started for fall classes.

"We know that many families are busy this week with school starting and we hope for their support once it's under way," said campaign director Judy Nyquist.

The Appeal's goal from the residential canvass is $111,200. Over-all goal for the campaign this year is $694,000.

HERE FOR MANAGEMENT CONFERENCE

Parkinson to Lay Down the Law

PARKINSON

The man who invented Parkinson's Law — the axiom that work expands to fill the time available for its completion — will be the head speaker at a Victoria conference of the Pacific Northwest Management Association Oct. 8-9.

Dr. C. Northcote Parkinson, historian, educator, author and humorist, will speak Friday, Oct. 9, on his laws for management.

Parkinson is best-known for his witty satires of corporate and personal inefficiency, but he has also authored works on political theory as well as numerous articles for the London Economist, Punch, Harper's and other periodicals.

The conference is the 32nd meeting of the association which takes its membership from public and private personnel managers in British Columbia, Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

Other topics before the conference include addresses on the free enterprise system by Undersea Gardens Ltd. president John Hoegg and challenges before unions in the 1970s by B.C. Government Employees' Union secretary-general John L. Fryer.

The conference will be held at the Empress Hotel.

SHARK WORK WINS PRIZE

Boys Outstrip Girls in Contest

An 11-year-old from Oak Bay, David Conway of 3520 Plymouth, gets the $15 first prize for a realistic bit of work on Mark Trail's shark story.

Entries came from 410 young readers — they had to be 12 or under — who lived all the way from Port Alberni to Port Renfrew.

Beverly Beaumont, 9, of 3985 Douglas; Lorene Barker, 7, of 403 Raynor; Margaret Hale, 12, of 1020 Bank; Daria Duprey, 10, of 1245 West Burnside; Kenny Coward, 11, of 100 6th Ave., Port Alberni.

Stuart Gough, 6, Butterfield Road, Cobble Hill; Nancy McAfee, 12, PO Box 645, Sidney; Shelley Burkard, 10, of 831 Rogers; Sandra Erickson, 5, 2640 Millstream; Laurey Nanon, 11, of 3333 Cook.

Dennet Woodland, 9, of 1970 Cochrane; Teri-Lisa Francoeur, 5, PO Box 117, Chemainus; Darlene Brandstetter, 11, of 5967 West Saanich; Debra Galloway, 11, of 4020 Haro; Betty Phillips, 9, of 2097 Otter Point Road, Sooke; Caryn Geddie, 10, of 872 Rockheights; Jo-Anne Cook, 10, of 170 Clio.

Debbie Johnson, 12, of 3220 Frechette; Mary Pippard, 11, of 3562 Redwood and Donald Towner, 10, of 1870 San Lorenzo.

Winners of the second contest will be announced soon after all entries have been received. Deadline is noon this Saturday.

Hydro Willing to Look At Alternative Site

B.C. Hydro said Wednesday it will be pleased to consider "a reasonable and comparable alternative" to its planned service centre site at Quadra-Beckwith in Saanich.

The comment is made by C. W. Nash, manager of the corporate services division, in a form letter to municipalities throughout B.C.

The letter follows one from the North Quadra Land Use Protection Association which urged municipalties to support bringing B.C. Hydro under the power of the Municipal Act.

At present, B.C. Hydro is specifically exempt from the Municipal Act under the B.C. Hydro Act, passed by the legislature. This means it does not have to seek zoning for its land uses.

Despite this, Saanich council has called a public hearing for Sept. 28 in Lake Hill Elementary on the planned service centre.

Several years ago, B.C. Hydro did apply for zoning for this use on a nearby site and council rejected it in the face of strong residential opposition.

Nash, in his letter, traces the history of the planned service centre, which at one time was to go at Admirals Road and Trans-Canada Highway. Later this property was considered for a vocational school and now is to become a park.

He said the municipal planning and engineering departments were "both kind enough" to have discussions with B.C. Hydro on various sites for the service centre and "the proposal to purchase the Quadra-Beckwith site for a service centre was not opposed and Hydro subsequently acquired the property."

However, Wednesday, municipal engineer Neville Life said municipal staff neither favored nor opposed this site. In any event, he said B.C. Hydro knew it was just talking to staff and not to council.

Nash said the service centre is a more suitable use than residential development because of levels and drainage on the property.

The centre would be "well hidden" from most nearby streets. And there already is a high-voltage transmission line on steel towers running the whole length of the property, he said.

"The planning of the service centre took these factors into account in order to make the best use of the available land," he said.

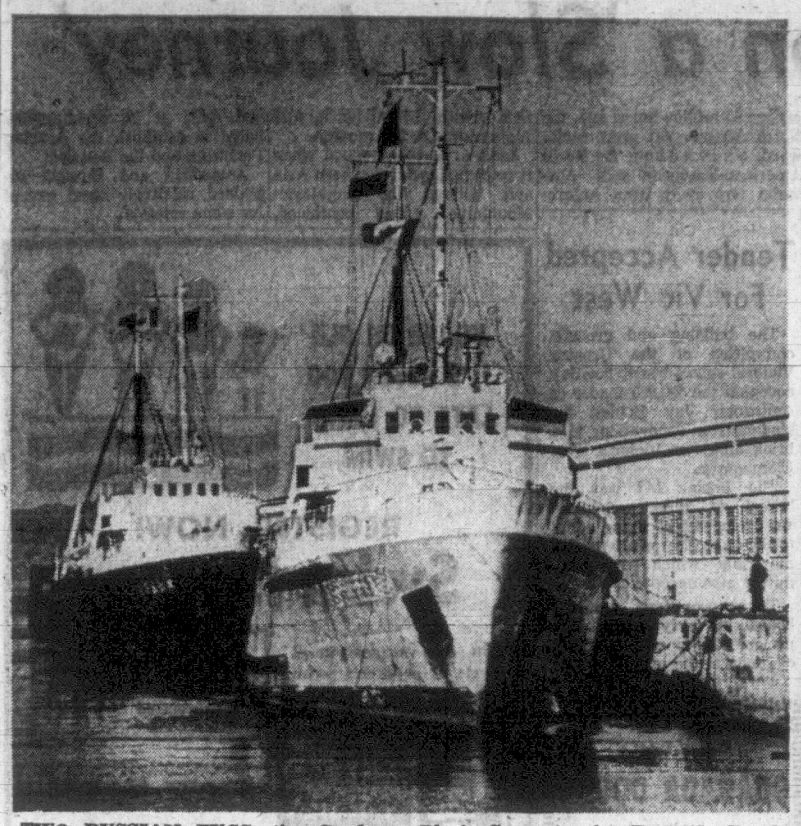

"The building proposed will be a credit to the area in the manner of the B.C. Telephone Company's service centre nearby. The presence of the telephone company's centre has not inhibited neighboring residential development. The municipality of Saanich has a works yard near which attractive residences have been built."

●

Nash also said no building work has commenced and construction is not likely to start for about five years.

"In the meantime, Hydro has tidied up the site, cut the hay and will be removing the old barns now on the property," he said.

TWO RUSSIAN TUGS, the Gordy and the Geroichesky were at Ogden Point Wednesday to refuel and take on supplies. The vessels are returning to their home port of Odessa, on the Black Sea, via the Panama Canal after delivering a 200,000-ton dry-dock to Vladivostock. The trip took 5½ months.

GALLERY TO DISPLAY ORIGINAL GRAPHICS

An exhibition of original graphics by classic and contemporary artists will be presented at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria Sept. 16 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. and Sept. 17, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Samuel Davidson of the Ferdinand Roten Galleries of Baltimore, Maryland, who are presenting the exhibition, will be on hand to answer questions on graphic art and printmaking.

There will be more than 1,000 original etchings, lithographs and woodcuts, made by such artists as Picasso, Chagall, Miro, Goya, Renoir, Roulat and Kollwitz.

Group Condemns Hydro Policies

Concern over B.C. Hydro's power and policies brought about 35 people to a public meeting at View Royal Community Hall on Wednesday.

They were almost unanimous in condemning the crown corporation's methods of obtaining private land and its proposed overhead transmission lines in Greater Victoria.

Pat Codyre, who acted as chairman of the meeting, and whose house and property were recently expropriated by Hydro, said:

"If the people of Victoria knew what they have ahead of them in proposed power lines they would be here by the hundreds.

"You would be astounded if you knew how many people are using the law against the interests of the people."

DISCLOSURES

Codyre promised to make some disclosures next time about the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen, the job placement agency set up last year by P. A. Gaglardi, minister in charge of welfare.

A series of slides made recently by Henriette Pilon showed how Hydro transmission towers contribute to visual pollution in the Capital Region.

Miss Pilon screened a second group of slides which showed substandard housing, health hazards and unsafe conditions on public property in Greater Victoria. She blamed greedy landlords and unconcerned public officials for the bad conditions, but said it's up to individuals to speak out and have the problems rectified.

Codyre said the majority of people in this area have been afraid to raise their voice against the unfair treatment from large government agencies and large businesses.

"Everybody will tell you you can't beat Hydro — don't believe it, that is one of the biggest fallacies of the age," he said.

Codyre said this meeting served to draw attention to other issues that could be discussed at future public meetings.

He also referred to B.C. Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum and his drinking in July of weed-killing chemicals used by Hydro to clear plant life away from power line right-of-ways.

"If Mr. Shrum thinks he had a cocktail with that drink he had, when I'm through with him he'll think he's been on a real binge."

NOT FOR WOMEN

Codyre, who began his fight against Hydro last spring, said he is not trying to get more money for his Munn Road property from the government.

"I have never yet discussed with Hydro any price on my property. I am fighting for the principle that we as Canadians can live where we want to as long as we don't disturb our neighbors or stop progress."

He told the people who attended the meeting:

"You are the salt of the earth because you will encourage others to come out. You have no ulterior motive, you are not out for money, you are here for justice."

Jim Gorst, who ran in last fall's provincial election as a New Democratic Party candidate in Esquimalt, said Hydro officials have already admitted they would not run an overhead transmission line through Oak Bay even though they plan to do so in less affluent parts of the city.

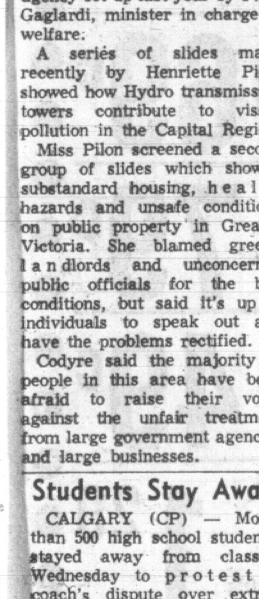

"The people who make decisions that affect the lives of most of the people in Greater Victoria live in that area (Oak Bay and Uplands)," he said.

Gambling Empire Subject of Probe

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — A four-member royal commission was named Wednesday to investigate agreements which established on Grand Bahama Island a multi-million-dollar gambling and business empire with rights considered above those of the island government.

The commission's objectives as outlined here could torpedo a huge investment at Freeport by Benguet Consolidated, Inc., a firm traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Other members are Sir Fred Phillip of St. Vincent, a former governor of St. Kitts, Nevis and Anguilla; Malcolm F. Lindsay of Toronto, former commissioner of the RCMP, R. McAllister Lloyd of New York, a banker and chairman of the UN investment committee.

The commission was announced by Prime Minister Lynden O. Pindling to "examine the question of the future" of Freeport, Grand Bahama.

A government source said the language meant that Pindling's black government believes the agreement made by former, white-dominated governments had given away the people's prerogatives. A previous inquiry into just the gambling activity had uncovered financial interests by former government officials in the gambling operations.

The source said: "If the commission finds that the Hawksbill Creek Agreement is not consistent with government sovereignty they might abrogate or modify the agreement."

Pindling said only that the commission was asked to make recommendations "as to what changes, if any, ought consequently to be made in the terms of the Hawksbill Creek agreement and subsequent amendments."

Under the 99-year Hawksbill agreement signed in 1955, American millionaire Wallace Groves was given the right to set up the Grand Bahama Port Authority, which controls the companies operating the two casinos on the island.

In 1968, Groves sold his controlling interest for a reported $80 million to Benguet Consolidated, Inc., a mining firm.

The rights under the agreement gave the owners exclusive concession to all business in the free port area of the city called Freeport, Grand Bahamas. Tourism is the principal industry.

U.K. Unionists Agree to Fight For Higher Pay

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — British trade unionists demanded Wednesday a bigger share of the national wealth for the working men and agreed to fight for higher pay and a shorter working year.

Delegates representing 9.4 million workers told Prime Minister Edward Heath and his Conservative government they will face a united labor movement "if they persist in a policy of wage restrictions and punitive measures against the unions."

The delegates approved without dissent at the annual convention of the Trades Union Congress a motion demanding "higher wages and salaries and the shorter working year, as part of the necessary process of sharing the benefit of technological change and reducing unemployment."

Social Workers To Appeal Job Transfers

By BRUCE YEMEN

Job transfers described as "sudden" are being appealed by a number of social worker employees of the provincial department of rehabilitation and social improvement.

But Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi said today the transfers — unofficially reported affecting 16 social workers — are "only just a start" in that direction.

He denied that there is any "shakeup" under way in the department which he took over last fall.

Gaglardi indicated the transfers are "promotions" which will improve the qualifications of those involved for future advancement.

But Glen Hamilton, executive secretary of the B.C. Association of Social Workers, said today in Vancouver:

'COMPLETE LOSS'

"We are at a complete loss to understand the rationale for the move."

At the same time Cy Toren, association president, was today sending out letters to a number of newspapers criticizing Gaglardi on other policy matters since he took over the welfare job.

Gaglardi said in February that a reorganization of the department complete with "retraining" of staff if necessary could be expected.

Hamilton, in Vancouver, said the association has just learned of some of the transfers and would like to hear from Gaglardi some evidence of the need for the move.

CLOSE TOUCH

"I think there are arguments for keeping staff in close touch with their communities," he said. "I don't think the experience would be much different in one community than in another.

One report said as many as 14 of the 16 department staff affected are appealing the orders. The appeal procedure is a departmental matter.

Gaglardi, asked about the appeals as a possible sign of discontent in his department, replied, "so what?"

He said transfers are a condition of employment.

Gaglardi denied that he was now carrying out previously veiled threats to shake up the department if it failed to adapt to his new approach to welfare services.

"I'm not interested in breaking up anything," he said.

MEMBERS UPSET

Hamilton said the association's members are "naturally upset with the idea of being shifted around."

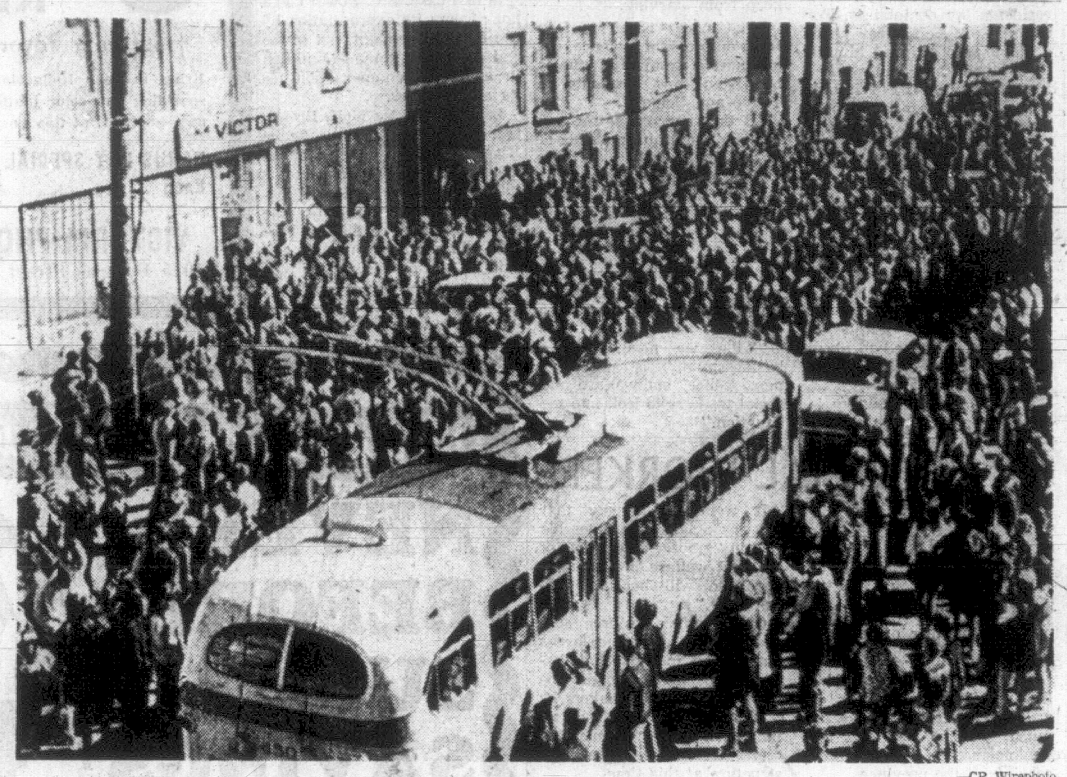

Toren said he hasn't sufficient details of the moves to evaluate them but if Gaglardi's moves are "arbitrary" then it could be "destructive" and create more problems for the department.

In a letter to newspaper editors being mailed today, Toren states that Gaglardi has operated in a manner designed to reduce welfare services and department morale in recent months.

He questioned the wisdom of Gaglardi's claim Wednesday — and repeated today in Victoria — that there are 10,000 jobs available in B.C.

"There is no evidence that there are 10,000 jobs avail-

Heavy Casualties Feared

Times News Services

The Jordanian capital of Amman is reported in flames and heavy casualties were feared as Palestinian guerrillas and the Jordanian army battled throughout the night despite appeals for a ceasefire from both sides.

Guerrillas in the capital said the fighting centred on the Amman airport, the Jebel Hussein Citadel, the royal palaces and other sections of the city. They said houses were being destroyed.

The guerrillas said soldiers in 10 scout cars attacked the headquarters of the Popular Democratic Front, a radical guerrilla organization, but that they were repelled and four of the cars were destroyed.

Exploding rockets and bursts of machine-gun fire were clearly heard early today in Jebel Amman, where most government departments and diplomatic missions are situated.

LASTS 10 MINUTES

The firing began at 6 a.m. and lasted about 10 minutes. It restarted at 8:35 a.m. with troops and guerrillas entrenched in their positions on Jebel Amman and Jebel Webda exchanging fire.

Guerrillas May Release Sick Hostages

AMMAN (Reuters) — The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, whose commandos this week hijacked three airliners to Jordan, have offered to release all women and children and people in need of medical care among the passengers if certain conditions are met.

Palestinian Red Crescent sources, revealing this to Reuters, declined to state what these conditions were but said the offer was made on humaniterian grounds during a meeting here today between the Front and International Red Cross representatives.

They added that representatives of the Palestinian Red Crescent, through whom the negotiations were being held, attended the meeting.

The Front is insisting on the release of seven guerrillas held in Switzerland, West Germany and Britain as well as two Algerians and an unlimited number of commandos detained in Israel in return for the release of the hijacked aircraft, their passengers and crew.

The sources claimed about 11,000 Arabs are detained in Israeli prisons, of whom 1,050 have been tried. The others are being held without trial.

They added that among the

Oil Now Within 12 Miles Of P.E.I.'s White Beaches

By BILL MOFFATT
Canadian Press Correspondent

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. — A massive oil slick, fed from the tanks of a sunken oil barge, continued to grow today and had stretched to within 12 miles of the white sand beaches at the northwestern tip of Prince Edward Island by midday.

The slick had been about 20 miles from shore early Wednesday.

Today's winds were southerly at about 10 miles an hour and were expected to change little the rest of the day. Southerly winds would carry the oil away from shore, but with such light winds the slick was not expected to move "any great distance," a transport department spokesman said.

Further offshore, at the site of the sinking, winds were light southwesterly and expected to increase to southwest 15 tonight. Northerly winds would bring the oil toward P.E.I. while westerly winds would carry it toward New Brunswick.

Meanwhile, consideration was being given by officials to dispersing the thick bunker C oil with chemicals which have been stockpiled at the Canadian Forces base here.

Dr. William Ford of Bedford Institute of Oceanography said in an interview the chemicals would reduce the oil to about one part per million, and he said he felt the risk to marine life is "low."

A tiny fisheries research submarine was in position over the wreck of the Irving Whale, a 2,300-ton barge which sank 35 miles north of North Cape, P.E.I. Monday with 875,000 gallons of bunker C in its compartments.

The sub Pisces was expected to make its first dive later today to assess the Whale's condition.

PLAN BOOM LOCK

Officials were awaiting the arrival of a 2,000-foot sea boom from British Columbia which will be placed downwind from the wreck to contain oil leaking from the Whale. The boom allows water to pass through but holds oil. It can function effectively in waves up to six feet.

Briefs Acceptable After Mine Hearing

By DON VIPOND

B.C.'s director of pollution control will accept briefs on a north island mine dumping proposal after a public hearing next week.

Assistant director Robert Ferguson restated this policy today after opponents to the plans of Utah Construction and Mining Co. Ltd. on Rupert Inlet learned only four objectors will be heard at the public hearing.

The mining company wants a permit to dump 9.3 million gallons of effluent daily into the narrow inlet south of Port Hardy.

The effluent, from a copper and molybdenum concentration would be 50 per cent suspended solids by weight, containing residual traces of cyanide and zinc.

Utah applied for the permit 11 months ago and the Pollution Control Branch received over 140 protests by mail, said Ferguson.

Each letter was answered, with the branch enclosing a summary of a general study of the question and inviting the writers to substantiate their position as objecters.

Only three people and one organization did this and they are the only ones invited to make a presentation at the public hearing.

ANYONE CAN LISTEN

The hearing will be held next Wednesday at the Kinsmen recreation hall near Port Hardy airport. Anyone can attend to listen.

Ferguson said pollution control director William Venables has already established a policy of accepting written briefs after a hearing and these will be considered before he decides to grant or refuse the permit.

Siege Lifted On Kompong Thom

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Meeting only light resistance, a Cambodian amphibious force of some 1,500 men reached Kompong Thom Wednesday night and lifted a three-month seige of the provincial capital 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, the Cambodian command announced.

A spokesman said that one Cambodian soldier was killed in the lightly contested drive up the Stung Sen River by a column of boats more than 1½ miles long. The column, which included gunboats with cannon, reached the provincial capital after a two-day operation that began on the shores of Cambodia's huge lake, Tonle Sap, the spokesman said.

Western military experts were puzzled by the ease with which the seige was reported broken, considering that most of the North Vietnamese 20th Division is reported still in the immediate area.

One source suggested that the North Vietnamese might be laying an elaborate trap. Another theory was that the Cambodian relief force would withdraw, and the North Vietnamese could again encircle Kompong Thom without serious casualties.

'POLICE CAN'T COPE WITH THEFTS BY HIPPIES'

Crime on Increase at Long Beach

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Theft by members of the large hippie beach colony, sometimes numbering as high as 1,000 during the peak tourist season, increased at an alarming rate this summer according to merchants and police.

Money, cameras, food, packsacks — anything that can be converted into cash — has been stolen from campers in the new national park.

Shoplifting is rampant at Tofino and Ucluelet, the two Long Beach communities, merchants say.

Police seem no longer able to cope with the problem, residents claim.

Robert Cummins, 638 Vanalman, whose wife's purse was stolen from his truck at a government campsite this summer, said police haven't got the staff to carry out the investigations.

Cummins said he wasn't blaming police.

"There are thousands of visitors at Long Beach in July and August," he said. "They can't cope with the complaints. They are also responsible for traffic and maintaining the law at Tofino and Ucluelet.

A total of 40,718 people camped in the park this summer, according to the B.C. Parks Branch.

Cabinet Gives Green Light to College Vote

School board chairman Carron Jameson said board members are "delighted" at the announcement as the board has been pressing for it since 1966.

"Our hope is that this will be held within a month or so," he said. A simple majority is needed for the plebiscite to pass.

The college, if it becomes a reality, will be a separate entity located at the Institute of Adult Studies.

Jameson said that the board hoped to have students in the college by September, 1971.

Allan McCallum, acting principal of the Institute of Adult Studies, today said the possibility of a regional college for Greater Victoria has been under consideration since spring 1969.

At that time, he said, the school board prepared a submission to the provincial education department.

Since then, he said, the board has been awaiting an announcement from the department.

If approved, the new college would be the ninth in the province.

It would serve southern Vancouver Island.

The final decision on the site would come from the board of education, McCallum said, and a regional college here would likely include vocational courses. But he could not speculate whether such a college would absorb the facilities of the recently-opened Greater Victoria Vocational School.

It will probably only involve taxpayers who live within the boundaries of the Greater Victoria district.

The outlying districts — Sooke and Saanich Peninsula — will watch the college operation and decide later whether they wish to hold separate plebiscites to join the Victoria college.

The college set-up, under provincial legislation, will mean a better financial deal for the district taxpayers than does the present Adult Institute which is financed through public school systems.

Under legislation, the provincial government pays 60 per cent of the operating costs of regional colleges, students themselves pay some 18 per cent and the ratepayers the remaining 22 per cent.
